POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Christmas Bells.

I heard the bells on Christmas day
Their old, familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet
The words repeat
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

And thought how, as the day had come,
The belfries of all Christendom
Had rolled along
The unbroken song
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

Till, ringing, singing on its way,
The world revolved from night to day,
A voice, a chime,
A chant sublime
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

Then from each black, accursed mouth
The cannon thundered in the south
And with the sound
The carols drowned
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

It was as if an earthquake rent
The hearthstones of a continent,
And made forlorn
The households born
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

And in despair I bowed my head;
"There is no peace on earth," I said;
"For hate is strong
And mocks the song
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!"

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep;
"God is not dead, nor does He sleep!
The wrong shall fail,
The right prevail
With peace on earth, good-will to men!"

By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

A Song for Christmas.

Have you heard the Christmas chorus
Sounding over hill and plain?
Have you listened to the music
That should never come in vain?
Glory, praise and honor ever
Unto God who reigns above,
And to those on earth who journey
Peace, good-will and boundless love.

Have you seen the Christmas holly
Flaming forth on every side?
Has your heart grown strangely lighter
For the green of Christmas-tide?
Has it thrilled you with its message,
Glory to the Lord and King,
And good-will to every brother?—
This the tidings it should bring.

Have you caught the Christmas spirit
Wafted by on every breeze?
Christ is born to rule forever,
Lord of earth and sky and seas.
Glory unto Him, and honor
Now and evermore! Amen!
And throughout a Christian kingdom,
Peace on earth, good-will to men!

To a Little Boy.

He used to make believe so hard
That skies were summer blue,
We wondered was there really any
Gray or winter hue.

He always made believe that life
Was very gay and glad,
Until we quite forgot that sometimes
Life is only sad.

He saw such shining visions
That he made us see them, too;
He knew enchanting secrets and
We all believed them true.

So now we try to make believe,
Since he has gone away,
But find it just an empty game
We have no heart to play.

—Gertrude Callaghan.

The Boston Cats.

A little cat played on a silver flute,
And a big cat sat and listened;
The little cat's strains gave the big cat pains,
And a tear on his eyelids glistened.
Then the big cat said, "Oh, rest awhile!"
But the little cat said, "Oh, no!
For I get paid for the tunes I play."
And the big cat answered, "O-oooh!
If you get paid for the tunes you play,
I'm afraid you'll play till you drop;
You'll spoil your health in the race for wealth,
So I'll give you more to stop!"

Said the little cat, "Hush! You make me blush,
Your offer is unusually kind,
It is very, very hard to leave the back yard—
But I accept, if you don't mind."
So the big cat gave him a thousand pounds,
And a silver brush and comb,
And a country seat on Beacon Street,
Right under the State House dome.
And the little cat sits with the other little kits
And watches the bright sun rise,
While the voice of the flute is long since mute—
And the big cat dries his eyes.

By Arthur Macy.

His Letter.

Of course there's heaps an' heaps o' things
I want a turr'ble lot,
But Santa Claus 'most always brings
The very best he's got.
It isn't nice for little boys
To nag him, anyhow,
With letters askin' him for toys,
When he's so busy now.

But I don't care for toys no more,
An' Gee! I hope he'll read
My letter to him, askin' for Exackly what I need.
I'll never want another thing
In all the world, if he
Will only come this year an' bring
My muver back to me.

—James J. Montague.

The Children's Feast

This is the feast of the children,
When the little ones make good cheer,
With their hearts let your heart be happy—
Ugh! a snowball, square on your ear.

Days of pure joy for the youngsters,
The jolly old Christmas-tide;
Our spirits go soaring upward—
Bump! you sat down a slide.

Surely, the feast of the children—
Bother! don't look so glum.
Remember your own mad Christmases,
And help 'em to make things hum.

—Thomas Wexford.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

No one has much respect or kindly feeling for a miser for he is selfish with his hoard of money, hiding it away in some secret place and living himself in poverty. Some misers have been known to die of starvation with thousands of dollars at their disposal. But people who hoard their money away in secret places and live in poverty are not the only misers.

Do not be a miser in love for your family. Bring it out and spend it in deeds, rather than merely in words. Do not be a miser with your talents. Use your talents to help others who need your help. Use your talents whenever you can to entertain others, cheer them or help them. Don't be a miser with advantages which you have and which you might share with others. Look over your means, your talents, and your advantages, and see if you are using them as you ought to. What good are they to you if you don't make use of them. Happiness and contentment come through sharing what you have with others. Don't be selfish and miserly.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

The League of Nations.

Dear Uncle Jed: After the world war ended delegates from the victorious nations were called together in Paris to prepare terms for peace. As President Wilson had taken the most prominent part in preparing the terms for peace, he went in person to attend the conference. He urged the nations to unite in a League of Nations, which he thought would make war impossible. The League of Nations is an association of nations, which came into existence Jan. 10, 1920, at Paris, the object of which is to prevent wars, by the limitation of armament and the adoption of principles of arbitration.

Months passed and the peace conference struggled with conflicting claims of nations while the conference was at work the League of Nations was bitterly opposed by the United States senate.

On May 7th peace terms were handed Germany. The Germans protested strongly and declared they would not accept the terms, but a new German cabinet accepted the terms and the peace treaty was signed June 28, 1919.

The first meeting of the league was held at Geneva, Switzerland, on the 15th of November, 1920, at the call of President Wilson.

There are 51 countries entered in the league. Sept. 10, 1926, Spain resigned because she could not get a permanent seat along with Germany. Other nations have also resigned during the last few years.

The United States has refused to join the league. It is said that reservations would probably be accepted by all members of the league with the request that the United States as a member of the world court would not seek privileges other nations do not have.

A Black and White Dog.

Dear Jed: This is the first time I have written. I hope the Wide-Awakes and the readers of this paper will enjoy my story.

We had a little dog whose name was "Princie." He was black and white. We played hide-and-seek with him. But once he fell sick and he died. We all were sorry because we loved him. My uncle used to come over to our house and try to get us mad by calling the dog "Prince of Wales."

Lost in The Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my sisters and I started out for berries. We passed pastures and meadows until we came to the woods. We saw that the berries were big and delicious.

As we were going farther into the woods we came to where there were many blackberries. The blueberries were getting scarcer and scarcer. We soon came to where there were no berries. As we didn't know which way we came we walked in any direction. We walked and walked until we came to a barbed wire fence. Not knowing where this fence led to, we walked up a large rock. From there we saw a house about a mile away. It was about 3 o'clock, this we guessed when my sisters told us each to climb a tree.

When my older sister climbed up to the top she said that all she saw was trees.

At last we decided to go north. We walked as far as a brook. We were about to cross when my sister screamed, "Bees!" We ran as fast as we could until we came to a road When we walked up the road we heard some one calling us. I answered and soon saw my brother. He helped us pick our pail full at the edge of the woods. Then we reached home tired after our adventures.

Christmas.

Dear Uncle Jed: Christmas is celebrated on the 25th of December every year by most people. Some people observe it in January, April or May.

Why is it celebrated on that day? Because Jesus was born in Bethlehem stable on that day.

On Christmas eve the small children hang up their stockings but as they grow older they think it is foolishness.

At this time of the year gifts are given and received. The custom is so because gifts were given to Christ.

In schools and other public places entertainments are held on this great holiday.

The Motion Picture Industry.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you something about the motion picture industry. The motion picture industry was founded some years ago and has since grown to one of the largest industries in the world. Motion pictures are both interesting and instructive, and also entertaining. Motion pictures are now used in schools and colleges and also churches for illustrating purposes. This industry gives employment to many people in different parts of the world. Millions of dollars are also invested in the industry. Occasionally I go to a motion picture and I find them very interesting.

Our Party.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes about our Thanksgiving party which we had in school. We had some nuts and grapes for our feast because the Pilgrims had these at the first Thanksgiving. We had a play. In the play there were Pilgrims and Indians. There was an Indian chief, too. I was the Indian chief, and four of my playmates were Indians. My brother was a Pilgrim. He had a sword and a gun to kill me if he saw me. But we had pine trees in school and I hid behind one. When the play was over, we sat in our seats and the Pilgrim girls, who wore white caps and aprons, gave us nuts and grapes. We had a jolly time and went home.

An Unexpected Pleasure.

Dear Uncle Jed: As my thirteenth birthday came near, I was extremely happy, for on this birthday my sister Mary promised me a nice dress. When at last my birthday came I noticed that my mother and sister were very busy.

In the afternoon I was told to go to my grandmother. I got a little suspicious of what was coming, but went just the same.

I hardly could stand seeing so many friends. "What does it mean?" My mother took me by the hand and said, "It means that you're going to have a real birthday party dear. Then she led me to the place of honor at the table. I was so overcome by the sight of the huge birthday cake that I quite forgot to notice the packages piled high on the plate. Then I carefully unwrapped each parcel. First there was a beautiful story book, next a box of candy, a bottle of perfume, and handkerchiefs.

Finally when the games were over and it was time to go home, I thanked them all heartily and bade them good night. I think this is the best party I ever had.

Sliding.

Dear Uncle Jed: One night my sister asked my mother if we could go out sliding in the moonlight. She said, "Yes." We put on our hats and coats and went out. It was as light as day, for a full moon was shining. We took our sled and slid down the hill. We all took turns in using the sled. We stayed out for about an hour and then we went into the house. We played "Old Maid" until it was time to go to bed. I think we had a very good time, don't you? We are going to go out sliding if the moon is shining and if mother will let us.

A Trip to Providence.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell the Wide Awakes about a recent trip to Providence. On the way down we went through Sterling and saw the damage caused by the storm. The road is open now. The water is very high down there.

We also passed Fairbanks bridge. It reminded me of Humpty Dumpty, as it was broken in pieces. I didn't think a flood could do so much damage. There are washouts 8 feet deep on different places along.

When we got to Providence we went to see Santa Claus. He gave my sister and myself a book with some good stories and pictures to paint. My mother took me around the stores and showed us all the dolls. I wish the Wide Awakes could have seen them all. I showed my mother the doll I want Santa Claus to bring me, so she said if I was good, he would bring me one.

My father took us to the show at the "Rialto," and I enjoyed it. I was glad when I got home because it was so cold riding. I hope Santa doesn't forget any of the Wide Awakes or our Uncle Jed, and I hope you all have a Merry Christmas.

A Lost Kitten.

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes enjoy my story of The Lost Kitten.

"I wonder where Snowball is," said Alice, almost ready to cry. "Where did you see her last?" asked my mother. "In the barn," was the reply. "I have looked all over for her, but I can't find her."

Snowball was a gift of Uncle George and Alice and her brothers were fond of her. They also joined in the search for Snowball.

After awhile, they gave up hope of ever finding the kitten. Alice was very sad.

That evening her brother was working in the barn. While working, he heard a meow. Then with a few moments of hasty looking, he found the cat. She was under the barn floor.

CORA RONDEAU, Age 11,

A Pretty Bird.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you a little story about a pretty bird called a chickadee. This little bird is sometimes called the black cap and sometimes a snowbird. It has an ashy gray on the back and brownish white below. The top of the head and the back of the neck are very black. The chickadee is a very lively little bird and is always seen running up and down on the trees and sticking its bill in the holes for insects.

When winter is here it comes near houses looking for crumbs and seeds. In the cold weather it is very lively. The chickadee builds its nest in a hollow of the trees and lays eight to ten pretty white eggs covered with brownish red spots. The chickadee is found all the year around in most of the United States. The pretty bird gets its name from the song which it sings—chickadee-dee-dee. This bird is sometimes called the up-side-down bird. It is very pretty Winter Fun.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about some fun I had last Tuesday. Last Tuesday night, when I came home from school, I went sliding near a pond.

I slid down near the pond to look at it. It looked safe enough. My friend and I tried it. I went on the ice and stamped my foot. Then I jumped on the ice and it didn't crack.

Finally we had been all over the pond and it was safe.

My friend said, let's get our skates and put them on. We got our skates from the attic. We went down to the pond and put our skates on.

We skated until it was five minutes past five. Then I took my skates off and went home to supper. This is the first time we have skated this year and it was fun. We have skated many times since.

SYBIL KEACH, Age 11.
115 Farrows St., Putnam.

The mighty fall, the free are caught;
The proud to humbleness are brought.
—Old Mother Nature.

Since the day he left his nest for his first flight out into the Great World Terror the Goshawk had never known the meaning of captivity even for a moment. Seldom had he even known the meaning of the word "fear." Always he had been one of the feathered lords of the air. Few there were who dared oppose him and these few he avoided. He had come and gone as he pleased. When food had become scare in one place he had unhesitatingly moved to new hunting grounds. The only thing he really feared was the terrible gun of man, and this he had learned how to avoid.

So when he alighted on the top of the telephone pole near Farmer Brown's henyard, a place where he had sat very often to watch the hens, he hadn't the least suspicion that anything could be wrong. His eyes were fixed on that henyard. It didn't occur to him that it could possibly be necessary for him to look where he was putting his feet. Nothing could be wrong on top of that tall pole. And then the thing had happened. A pair of jaws had leaped up and gripped him by one leg. What the creature was he hadn't the slightest idea. He had instantly jumped into the air, flapping those great wings of his, and then he had pitched headlong, head down, flapping his great wings helplessly. The thing which had grabbed him by the leg was holding him fast. He couldn't understand it at all.

Now sometimes a thing that cannot be understood causes more real fear than a thing which really is to be feared but which is understood. Fear filled the heart of Terror, as he himself had so often caused it to fill the hearts of other little people. He knew exactly how the grouse and rabbits and others whom he had caught had felt when he had seized them in his great claws. Every second he expected something more to happen.

But those fierce jaws that held him fast seemed satisfied to simply hold. Struggle as he might, they did not relax the least. It came over him then that this thing that held him had something to do with that two-legged creature called man, the one creature whom he had learned to really fear and respect.

It was humiliating to hang swinging there helplessly. If only he could be on his feet he could and would fight. But hanging there head down, there was no chance to fight.

He watched Farmer Brown's Boy climbing up. When the latter was near enough Terror struck at him with his wings. But all in vain. Then he felt himself smothered in a bag and was helpless. He could neither beat with his wings nor strike with his bill or claws. Never in all his life had he know what it was to be helpless before. It was a dreadful feeling. Fear of what might be going to happen to him wasn't half so dreadful as this feeling of utter helplessness.

Then he felt himself being carried down and he could see nothing. He whose wonderful eyes had so often looked down on the Great World from up in the sky could see nothing at all. And that too was a dreadful feeling. But the proud heart in him would not allo whi mto make any protest. He made no sound. He did not cry out. He was not a coward. What he must face he would face.

And so Terror the Goshawk was a prisoner. For a long time he remained helpless in that bag. It seemed a terribly long time to him. He could hear strange noises, a great deal of pounding and the sound of a saw, although he did not know what a saw was. Then he was taken out of the bag and put into a big cage, for that was what Farmer Brown's Boy had been making for him. Of course, the trap had been removed from his leg just as soon as Farmer Brown's reached the ground. But now he found himself just as much a prisoner as if held by that trap.

The next story: "Terror Maintains His Pride."

TEACHER SUES DR. LENA— ALLEGES FAULTY TREATMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 18—Dr. Hugh F. Lena, owner of Lena's private hospital, Broad street, was made the defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages late Friday. Miss Mary A. Shea, a school teacher, residing at 104 Connecticut avenue, brought the action, claiming the damages on the grounds that she had been permanently disfigured because of the unskillful and negligent manner that the plaintiff had been treated by the physician. The suit is brought through a Middletown attorney and the Harris building, owned jointly by Dr. Lena and his brother, Dr. Frank Lena, has been attached.

Miss Shea, who is the sister of Attorney Frank S. Shea, of this city, claims that Nov. 8, 1926, she began taking treatments from Dr. Lena and that between Dec. 13 and Dec. 23 of the same year, she received treatments by X-ray and so negligently and unskillful was the physician in the administering of the treatments that Miss Shea sustained burns of the left ear, neck, face and chest. So serious were the burns that plaintiff declares she will be disfigured for life. Miss Shea also states that because of the burns she was deprived of continuing her services as a teacher for several months for which she would have been compensated $35 per week. She also says that she will be further incapacitated and as a result of which she will be deprived of following her occupation and will also be deprived of her earning capacity, besides being compelled to make further expenditures for medical treatment.

GOVERNMENT SUES FOR TAXES UNPAID BY FIEDERICCI

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 18—Vittorio Fiedericci, 33 Walbach street, has been made the defendant in a civil action brought by the federal government in the sum of $8,000, the suit being brought because of Fiedericci's conviction for violation of the prohibition law. Property belonging to Fiedericci at 29 and 35 Walbach street has been attached. The suit is returnable before the United States District court at New Haven the first Tuesday in January. The complaint recites that Sept. 28, 1926, Fiedericci was presented in the United States District court at New Haven, following a raid at his home by prohibition officers, when liquor, beer and wine was seized. Fiedericci pleaded guilty and was fined. Aug. 19, 1926, a prohibition enforcement agent again raided Fiedericci's home and seized a quantity of liquor and beer. He was again presented in the United States District court, pleaded guilty and was fined on three counts, keeping with intent to sell, having in his possession liquor of alcoholic contents greater than one-half of one per cent and illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. As a result of Fiedericci's conviction, the federal government claims that his acts constitute a violation of the statute providing for the sale and manufacture of liquor and that Fiedericci owes taxes to the government in the sum of $7,174. The specific taxes that the complaint recites Fiedericci owes the government are as follows: Tax as dealer, $4.16; tax as brewer, $8.33; tax on one and one-half barrels of beer, $9; tax on two and three-quarters gallons of wine, 44 cents; special tax on liquor, $166.66; special tax as brewer, $166.66; special penalty as liquor dealer, $500; special penalty as manufacturer, $1,000; tax as liquor dealer, $45.92; tax as brewer, $91.66; tax on two barrels of beer, $12; tax on 1 quart of whiskey, $1.60; special tax as retail dealer, $1,833.33; special tax as brewer, $1,833.33; special penalty as retail liquor dealer, $500; and special tax as manufacturer, $1,000.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 18—The S-4, rammed by the United States Coast Guard destroyer Paulding, off Provincetown, Saturday afternoon, carried to the bottom of the ocean two New London young men. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater.

Thrills, baffling mystery and intriguing adventure on the high seas, all these, Bert Lytell brings to the screen in "Alias the Lone Wolf," his latest starring vehicle now showing at the Palace theater.

Lytell has scored outstanding hits as Michael Lanyard, the "Lone Wolf" in two earlier exploits of Louis Joseph Vance's famous French underworld hero. In his latest picture he adds new laurels to his previous successes as the "Lone Wolf."

Many of the scenes of the pictures are laid on an ocean liner, with Lytell pitted against a ring of international situation he extricates himself and the woman he loves from the sinister plotting of the criminal gang.

Assisting Bert Lytell in the cast are Lois Wilson of "Covered Wagon" fame, who gives a remarkably fine performance as the crook's sweetheart. William V. Mong, Paulette Duval and Ned Sparks.

On the stage the feature attraction is the La Verne and Fayles Revue, in a classic vision of song and dance. Other acts include Walsh, Ellis and Company in "A Comedy of Youth," Lew Rella and Company in a novel speed offering, E. J. Moore in a farce comedy, "The Tears of Buddah," and Billy Jones in a routine of songs and jects.

In recent tests in England the sound of a big gun was heard more than eighty miles away eleven minutes after the gun was fired.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater.

College pictures are generally good entertainment, but "The Cheer Leader," which will be shown for the last time today at the Broadway theater is a crackerjack up-to-the-minute classic of the campus that romps through for a touchdown.

College pictures are generally good entertainment but Gotham Productions with their latest opus, "The Cheer Leader," have turned out a crackerjack up-to-the-minute classic of the campus that romps through for a touchdown.

The producers are entitled to a "locomotive" cheer in assembling a cast of youthful film players who not only act but look like the real campus cupt-ups of today. The action of the story taking place in a co-ed university lends color and the essential sex-appeal and the situations of the story build up from a standing start to a roaring climax on the football field that will make anyone's pulse beat faster.

There are several unusual twists to the story that are quite original and clever, not the least is the point of making the "college hero" turn out to be the villain.

The co-feature is all that title implies in the way of action, and a liberal over-flow of thrill and lover interest in addition.

This is the concensus of opinion expressed by those who enjoyed the opening engagement of "The Fighting Hombre," starring Bob Custer.

"The Fighting Hombre" lays a barrage of thrills and smashing action that leaves little to be desired, if anything, and carries a wholesome quota of romance that sums up a sure-fire screen entertainment success.

Breed Theater.

For the dissemination of fact and the playful use of alliteration, "Paid to Love" is a rollicking review of a royal romance. It's the Fox picture which came to the Breed theater last night, with George O'Brien and Virginia Valli in the leading roles. J. Farrell Macdonald, as the rich American, who, of course, substitutes for Sir Daniel Cupid, is as funny a comedian as he ever was, which is saying a great deal.

The story deals with a mythical kingdom, the crown prince of which is more interested in mechanics than women. The old king would have his elder son marry and produce heirs, rather than remain single and produce noises in the royal garage with his blooming machinery.

But what happens is entirely out of the schedule and it wouldn't be sporting to tell it. Those who saw the picture at the Breed last night were highly amused and their praises rang in support of the cast, the director, Howard Hawks, and everybody.

Strand Theater.

The magnificent drama and epochal triumph of the famous P. N. 9 in its hop to Hawaii, has been immortalized by Emory Johnson in his latest and most spectacular melodrama, "The Non-Stop Flight," now showing at the Strand. Emelie Johnson, who wrote the story, has woven around the exploits of the gallant navy crew a remarkable tale of glorious adventure. A lovely romance, and some of the best comedy seen in a long time, have been injected into the story, and the P. N. 9 itself is seen in the picture. Director Johnson has received the support of the whole Pacific battle fleet of the U. S. navy in this gigantic melodrama of the high seas and aviation.

Smoldering Fres is another complete story of our weekly series. Our two reel comedy is full of excitement and thrills.

The presence in transit, either upon the highway or in the possession of any common carrier, of any such bale, box or package not so marked, shall be prima facie evidence of a violation of the provisions of this section by the person who gathered the contents of such bale, box or package."

BALTIC DEPT.'S NEW PUMPER GIVEN TEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

BALTIC, Dec. 18—The Baltic fire department's new pumper was given a thorough test Saturday afternoon, under the direction of Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department. Chief Stanton, accompanied by Captain Dennis Brennan and Driver Charles Tatro of the Central fire station, arrived in Baltic, at 1 o'clock and were met by First Selectman Charles F. Charon and Deputy Chief Eddie Lambert of the Baltic fire company.

The members of the Baltic department were assembled at their quarters in the town building awaiting orders to report at First avenue, on Main street for the test.

Streams were thrown on the vacant lot adjoining the baseball grounds. The purchase of the motorized fire apparatus was made possible by the combined efforts of the members of the Sprague board of finance and the board of selectmen. At the annual town meeting held in Baltic the board of finance recommended the purchase of the truck, and the voters voted to appropriate the sum of $6,000 to buy the pumper and new hose, and to spend a certain sum to make alterations in the firemen's quarters. The Reo chassis was built by the Reo motor company and the triple combination 350 gallon pump, the 85 gallon booster tank and the hose body with the full equipment consisting of ladders, hose and fire fighting implements were mounted by the Combination Ladder company of Providence, R. I.

Following the trial test at the First avenue grounds, Chief Stanton and Mr. Charon accompanied the firemen to Depot Hill, where the second demonstration was held.

Chief Stanton also gave the Sprague officials valuable advice concerning the specifications for the pumper. The members of the Baltic department appreciate the kindness of Chief Stanton in coming to Baltic on Saturday to instruct them on how to operate the pumper and handle the 750 feet of new hose. Chief Stanton was assisted by Roy Lowell of Providence, who brought the apparatus.

When the board of selectmen were empowered to buy the pumper, a committee from the board of finance and the selectmen, consulted with Chief Stanton and it was chiefly through his expert advice that the town of Sprague was fortunate in obtaining the pumper with the numerous extra equipment, for the sum of $5,200.

The Baltic fire station has been completely renovated. New doors have been placed at the entrance of the station, and the main floor has been reinforced, a new concrete run has been laid on the Railroad street side. The interior of the firemen's room has been painted and an entrance made from the firemen's room to the main quarters.

The hand hose wagon that was built in 1876 for the Norwich fire department and later purchased by the Baltic company is a relic of by-gone days. It will be sold with the hook and ladder truck (a later model) by the Sprague selectmen.

The Baltic fire department received its charter in 1867. The firemen are planning to hold tests at regular intervals, and it is expected that they will not be long in gaining a high rating in efficiency. Chief Stanton complimented the Baltic firement on the high class fire fighting apparatus. The officers of the Baltict department comprises Thomas F. Kelley, chief; Eddie Lambert, deputy chief; Charles F. Charon, foreman; John McGuire, secretary and treasurer, John McGuire will operate the pumper and John Drescher and Joseph Fournier will be his assistants. The pumper under full pressure will throw a stream 200 feet high.

The members of the Sprague board of finance are William G. Park, William E. Yeing, Noe I. Caron, John Conway, Louis J. Fontaine, Joseph W. Willington and Moses Genard.

Owing to the absence of Chief Kelley, Deputy Chief Lambert was in charge of the Baltic department, for the test.

STATEMENT BY MRS. MINNIE MADDEN FISKE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske, noted actress, issued the following statement here tonight when informed that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh had attended two bull fights in Mexico City.

"As a director of the American Humane association, I regret, of course, that Colonel Lindbergh attended bull fights in Mexico City.

"It is too bad, because everyone who know Colonel Lindbergh can feel sure that he did not enjoy it. Leaders of our cause appreciate his having been placed in a difficult position.

"His friend, Will Rogers, was not inhibited from expressing his emotions at the spectacle."

It is estimated that there are 150,000 caribou and 50,000 mountain sheep in the Mt. McKinley national park, Alaska.

Rev. William A. Keefe, the pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, officiated at the 7:30 o'clock mass Sunday morning. He gave an interesting sermon on the Christmas spirit. In his announcements Father Keefe stated that the masses on next Sunday, Christmas, would be at 6 o'clock, 7:30, 9, and 10:30 and to accomodate the many parishioners that would like to receive the Sacrament of Penance confessions will be heard Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Requiem masses offered at St. Mary's Memorial church last week by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe, were the following: On Monday morning for Mrs. William O'Brien, Wednesday for Russell E. Burdick, Thursday for Mrs. Annie Hour Holland, Saturday morning for the late John Burns. On Tuesday morning at 7:30 an anniversary mass of requiem was offered for Mrs. Patrick Mitchell by the curate, Rev. Frederick M. Cohoian.

Many of the local people were taking pictures Sunday of the Greenville dam which is at present a very picturesque sight owing to the high water coming over the dam. It is coming with such force that when it strikes the bottom apron it sends up sprays and with the sun hitting the water, many colors can be seen. The Shetucket river is now running fully as high as it did during the time of the New England floods a few weeks ago. The cause of the recent rise of the river was the heavy rainfall of last Thursday.

NORWICH TOWN

SUPT. JOHN DUFF'S WIDOW TO RESIDE IN CHICAGO

Mrs. John Duff, has left Norwich for Chicago, where her son Edward Duff has obtained a permanent position. Mrs. Duff departed with the best wishes of a host of friends for the new home which her son has prepared for her. A former Norwich resident, Mrs. Duff has resided in Groton for several years since the death of her husband, having for the past three months since breaking up her home in Groton, made her home with Mrs. Martha Hunt.

The late John Duff, was the first efficient superintendent of Mohegan park, serving for a number of years. During that period, he assisted in laying out the park, many of the present attractions and beauty spots being originated by him. Mr. Duff was also influential in getting animals and birds to stock the park.

Beautiful Tree At Lunch Cart.

DUWELL CLUB HOST TO OVER 700 CHILDREN AT PALACE THEATRE

Over 1,000 people, including 700 children, 71 from the New London county home, were present Sunday afternoon at the Palace theatre for the third annual Christmas party under the auspices of the Duwell Athletic association. The programme included a comedy picture, several entertainment features by local talent, appearance of Santa Claus and the distribution of gifts, all of which were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. The affair, as a whole, was a success in every way and much favorable comment was heard on the splendid entertainment.

The programme was opened at 2 o'clock, at which time Manager Fink of the Palace theatre introduced His Honor, Mayor Milo Waters, who delivered a short address of welcome. Mayor Waters complimented the Duwell club and Manager Fink, concluding his talk with the request that three cheers be offered for the club and the theatre.

The first feature of the programme was the showing of the comedy reel, "Good Cheer", an Our Gang comedy, which was followed by several clog dancing numbers by Miss Lucille Gross and Miss Mary Galligan, who cleverly interpreted the dance numbers. Indian dances by Reginald Laubin and Miss Gladys Tortoiseshell, both in full Indian costume, were given to the delight of the audience. Their numbers were Sioux, Great Plains War dance and Oglalla Sioux Buffalo dance. A wee bit o' Scotch was presented by Alex Finlayson in his inimitable manner, his offerings being Scotch stories and songs.

A trip into the land of magic, a laugh provoker where there are children, delighted the audience, the trip being taken with Prof. William Banfield at the helm. His various magical tricks kept the children in mystery for twenty minutes, Mr. Banfield concluding his fine presentation by passing among the audience, haphazardly picking coins from the children's pockets. The concluding number on this programme was the Songs and Stories by Edward Connelly, who had the children in a continuous round of laughter.

This was followed by the lifting of the curtain revealing a living room setting with the Christmas tree near the fireplace. During the curtain raising the sleigh bells were heard and Santa Claus appeared through the fireplace. A short talk by Santa Claus preceded the distribution of Christmas packages about the size of the average shoe box. The packages contained one pound of Christmas candy, apple, orange, banana and mixed nuts.

The 700 children, who attended the party, ranged in ages from 1 to 14 and were children from the East Side, invitations having been distributed to all the youngsters of the Bishop school and to those residing on the East Side and attending other schols. Included in the number were the 71 children from the New London County home, Miss Gibson, matron, who were the guests of the club, this marking the first appearance of the county home children at the annual Duwell Chistmas celebration. The front section of the theatre was reserved for the children, while the adults had seats in the rear.

The Duwell club are grateful to Manager Fink for so kindly donating the use of the theatre and for assisting in any way to make the affair the success it was; also the entertainers, theatre orchestra, theatre employes and the general public.

The committee in charge comprised George Gross, chairman, Peter Barber, William Shanley, John Williamson, Walter Carrigan and James Pedace. Several Duwell members acted as ushers and assisted Santa Claus in the distribution of gifts. A fine programme was rendered by the Palace theatre orchestra.

BUSINESS SECTION TAKES ON HOLIDAY APPEARANCE

The business section of the city has assumed a characteristic Christmas appearance with the erection of strings of varicolored lights strung about the principal business blocks. This work was completed by employes of the Norwich gas and electrical department and adds considerably to the seasonal atmosphere. The stringers of more than 250 lights adorn the Boston store to the Disco building, Cosgrove's shoe store to the Thayer building and from the corner of Frank and Main streets to the Mohican company.

MONSIGNOR MAY'S TEXT FROM ADVENT GOSPEL

"And all flesh shall see the salvation of God," the concluding sentence from the gospel for the fourth and last Sunday of Advent which he had just read, Luke 3. 1-6, was the text developed by the rector of St. Patrick's church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, preaching to a great congregation at 7:30 Sunday morning. This is the gospel which accentuates the mission of John the Baptist in preaching the baptism of penance for the remission of sins."

All mankind is called to gain salvation, all may attain it, unless men themselves reject the great gift. From earliest childhood Catholics are taught to know and love Christ and this teaching is continued by the church, which provides the aid of the sacraments for man's assistance. We are given the capacity for loving God that we may attain salvation. There is in all hearts, if fostered, a craving for the Beatific Vision. We see Christ in art, pictured, in statues, but the object, the aim, the ambition of the Christian is to see, not a pictured God, but to behold Him as He really is—to see Him face to face.

This desire may be attained if only our lives are so squared with the life of the Saviour that we make ourselves Christlike. The preacher expressed the conviction that if such had been the aim of his hearers during the four weeks of Advent they would be worthy to fittingly celebrate Christmas. Had theirs been the desire for "what all flesh seeks"—salvation, to love God, to follow Jesus, to save their souls, they would have the assurance of being prepared not only to welcome the Redeemer coming as the Babe of Bethlehem, but the sure hope of one day seeing Him face to face.

Monsignor May and his assistant, Rev. Myles P. Galvin administered Christmas holy communion to a large proportion of the congregation. The parish organization receiving the Eucharist was the Rosary society, Mrs. Jeremiah Lynch, president.

Monsignor May announced four masses on Sunday next, Christmas day—at 5:30 (high mass), 7:30, 9 and 10:30 (solemn high.) Saturday, the vigil of Christmas is a fasting day for those of the age and condition to fast.

The offertory at all the masses Christmas is the one personal offering during the year which the people make their priests. In referring to this offering Monsignor May stated that he felt certain the parishioners would live up to their old-time record for generosity which had made them noted throughout the Diocese of Hartford.

GRAVE FEARS FOR MEN IN SUNKEN SUB AS GALE FRUSTRATES RESCUE WORKERS; EXHAUSTION OF OXYGEN IS FEARED

The Six Survivors Reported Only Enough Oxygen to Last Until 6 P. M. Yesterday—The Air Line, Through Which the Agonized Men Might Have Means to Breathe, Has Ceased to Function—At 2 P. M. Yesterday Communication Was Conducted Through the "Oscillating Gear"—Five Vessels in Forty Mile Wind Are Standing By Awaiting Storm to Abate—At 4:45 a Message From the S-4 Asked "Is There Any Hope?"

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 19—(AP)—Six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4 tonight reached the hour they had set as the last that they could survive unless help reached them.

In a message tapped out in international code on the steel hull of their prison more than 100 feet below the surface of the ocean, they sent word to the S-8, sister ship of the S-4, that they had enough oxygen to last only until six o'clock tonight. When the message was picked up by the oscillator of the S-8, the rescue fleet was standing by, but was powerless to aid.

Efforts to pump air into the ill-fated S-4 had previously failed, and the six men's hope of life depended entirely on how long their own supply of oxygen would last.

Divers were unable to go down to the sunken submarine today because of the heavy seas and because the Falcon, a mine-sweeper used as the base of the diving operations, was obliged to go to Boston. The six survivors were able, however, to maintain communication with the surface by rappings which were recorded by the oscillator of the S-8.

"What is being done for us?" was the question uppermost in the minds of the men, although their comrades on the S-8 said that the six who are known to be alive out of the crew of 40 were showing extraordinary pluck and had not abandoned hope.

The naval authorities on the Falcon tonight were considering the possibility of raising the bow of the S-4 immediately. They have three pontoons in Provincetown harbor available for the work. Ellsberg said he thought it would be possible to raise the front of the submarine with two pontoons, because of the fact that the forward compartment was not filled with water. Each pontoon is capable of raising 120 tons. Twice this number would be considerably more than the weight of the airfilled front compartment. If only two pontoons are needed to bring the front end to the surface, it would mean that only one chain would have to be placed around the S-4 and connected to the pontoons, an operation that might, with favorable conditions, be completed in a day's time, Ellsberg said. Once the front end was out of water, a hole could be cut in the boat's hull and rescue work could proceed.

The rough sea which hampered rescue ships today will not hold up diving work, Ellsberg said, although progress will naturally be retarded.

FIVE VESSELS AT SCENE AWAIT ABATEMENT OF GALE

ABOARD U. S. C. G. CUTTER TAMPA, PROVINCETOWN HARBOR, Mass., Dec. 19—(By Tropical Radio to The Associated Press)—Three ships and two submarines tossed at anchor in the harbor here this afternoon within sight of the spot where the ill-fated S-4 plunged to the bottom two days ago, balked in their attempts at rescue by a rolling sea kicked up by a frost-borne gale.

Standing by, were the submarine tender Bushnell, the mine-sweepers Mallard and Lark and the submarines S-3 and S-8. The two sister ships of the sunken submarine unable temporarily, from doing anything for the rescue of their imprisoned companions sought to buoy up the hopes of any men who might be alive in the wrecked boat by constant efforts to reach them by signals from the oscillating telegraph. Little could be told from the Tampa, at anchor in the harbor of what was going on aboard the vessel outside and whether news of any kind was coming from the ocean bed was uncertain. Pontoons intended for use in raising the S-4 arrived in the harbor this afternoon in tow of the tug Sagamore. There was little prospect that anything could be done with them tonight in the rough sea that was rolling outside the point.

A visit by a patrol boat to the spot where the S-4 went down showed the five vessels at anchor and bearing evidence of the conditions under which the work is being attempted. Decks and super-structures were coated in ice while a gale that gave no prospect of letting up tossed the ships about on tautened cables. Aboard the Bush-

DEATH SHIP WAS BURNED TO FOIL THE DEVILS

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 19—(AP)—To foil the devils which Japanese seafaring men were convinced brought her misfortune, the "death ship", Ryo Yei Maru, has been consigned to the flames.

The vessel, a fishing smack, drifted on the broad Pacific eleven months while her crew of 12 Nipponese fishermen sickened, starved and died.

The Ryo-Yei, valued at about $17,000, was secretly towed to an isolated beach on Puget sound yesterday, her hold filled with waste and soaked with oil, set afire and reduced to a mass of smouldering ashes and twisted metal.

It had been planned to ship the Ryo-Yei back to Japan and arrangements were made to place the 85-foot boat on the after-deck of an American mail liner for the return voyage, but the plans were cancelled when it was learned that the families of the unfortunate fishermen did not want her returned.

The fisher folk of Misahi, Japan, where the ship was built, were convinced that evil spirits had taken possession of the ship and her return to Japan might bring other calamities.

The Ryo-Yei was sighted off the Washington coast last October 31. She had set sail on a fishing trip from Japan, December 5, 1926 The last survivors of the crew died in May, 1927, a diary found aboard the vessel revealed.

Five New Cardinals Are All Non-Italians

College of Cardinals Now Equally Divided Among Italians and Non-Italians, 33 of Each.

ROME, Dec. 19—(AP)—Pope Pius today created five new cardinals, all non-Italians, thus dividing the College of Cardinals equally among Italians and non-Italians, there are now 33 of each.

The pontiff at the same secret consistory at which the [illegible] were created also delivered [illegible] allocution, which caus[illegible] surprise because it did not [illegible] various problems now cla[illegible] attention of the Catholic w[illegible] dealt only with the deaths [illegible] cardinals which took [illegible] the last consistory and [illegible] nation of Cardinal Billot.

It [illegible] the pontiff did not wish to re[illegible] to the so-called Roman question, in which much interest has centered, because the problem is now the object of negotiations between the Vatican and the Italian government. It also is thought that he did not mention the attitude of the Holy See toward the French royalists and L'Action Francaise because he hopes that time may heal the wound.

Not having referred to these questions, it is believed that the pontiff refrained also from referring to the Mexican question lest by talking of the latter, he should emphasize his silence on the former.

The following new cardinals were created: Alevis Henry Lepicier, a Servite, who will remain in Rome as cardinal of Curia, replacing Cardinal Billiot; Raymond M. Rouleau, belonging to the Order of Preachers now archbishop of Quebec; Pedro Segura Y Saenz, archbishop of Burgos, who is simultaneously appointed archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain; Henry Charles Joseph Binet, archbishop of Besancon, and Justinian Szeroedyi, belonging to the Benedictine Order, who has been living in Rome for many years but was this morning appointed archbishop of Gran, Esztergom, thus becoming primate of Hungary.

Today's ceremony had a special interest owing to the fact that three of the five cardinals created by the pontiff belong to religious orders

The hall of the consistory was at first filled by the highest dignitaries of the church, including cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops, bishops.

After Pope Pius appeared, everybody left the hall except the pontiff and the cardinals, and the doors of the Consistorial hall were closed.

Then Pius XI, speaking in Latin, enumerated the prelates whom he intended to raise to the purple, praised their virtues and attainments, and ended with the formal question—a relic of the days when the consent of cardinals was necessary for the appointment—"Do you, members of the Sacred college—'quae quis vidistis?' or "Has anyone aught to say?"

The head of the church repeated the same question for each nominee to the cardinalate, asking the opinion of each cardinal, who, however, is not expected to reply, the raising of his red cap being taken as a sign of assent.

The pope then officially proclaimed the new cardinals.

REMUS PLEADS FOR FREEDOM OR THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Terming himself the defender of his honor and the sanctity of his home, George Remus, on trial for slaying his wife incognito, today concluded the final plea in his own behalf with the request that the jury, which for five weeks had heard his defense of "transitory manical insanity," free him or send him to the electric chair.

"If you folks feel that under your sworn duty, he shall be electrocuted, do your duty and the defendant will not flinch," cried Remus.

"He stands before you the defender of his honor and the sanctity of his home. If that is a crime punish him.

"I thank you. Merry Christmas to you."

It was only right at the end of a plea of nearly two hours that the shouting, leaping, parading, gesticulating Remus hung his sentences together in continuity of expressed thought.

For the most part he wandered from point to point of the huge record of nearly 1,000,000 words of evidence, discussed the prohibition law, attacked the prosecutors, talked of his own record as a Chicago lawyer, Chief Justic Taft, father of Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, II, the virtues of womanhood, and scores of other subjects. Twice he discussed "transitory maniacal insanity."

Snow Blanket Covers Southern Europe

White Flakes Fell in Naples For Several Hours—Zero Weather in the South of France.

PARIS, Dec. 19—(AP)—A cold wave extending from London to Rome and beyond brought unaccustomed snow today to southern Europe.

Nice, Cannes, Monte Carlo, and even Naples, were overspread with white blankets. The Riviera, jealous of its reputation as the land of perpetual summer, tried to conceal the news but it leaked out.

An inch of snow covered the Forum and Constantine's monument, as well as other ancient monuments in and fields in the vicinity of Rome. Newspapers printed photographs of the snow scenes as a novelty. The white flakes fell in Naples for several hours yesterday and a heavy fall was reported in the Italian mountains.

Cannes had three inches of snow today and other towns along the French Mediterranean coast were seeing it for the first time within the recollection of inhabitants.

Further north Jack Frost rode a wind from the northwest, bringing the temperature as low as zero in some parts of sunny France. The weather is regarded as the most severe in fifteen years.

DEATH OF KING OF THE HOUSE OF DAVID COLONY

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Although silent in death—death that overtook him last Friday and became known only today—the spirit of Benjamin Purnell, self styled seventh messenger and king of the House of David Colony, still rules the faithful of the cult.

All that is mortal of the man who taught his followers that he was immortal rested tonight on an iron cot in his chambers in Shiloh, the administration building of the House of David. But the faithful still believe in Purnell's teachings and await the rising from the dead, which they assert will take place before the fourth day of his demise.

So firm were they in their conviction that though Purnell's temporal rule had ended he would rise from the dead, that they pleaded with health officials to leave his body untouched for at least another 24 hours. "Give us until the fourth day" H. T. Dewhirst, Colony counsel and devout follower of Purnell, pleaded with Dr. F. J. Donna, health officer of Benton township.

Benjamin cannot die, Dewhirst declared, and asserted that he would arise, if not today—the third day since death overtook him—then tomorrow. "Lazarus arose on the fourth day" he said. Dr. Donna, after an examination, granted the additional delay.

Since 11:30 o'clock last Friday morning, when Dr. C. E. Bowers, Colony physician, found Purnell dead, the "King's" body has not been touched. Aside from their belief that Purnell will arise, it is against the Colony teachings to touch the dead.

It was Purnell's teaching that he had been chosen to lead 144,000 of the elect to everlasting life on earth.

In death, Purnell, who successfully fought the law with Dewhirst's aid, in various civil actions, defeated it in two criminal actions, the latter two actions soon were to have been brought to hearings, with two young women, former members of his colony, as the complaining witnesses. Only a few weeks ago Purnell's Colony had been ordered into receivership by Judge Louis H. Fead, of the circuit court, and Benjamin himself was ordered banished from the Colony.

SUSPECTS HELD FOR THE MURDER OF MARIAN PARKER

Police Have Discovered a Mystery House, Believed to Have Been the Scene of the Killing of the 12 Year Old Los Angeles Girl—A Chrysler Coupe, Used When the Fiend Delivered the Child's Body to Her Father, Was Found in a Parking Lot—A Reward of $100,000 For the Capture of the Murderer May Develop From Subsription.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19—(AP)—Discovery of a mystery house, believed to have been the scene of the killing of 12-year-old Marian Parker, the finding of the motor car used in transporting parts of her mutilated body and the arrest of several suspects, including a woman, were the tangible results today of an intensive hunt for the kidnaper and slayer of the school girl.

A raid by the police early today on a two-story house in the same block where the kidnaper delivered the child's head and torso to her father, Perry M. Parker, bank official, Saturday night, in exchange for a ramson of $1,500, disclosed evidence that the girl had been put to death there and her body dismembered.

Mrs. Lillian Padley, 23, was arrested at the address after police had been told a woman was seen running up and down the street yelling:

"I didn't kill her. I didn't kill her; they did it."

William Long was found in the house in an intoxicated condition but was released pending after questioning.

Within the house police discovered towels that appeared to be blood-stained, and dark stains on a carpet. Several razor blades were found and on the wall was a picture of Judas Iscariot, who was mentioned in some of the ransom letters sent by the kidnaper to Marian's father.

Earl Smith, 23, son of a dentist, who was acquainted with Marian and had been forbidden to see her by her parents, was one of the men suspects held.

Another was Gaylord Barnaman, 24, who was placed under arrest after he had telephoned to radio stations representing himself as the kidnaper and inquired about reward money.

Investigators were inclined to believe that Barnaman was a "crank" and that he had no connection with the killing.

The automobile, a Chrysler coupe, found in a parking lot near where the mysterious killer delivered the child's body to her father, was stolen November 7 from Dr. Herbert L. Mantz of Kansas City at the point of a pistol. On December 6, license plates were stolen from a Ford coupe in San Diego. The automobile reappeared in os Angeles at noon last Thursday in front of the Mount Vernon Junior High school, from which its pilot drove away with Marian Parker—kidnaped.

The same car bore the little girl's remains last Saturday night to a rendezvous on South Manhattan place with her father and from it the killer threw the child's body into the street after receiving the $1,500.

The car fell into the hands of the police when investigators located it in the parking lot.

A reward of $100,000 for the fiend who murdered the "Tom Boy" of the Mount Vernon Junior High seemed probable as persons in all parts of the state, including members of the Hollywood movie colony, pledged subscriptions. The city of Los Angeles voted to add $10,000 to the steadily mounting reward and the state added $1,000, the limit for a single reward under state laws.

Those whose interest in the case surmounted their financial ability auctioned off pet dogs, canaries—anything available—in order to swell the fund.

The formality of a coroner's inquest was gone through with but the father and mother were spared the ordeal of testifying. The only ones to testify were Dr. A. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon, and Mrs. Mary Holt, school attendance supervisor who permitted Marian to accompany the kidnaper when he called at the school last Thursday.

Dr. Wagner, who lives next door to the Parkers and often talked to Marian or gave her candy, fought back tears while he described the broken body of the little girl.

"I believe she was killed Saturday," he said in trembling voice, "but I am not certain. I don't know yet just what caused death. All I can say is that she was brutally murdered. She may have been strangled to death or she may have been poisoned. It may be that death came when the murderer cut her to pieces."

Mrs. Holt was asked if she suspected anything wrong when a man came to the school and asked that Marian accompany him to where the girl's father had been injured.

"Oh, my, no," she answered. "If I had I would never allowed have Marian to go."

She testined that the man said he "wanted Parker's daughter." "Well, there are two of them," the witness said she told him. "He (the father) wants the younger one," she quoted the kidnaper.

"He was permited to take Marian, the smaller of the twins, when he told Mrs. Holt he worked in the bank with Parker, who was assistant cashier of the Los Angeles First National Trust and Savings bank.

The jury's verdict was:

"We find the deceased, Marian Parker, came to her death by being brutally murdered by some person or persons unknown to this jury, and the body dismembered with homicidal intent."

No let-up in the intensive manhunt which has gripped all southern California was apparent tonight. Thousands of detectives and deputized citizens continued the combing of the countryside and the slightest suspicious move on the part of any man was the signal for his detention.

SEVERE CONDEMNATION OF WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A severe condemnation of William Randolph Hearst for publishing in his newspapers documents purporting to show the creation of a $1,215,000 Mexican fund for four United States senators was read to the senate today from one of the four accused—Norris, of Nebraska—as members of the investigating committee took steps to clear the names of all four.

An open letter from Senator Norris, ill at home, to Mr. Hearst declaring him "not only unfair and dishonest but entirely without honor," in publishing the documents even with the names of the Senators deleted was the signal for the first senate discussion of the case since the special inquiry opened last Thursday.

As the last of the outspoken words of Norris' letter were read, four of the five members of the investigating committee one by one took the floor to report that no evidence had been found that any of the four senators—Norris, Borah of Idaho; Heflin of Alabama; and Lafollette of Wisconsin—had received a cent or even had been approached in connection with the alleged Mexican fund.

REIGN OF TERROR AMONG BOLSHEVISTS IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Nationalist efforts to purge their territory of Bolshevism and its agents appear to have been followed by a reign of terror taking the form of wholesale evictions, executions, and migration.

While some tales of horror and brutality eminating chiefly from Canton, the center of anti-Red activities, may be exaggerated, there seems to be little doubt that extremely violent methods used to crush Bolshevism and expell its exponents have reacted on the peacable Chinese population. Natives in the affected districts fearing to be counfounded with those suspected of Bolshevists leanings, are seeking asylum by the thousand in Hongkong.

News of the execution in one group of 600 Chinese suspected of being communists came from Canton today. The Soviet vice consul was reported to be among those executed.

COL. LINDBERGH GUEST OF MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 19—(AP)—Mexico showed Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh its loveliest today—music, sunshine, flowers, lovely lakes and the mighty mountains.

As guest of the Mexico City municipal council, Colonel Lindbergh spent most of the day at Xochimilco or the "floating gardens," a lake resort some twelve miles distant, floating in flower bedecked gondola through canals and lakes crowded with picnickers who cheered him and generously pelted him with freshly gathered pansies and roses.

"And to think there is snow and ice at home," was Colonel Lindbergh's first comment on the gorgeous spectacle as the gondola made its way along the channels with bare-footed Indians lining the banks on either side and applauding at the top of their voices.

The total exports from New England were valued at $51,069,423, an increase of more than $1,000,000 over a similar period of 1926.

FRIGHTENED FROM HOME BY THREATENING LETTER

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 19—(AP)—Frightened away from the house which he owned and occupied by a threatening letter, Rocco de Maio, of Highwood, was either in hiding or had been spirited away tonight—police were uncertain which.

De Maio appeared early today at the factory where he is employed, and told his foreman that he would not be able to work as he was moving from his own house at 36 Whiting street, Highwood, to a rented house at 19 Auburn street, this city, because of a note which he received and in which he had been warned to move or forfeit his life.

The foreman communicated with the Highwood police and they went in search of De Maio only to find his Whiting street house vacant. New Haven police were then asked to look him up for particulars on the threatening letter. The police found his furniture at 19 Auburn street but neither De Maio nor any member of his family were about and have not shown up since.

KIDNAPPING THREAT WAS MADE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—(AP)—With the receipt of a third letter threatening to kidnap seven-year-old Herbert Debs, son of E. R. Debs, wealthy Chicago manufacturer, unless $50000 is paid, the police doubled the guard about the boy today.

The three letters have been written on the same stationery and by the same hand, the police said, and detectives were detailed to guard the Debs home and office on the south side.

Neighbors said they had seen two men in an automobile watching the child constantly while he played near their home. Arrangements are being made to send Herbert and the other Debs children out of the city.

C. OF C. DRIVE EXCEEDS GOAL OF $7,500 BY $400

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 19—An oversubscription of $435 was allowed at noon today when preliminary reports were made through the captains of about 100 team workers in the drive for a reorganization of the chamber of commerce and securing a paid secretary. Although the amount fixed as a goal, $7,500, was far from being on a scale even to be compared with amounts raised through public drive here for other community welfare causes, the workers found that public sentiment never appeared so unanimously favorable to any project as it has been shown in this campaign. With the adjournment of the luncheon-meeting this noon and the "chalking" up of the gratifying report, the field was thrown open for general canvassing and the workers started out with added enthusiasm in an effort to reach the $10,000 mark before the closing meeting Tuesday evening. This final dinner will be held at 6.15 o'clock in the Nathan Hale hotel. At this noon's meeting it was voted that all subscriptions in excess of $50 be credited to the executive committee which is headed by E. Frank Bugbee, William P. Jordan and Frank P. Fenton, president of the chamber. Edward G. Kenney, a team captain, announced that he held a tentative subscription from the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small stock association of $100 to be given in the event that the association's exposition at the state armory next month culminates as a success.

Reports of the team captains and the executive committee, giving the number of subscriptions and the total subscriptions up to noon today follow: Team No. 1, Roland B. Jordan, captain, 29 subscriptions for $520; No. 2, Joseph B. Riordan, captain, 18 for $340; No. 3, Louis H. Arnold, captain, 41 for $760; No. 4, Kenneth N. Hillhouse, captain, 24 for $305; No. 5, Edward G. Kenney, captain, 30 for $555; No. 6, Stanley J. Sumner, captain, 39 for $460; No. 7, Nelson A. Daniels, captain, 40 for $605; No. 8, Raymond A. Parker, captain, 30 for $590; No. 9, George W. Hickey, captain, 28 for $465; No. 10, P. J. Laramee, captain, 34 for $440; executive committee, E. Frank Bugbee and William P. Jordan, chairman, 28 for $2,925. The total amount at noon was $7,935.

Postmaster Frank M. Smith stated today that over 300 sacks of Christmas mail and scores of sacks of first class mail had been received between 1.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon and the two morning trains this morning. Two men remained on duty all day Sunday sorting out larger packages to assist in today's work. The carriers were, nevertheless, late in starting out on their routes this morning and this condition is likely to continue for the remainder of the week. Substitute Clerk Louis Medbury has been called in to assist at the office and Fred LeClair and his four ton auto truck have been secured in assisting in parcel post mail delivery starting Wednesday morning.

Two cases of liquor law violations resulting from week end raids, were continued at the session of police court this morning. The case of Daniel Wack, 28, charged with keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell was continued to Saturday, January 7, and the similar case of Joseph Serwenski, 33, was postponed to Saturday of this week.

Two cases of violations of the motor vehicle laws were brought up at the police court session this morning. Patrick Haggerty of this city was charged with failure to report or return motor vehicle certificate and number plates to the commissioner upon sale of a car. He was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $9.52. Ralph Leo of Putnam was scheduled to be heard on a similar offense but he was not present and it was believed that he was confused as to the place of arraignment between Columbia and this city. The case was continued to allow Police Chief Grady time to communicate with the Putnam man. Both arrests were made by State Policeman Frank A. Starkey of the Stafford Springs barracks.

An increase in the size of the popular ice-skating rink furnished for public use by the American Thread company at Recreation park, was announced today by Don H. Curtis, agent of the Willimantic mills. The rink is now in the process of flooding and another day of temperature such as was experienced today will make the ice safe for skating.

Funeral services for George A. Taft were held at two o'clock this afternoon at 62 Church street, Rev. John H. Knott of Chaplin officiated. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Archie Rood, Frank Rood, John Marcoux and Edward Champlin.

Willimantic is affected by a change of train schedules between here and New Haven over the Air Line division, the change becoming effective today. Mixed train No. 1014, formerly leaving New Haven on week days at 6.50 a. m. for this city, now leaves at 6.30 a. m. and returns to New Haven from here as No. 1025 at 9.38 a. m., instead of 10 a. m. as in the past. The new schedule for train No. 1025 to Amston is now as follows: Leave Willimantic at 9.38 a. m., Chestnut Hill 9.58, Leonard Bridge 10.06 (flag), due Amston 10.13; leave Amston for New Haven at 11.35 a. m.

The funeral was held at 11 o'clock this forenoon of Jacob Rosen, eight months' old child of Mr. and Mrs. Haskel Rosen of 292 Windham Road who died from pneumonia. Burial was in the Hebrew cemetery at Perkins' Corner with arrangements in charge of Killourey Brothers assisted by Wolfe osen.

Verification was made at the Willimantic office of the American Thread company today of a Holyoke, Mass., dispatch which stated that the shuttle process department had been transferred from here to the Holyoke mills, the process entailing the employment of about 100 hands.

COASTING RESTRICTIONS

Opinions may vary as to whether we have been fortunate in having so little snow thus far this winter, but it is nevertheless the fact that the snowfall has been light. This means, of course, that there is plenty yet to come and in anticipation of it the coasting in the highways which inevitably follows has been getting attention in numerous cities in this part of the country.

In recent years, because of the increase in motor vehicle traffic, there have been many coasting accidents and fatalities where children have been using the streets for sliding. This is particularly true where coasting hills have intersecting highways with traffic giving little or no heed to the coasters and the coasters unable to avoid motor or horse drawn vehicles and electric cars. So serious has the situation become that two courses have been resorted to. Either coasting has been prohibited because of the danger involved, or where it is possible hills have been restricted during certain hours to use by the coasters only.

Such action means that steps are being taken for the protection of lives. Experience having taught that accidents might be expected, the authorities have anticipated the situation and acted without waiting for someone to be killed before applying restrictions. It is always better to be safe than sorry. It is preferable that there should be no sliding than to tolerate it and invite accidents. Last year Connecticut had a series of such fatalities about the state, and the same was true in other states where preventive measures were not adopted.

With some of the cities in states to the north issuing their orders concerning coasting or the restrictions it indicates the desirability of such action so as to be in readiness for the coasting season.

If there are streets which can be closed to traffic without serious difficulties for certain hours it is a commendable move, if that is not possible without interfering with public convenience sliding will have to be prohibited at such points.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

It is an old story that there are many people who refuse to accept and follow the advice that is given them. This is often due to the fact that they do not attach sufficient importance to the advice and because they are given to neglecting matters where prevention is called for.

Probably the situation in the town of West Warwick, R. I., is no different than in many other towns and cities, but there's no escaping the fact that it indicates a surprising disregard for the efforts which are being made for better health among children.

In the schools of that town the children are examined to determine their general health, the condition of their teeth, the efficiency of their sight and hearing in the belief that good physical condition is necessary for the proper educational progress, and that correction of defects will be easier at that time than later. The parents are given reports of the examinations. Nevertheless, the school superintendent makes the report that "about 33 per cent. of the parents notified give notice of defects no consideration. The other 67 per cent. are either careless about the future welfare of their children or are too poor to meet the obligation."

This means of course that two thirds of the cases are neglected. Some parents are skeptical about the necessity of following advice under such circumstances. There are those who cannot afford it and there are those who say, "Why, I didn't require any such treatment and I guess my children are as healthy as I was."

The importance of prevention in regard to health cannot be ignored without some thought being given to the results of such an attitude. No one will deny the importance of getting a verification of such school examination reports. Prevention relative to the ill health of children is important. Correction of bad teeth, bad eyesight, bad hearing or other troubles cannot be expected to be accomplished through negligence. If timely attention means the avoidance of much more serious conditions later on the removal of handicaps and suffering should at least get the attention of parents.

DESERVED CONFIRMATIONS

When it comes to the confirmation of appointments made by the president there's no telling what the senate will do. Often it is the case that the choice of high grade men results in opposition for the purpose of obstruction and embarassment. Such was predicted in connection with the selection of Dwight W. Morrow as ambassador to Mexico, but for some reason or other, possibly because it was found to be impossible to carry it through, it failed to materialize.

The selection of Mr. Morrow was regarded throughout the country as the right man for the place. He possesses the ability and tact to fill the post and he is in complete sympathy with the administration's point of view. Because he was connected with a banking house in Wall street when appointed furnishes no overwhelming excuse for being opposed. He was selected because it was believed he was the man needed, regardless of what work he was engaged in at that time. His reception and activities in Mexico since being named have served to substantiate that belief. The folly of trying to prevent the approval of such an appointment must have been recognized by those harboring such an idea.

By the confirmation of Ambassador Morrow and the appointments of Henry L. Stimson as governor general of the Philippines and Nobel B. Judah as ambassador to Cuba the senate has acted wisely and well. It has done what was expected of it. The president selected men of outstanding qualifications for special work and the senate has consented to give them a chance to do it.

This doesn't mean by any means that those in the senate who can be relied upon to take an opposition position from the president or the administration are in full sympathy with administration policies. Rather does it indicate that they found their attitude of opposition so badly upset by the high class of the appointees that they could accomplish nothing by trying to prevent confirmation and contented themselves by remaining silent, or passively opposing, when the vote was taken. If such appointments could not be confirmed it would be hopeless to expect any better.

SUBMARINE RAISING

Much advice is being offered concerning the raising of the S-4, or the rescue of the imprisoned men. It comes from some who have given long study to such a type of vessel and understand its construction. It comes from others who are basing their ideas upon general principles and the conditions as represented in the news reports.

Those struggling with the actual conditions, accompanied by the handicaps of weather and other things, are faced with a hard problem. They are in a race with death and are making use of all facilities for meeting the situation. Whether they succeed depends upon the endurance of those who are trapped like rats and upon the ability to either raise the vessel or get air and food to the men.

In the meantime it will not come amiss if there is a compilation of this advice which is being furnished gratis for consideration at some future time in meeting this very situation. It is evident that there should be means available for getting the pontoons into place and the lifting process underway more rapidly. Several instances have demonstrated the need of anticipating similar rescue work because of danger of future sinkings from one cause or another. Equipment for this work should be available at many points, and if, as Lieut. Commander Ellsberg claims, there should be outside construction on submarines that will facilitate the raising of sunken subs let the matter get serious consideration. Whatever can be done in advance to prevent the waste of precious time under such circumstances as those prevailing off Provincetown should most certainly be provided.

FLOOD CONTROL EXPENSE

It was inevitable that there would be those who would offer their opposition to the proposals concerning the flood control work in the Mississippi valley as recommended by the engineers' report and as advocated by the president in his message to congress.

Chairman Martineau of the tristate executive flood control committee, who is also governor of Arkansas, maintains that the plan of the army engineers to have the outlay in connection with such work borne both by the federal government and the states involved is unjust because the communities could not meet the expense that would fall upon them.

That might be the case if they were required to make the outlay at once and in a lump sum, but that isn't to be required. The whole expenditure is intended to cover a period of ten years involving a sum of nearly $300,000,000. For the improvement of navigation the government would foot the entire bill of more than $110,000,000. The states affected would be called upon to pay only 20 per cent. of the flood control expense, amounting in all for those states to about $37,000,000. Divided among them and over a period of ten years that would impose no impossible burden.

This is a matter in which the states that are in danger of floods are vitally interested, and they should be interested in seeing that proper economic safeguards are established by having a part in insuring their own protection. Probably there will be other opposition to the engineers' report, but a consideration of the problem from all angles must be given before action is taken upon it.

Have no fear, such efforts as the government plans for drying up of Erie and Ontario next year has no reference to the waters of those lakes.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Congressman Freeman of Connecticut will fight for state rights in the matter of sending films of prize fights from state to state, now forbidden by law. Mr. Freeman has before congress a bill to repeal that law, on the ground that states have full power to prevent exhibition of such films, that it is an infringement of state rights to prevent other states from so doing, if they wish to have the films thrown on the screen.

The comment made by Senator McLean on the failure to seat Smith and Vare is being widely quoted here. In his forceful speech on the floor of the senate Mr. McLean said: "It is a case of senate lynch law." Mr. McLean is just now enjoying the same tiye of prestige that came to the president after his "I do not choose to be a candidate" statement at the Black Hills. Mr. McLean this week let it be known although not issuing a formal statement, that he will not be a candidate for relection to the senate in 1928. Now practically all Connecticut rises up and urges him not to stand by his decision, and insists it will "draft him" if necessary when the time arrives, unless he changes his mind in the meantime. It's such a rare thing for a senator in good health, holding top-notch positions on committee and generally regarded as one of the most influential and respected members of the senate, to voluntarily retire, that the statement of Mr. McLean's proposed retirement is seriously questioned by many of his home friends. All the same, the report sent out was authentic and based on the highest possible authority.

Senators and members of congress often receive letters from children asking special favors from congress. The latest was one that reached Congressman Tilson, from a little boy living at Turkey Hill, Orange, Connecticut. The youngster wrote "I have an old horse. His name is "Bobby". He is a pure white horse and is 37 years old. I want to know what to do with him. He isn't able to work and I take feed from my father's feed box. I would like to know if congress would help me, feed him. My father can't keep him for he has no room or feed. I don't want Bobby killed." And there was more in that letter that touched Col. Tilson's heart. All the same the distinguished floor leader was forced to write Bobby that he "had read the Constitution and found nothing in it that we would permit congress to feed Bobby." The colonel added kindly words and good wishes but it still devolves on Turkey farm folks to provide for faithful old Bobby.

Joseph S. Morrissey, chairman of the republican committee of New Haven was here last week. He called on President Coolidge in company with Floor Leader Tilson. Also made a long call on Senator McLean, and referring to the proposed retirement of the senator said "It would be a distinct loss to Connecticut and I hope sufficient pressure will be brought to bear on Mr. McLean to cause him to alter his decision."

Assistant Attorney General Averill was also here in conference with Senator McLean and others of the Connecticut delegation. He did not make known the purpose of his visit but it is rumored it was in connection with the Swift-Ware river controversy as to the right to divert those streams from the Connecticut river as is being done in Massachusetts.

The national guard in the 1st corps of New England army area has received complimentary report from Gen. Preston Brown, corps arear commander. Briefly summarized the report is to the effect that the state of national guard is considered satisfactory, including an advancement over last year; general excellent conditions indicates improvement has been made in maintenance and care of property; a larger number of officer graduates of service schools show improvement. Its strong points include excellent cooperation between instructors and personnel, every corps area commander reporting improvements and progress in the fiscal year of 1927. The weak points mentioned in the report include the dispersion of units which makes training difficulties, but for this no recommendation of a change is made.

The general, Gen. Brown states that with more money available the training and administration of the 1st corps area can be improved and that travel for instructors, field officers and staff officers and periodic inspections of units would be advantageous.

Mrs. Bingham, wife of the senator will give a tea dance on Dec. 21 in honor of the Yale Dramatic association which will present "This Woman's Business" at the Wardsworth park theatre that evening. Their son, Charles T. Bingham, is a member of the dramatic association and will take part in the play. After the performance the club will be entertained by Mrs. Harold Walker at the dance which she will give for her daughter Miss Evelyn Walker.

Several dinners will precede the performance.

The District of Columbia society, Sons of the American Revolution, held its annual nomination of officers and was addressed by the president of the National Society, S. A. R., Ernest E. Rogers of New London, at a meeting in the national headquarters, S. A. R. 1227 Sixteenth street, last night. The president incumbent, Kenneth S. Wales, was renominated for president and Alonzo Gray also was nominated for that office. The elections are to be held at the annual meeting of the local society, February 22.

It is understood that none of the Massachusetts delegation in congress will enter the lists as republican candidate for the Massachusetts senatorship, now Chairman William M. Butler has announced he will not be a candidate. The Bay State delegation has a pretty solid hold on its districts, and does not seem anxious to take a chance in a hotly contested election for the senate. Senator David I. Walsh democrat, now filling the unexpired term of Senator Lodge, will be the uncontested democratic candidate at the primary, although he will make no formal announcement of his candidacy at present, there is no doubt he will run, and be a hard man to beat at the polls.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Ferdinand Buisson, who shares in the Nobel Peace prize just awarded is a man of eighty-seven, who has spent practically the whole of his life as a schoolteacher. He is not a new convert to the movement for international peace. Indeed it is over sixty years ago, under the Second Empire, when he first participated in the Pacifist congress in Switzerland, at which Garibaldi, th Italian liberator, and Victor Hugo were present. He was for many years president of the League of the Rights of Men. He has been a professor of philosophy at the Sorbonne, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, and author of a number of books on philosophy, education, religion and politics. The name and character of M. Buisson is universally respected, even by those who disagree with him on various points, and the award of the Nobel Prize to an ardent veteran of a thousand fights for pacifism is warmly applauded in France.

HER CAREER.

Richard blew rings of smoke into the thick air of a sophisticated little tearoom where he and Evaline were having lunch. The place was dimly lighted and decorated with rich brasses and barbaric tapestries.

"What I can't understand, Evaline," he said, "is why you go out with me. A girl has to look after her own interest."

"As I told you long ago," Evaline answered, "I have my career to consider and I might fall in love with an unattached beau. But you are so well engaged to Berenice that I feel safe. And since we've understood that I'm not on the market we've had lots of fun together."

"Isn't it fun?" Evaline remarked one evening as they were dancing at a smart cabaret on the north side, "not to have designs on each other?"

"It's great," was the response. "You're a girl in a million, Evaline." She looked very lovely in a chic little dinner dress of delft blue. Her wind-blown bob gave her an elfin, wistful expression. Great girl, Richard thought. No need to hand her a line!

And Evaline was thinking what a relief not to worry about keeping out of love. Somehow with an engaged man one did not fall in love easily. Evaline was a copy writer in an advertising agency and she did not intend to marry with such an interesting career ahead of her. She was not going to throw herself away on any man.

Every time she had dinner with any of her young married friends she girded her armor tighter. If they had been outwardly discontented it would have been easier. But they seemed perfectly happy not to see anything beyond their small apartments or homes miles out in the suburbs. One had to watch being taken in. But Evaline knew she was safe with Richard.

Sundays they often spent in the dunes in heavy boots and corduroys, tramping the shores of the lake, cooking meals over a crackling fire, talking only when they felt like it. Evaline confessed to herself that she did like to have a man around to gather wood, bake the fire, carry water, enjoy the food she cooked for him, but—that was all.

One evening after work as she stepped out of the elevator she found Richard waiting for her.

"Let's go somewhere for dinner, if you aren't busy," he suggested.

"Oh, I have a steak in the refrigerator all ready to broil. Come along out to the apartment and eat with me."

Evaline was not in the least domestic, but she did like to see Richard eat with a relish the meal she set before him. She was not in the least in love with Richard, but she liked to have him around, thought him very nice looking and a promising young lawyer. He certainly would make Berenice a good husband.

"Say Evaline," began Richard, when they had finished eating, "I've been a rotten sport. You may never let me come to see you again when I tell you."

"Well," in meek seriousness, "that depends——."

"Well," echoed Richard, "there isn't any Berenice——."

"There isn't any Berenice!" Evaline repeated uncertainly.

"No—and there never was. You see, knowing how you felt, I didn't want to do anything to spoil things, so I invented Berenice, but ——" He stared gloomily at the table. "I can't keep it any longer. I really do love——."

"Who?" interrupted Evaline, feeling queer and wabbly.

"Why—you—of course!"

"Oh!" gulped Evaline.

"Will you forget me?" begged Richard. But what he saw in Evaline's eyes made him add quickly, "and marry me?"

"Yes," Evaline murmured involuntarily.

"But your career——"

"Is called Richard."—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Kidney Disease.

By Walter J. Wilson, Jr., M. D., Detroit, member Gorgas Memorial.

Kidney disease is often called Bright's disease from the name of the famous physican who studied it.

The kidney extracts from the blood passing through it the waste-products of the body and keeping them in solution, passes them down to the bladder and so out from the body. In health, the kidney passes from one quart to three pints daily. When, on account of disease, it is unable to concentrate these products naturally, a greater dilution is necessary and hence the urinary output for 24 hours may run up to three or more quarts. The patient notices this change, because he has to arise two or three times during the night, so that often the night excretion equals in quantity the day urine, while ordinarily all is passed during the day in a healthy person. This condition arises in the more chronic forms of kidney disease. Of course an occasional necessity to arise at night occurs when an unusual amount of fluid has been taken during the time just before retiring and this means no alteration in health.

In the acute forms, just the opposite situation occurs. From a few ounces to one pint of urine may be all that is excreted. This latter condition is usually accompanied by edema or gathering of fluid in the tissues. The first evidence of this is commonly puffiness around the eyes, in contradistinction to heart-disease in which, as a result of gravitation, edema occurs in the feet, or, if the patient is lying in bed, in the most dependent parts of the body, which are near the end of the spine.

The urine itself may be of assistance in detecting either form of kidney disease. In the chronic form, in which there is increase of the fluid excreted, the specific gravity, lower than usual, will not vary from time to time, as is normal in a conditon of health. In these cases there may be a slight amount of albumen and a few hyaline casts. By casts we mean some material from the blood or kidney tubules which, taking the form of the opening, retains this form and goes into the urine and may be detected in a fresh specimen by microscopic examination. Hyaline casts consist of albumen which normally is retained in the blood but now, on account of defects in the cellular structure of the kidney, leaks through into the tubules, thus there is more evidence of disturbance forming a cast. In acute conditions there is more evidence of disturbance in the urine. Large quantities of albumen may be present, also many casts, which may have not only albuminous material in them but also cells of lining membrane, blood-cells from minute hemorrhages, and sometimes fattery material. The specific gravity in these cases will be higher than usual.

Studies may also be made of lack of certain elements in the urine. Today, however, the problem is studied from a different angle. A few teaspoonfuls of blood are taken from a vein at the elbow and this blod is examined chemically for the presence of an excess of waste-products, normally found in the urine. When these waste-products are in excess, we know that the kidneys are not working properly. Other methods of examining the kidney efficiency, which are of a more technical nature, are used but will not be discussed in this article.

The previous explanation is made to show why it is important for various members of the should to have lious members of the family to have urinary tests made at stated intervals. This interval should be at least yearly and as middle life approaches, quarterly intervals are to be recommended; and in case of indefinite ill-health, a blood examination might reveal the failure of kidney function not otherwise apparent.

The prevention of kidney disease is similar to that of heart disease — avoidance of acute infections, moderation in and elimination of food flavoring agents which are irritating in the blood stream, such as pepper, horse-radish, mustard, and alcohol, and the use of three pints to two uarts of fluid daily. The end-products from the digestion of meat are passed through the kidney and for that reason meat restriction or elimination, according to the severity of the case, has to be practiced

Little Talks on Thrift

By Helping Others.

At this time of year considerable attention is being given to charitable activities as well as to various thrift and welfare plans promulgated by business organizations to assist their employees. Every winter finds many who are worthy objects of charity. Reverses come to all and those who are not prepared to withstand them must be helped by others. But where there is no actual need of assistance it is no kindness to anyone to make him an object of charity.

The finest service that any man or any business can render others is to help them help themselves. And it may be added with equal truth that in helping others we always help ourselves. Good deeds worthily bestowed are never lost in their effects upon the donor.

It is an indication of progress and broader viewpoints that business is learning those truths more and more. The time is within the memory of many of us when the watchword both of employer and employee to a considerable extent was—"get all you can from the other fellow." Today, notwithstanding occasional disturbances, a more liberal attitude exists on both sides. Employers have found that liberal and considerate treatment brings its rewards in better service, higher morale and greater loyalty. Employes find that there are always just rewards for those who are willing to do their work with whole heart and hand.

We believe these conditions will continue more and more. We are far from social and economic idealism but, through a broad application of the principles of thrift, we are working constantly in that direction.

Nothing an employer can do for his workers is of greater value to his own interests than to assist them in personal thrift. Nothing that the employe can do will more quickly develop efficiently and earn promotion than habits of thrift with all their stabilizing influences.—American Society for Thrift.

Terror Maintains His Pride

Pride at times doth have its place
And dignity it oft doth grace.
—Old Mother Nature

There is pride and pride. That means that there is good pride and bad pride. It is fine to have pride in a good name for instance. It is bad to have pride in wrongdoing. The right kind of pride is something that everybody should have. Some of those little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows know this quite as well as we do.

Terror the Goshawk was a prisoner of Farmer Brown's Boy. He was a prisoner in a cage. He who all his life long had known the freedom of the air, who had come and gone at will where he would, was now a prisoner. But, though he was a prisoner and felt the disgrace of it, he would not let others know what his feelings were. No, sir, he still held himself proudly. He was still Terror the Goshawk, even though he were a prisoner.

When Farmer Brown's Boy tried to make friends with him Terror would not make friends. He would not take food from the hands of Farmer Brown's Boy with either bill or claws. His fierce yellow eyes looked past Farmer Brown's Boy as if he did not see him. He would not have accepted food when he was free, so he would not do it now. He ate only when Farmer Brown's Boy was not about.

Now Farmer Brown's Boy had placed the cage outside in the farmyard, for he felt that Terror, being a bird of the out-of-doors, should be kept out of doors. It was a large, comfortable cage. There was a perch and there was a box in which Terror could take shelter in bad weather. Yes, it was a very comfortable cage, but this made it no less a prison.

He would not take food from the hands of Farmer Brown's Boy

Of course, it wasn't long before the word had passed although the Green Forest, all over the Green Meadows, away up through the Old Pasture and even over to the Great Mountain that Terror the Goshawk was a prisoner. At first those who heard it wouldn't believe it.

"It isn't true," replied Mrs. Grouse when she first heard of it. "It can't be true. I won't believe it until I see him with my own eyes a prisoner."

"It is too true!" snapped Sammy Jay. "I know because I've seen him. Tommy Tit will tell you it's true. So will Downy the Woodpecker. So will Reddy Fox, for Reddy Fox saw him caught."

But still Mrs. Grouse couldn't believe it. Jumper the Hare was finding it just as hard work to believe it. So were Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel. You see, all these little people had had so many narrow escapes from Terror and had come to look upon him as the greatest danger in the Green Forest that they couldn't believe now that it could be possible there was nothing to fear from him.

So those who dared to slipped over to Farmer Brown's dooryard whenever they had a chance just to see Terror a prisoner. At first they kept a respectable distance from the cage. Even in a cage they feared him. But after a while they grew bolder. They went near enough to say unkind things to him. They told him they were glad that he was a prisoner and that they hoped he never would be free again. They called him bad names. They jeered at him. And all the time Terror the Goshawk appeared not to see them at all. He sat with his head held high. His pride gave him dignity. Despair might be in his heart, but he would not let these others kno wit.

GARAGE DESTROYED, TWO MACHINES BADLY DAMAGED BY FLAMES

The two-car garage, frame building, located in the rear of No. 234 Broadway and owned by Herman Sharpe, connected with the Silberman Bros. furniture dealers, and two automobiles, were destroyed by fire early Monday evening. Besides the two automobiles, a Buick sedan and a Willys-St. Clair roadster, there were between 100 and 200 gallons of paint, a number of books and automobile robes in the garage. The fire was caused by an explosion of an oil stove in the garage, it was said, and the damage was estimated between $3000 to $4000. There was insurance on the automobiles, garage and house, which was badly scorched on two sides from the terrific heat.

Mr. Sharpe and his brother-in-law, Emil Silberman, closed the store at about 6 o'clock, and went home a short time later, putting the car in the garage. On account of the sudden change in temperature, the oil stove, used for heating the garage, was lighted by Mr. Silberman, who then went into the house, preceded by Mr. Sharpe. About 7:20 o'clock a maid, employed by Mr. Sharpe, noticed the garage on fire and a telephone call was sent to fire headquarters. About the same time an unidentified person pulled in box 31, at the corner of Broadway and Union street, near the Little Park.

A quick response was made by the firemen, Engine 1, 3 and 5, Squad A, Chief Howard L. Stanton and Deputy Chief Henry Taft responding. On the arrival of the fire apparatus, the garage was in a mass of flames and in a short time would have communicated to the houses of Mr. Sharpe and Dr. Kopland K. Markoff, if it had not been for the timely discovery of the fire. Four lines of hose, three of 2 1-2 inches and one of 1 1-2 inches, were quickly laid and the flames were soon under control. The recall was sounded at 7:35 o'clock.

It is the belief that the lighted oil stove consumed the oxygen in the garage and then exploded, setting fire to the building. The books and cans of paint, stored in the garage, were destroyed by the blaze and the intense heat, which also put the telephone and electric lights in the house out of commission. All that remained of the two automobiles was the frame work. So badly damaged was the garage that it will be necessary to rebuild it.

ELECTION CONTEST LOST BY MAJOR W. C. FOX

After hearing witnesses called by counsel for former Mayor William C. Fox in support of the latter's petition contesting the election of Councilor Lucius E. Whiton at the New London city election of Sept. 26, Judge Christopher L. Avery listened to arguments of opposing attorneys on a motion for dismissal of the petition and brought the hearing to a close with the ruling that "I shall return the papers to the court files without taking further action in the matter." The action of Judge Avery virtually sustained the motion for dismissal of the Fox petition on the ground that, although much irregularity was apparent in the conduct of the election in the fifth ward, no actual fraud had been proved.

Judge Avery said that there was no question but that considerable irregularity was manifested among the officials of the fifth ward, but that the irregularities were perpetrated without the knowledge of Mr. Fox or of Councilor Lucius E. Whiton. However, the court stated that he could not find any evidence which went to prove that either Mr. Fox received any less votes than he was entitled to or that Mr. Whiton received any more votes than he was entitled to. He said that he could find no reason to order another election.

Stephen M. Crocker, moderator of the fifth ward, testified that he was working for Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood and was paid for it by Edna Leighton Tyler, receiving money both from the city as moderator and as a worker for Mrs. Bitgood.

The hearing opened with Judge Avery over-ruling a demurrer entertained by Attorney Shea, who with Attorney John McGarry represented Councilor Lucius E. Whiton. Senator J. James Floyd, who with Attorney Henry L. McGuire represented Mr. Fox called City Clerk Julian D. Moran to the witness stand. Mr. Moran, in answer to questions by Senator Floyd, said that the official returns in the fifth ward for the election on September 26, indicated that each machine showed that 465 votes had been cast, a total of 930 for both machines; and that Mr. Whiton received 520 votes and Mr. Fox 415. The total number shown on the check-list was 934, there being a discrepancy of four votes between the record of the machines and checklist.

Mr. Moran testified that an attempted re-canvass of the machines was made at Hillside home on Nov. 22. He said he was not sure about this date. He said that the officials of the second ward were present and the machines of that ward were rechecked and found to be correct. He testified that the fifth ward moderator, Stephen M. Crocker, was not present and that Master Moderator Alois Grancher was not present, so that the fifth ward machines were not re-canvassed.

Mr. Moran, when questioned, said that on Nov. 30 a re-canvass was made at the city clerk's office and that Mr. Crocker and Mr. Grancher were present. He said that the re-canvass showed that on one machine Mr. Whiton was credited with 290 votes and on another with 230, making a total of 520, the same as was shown in the original count. He said that on one machine Mr. Fox was credited with 189 votes and on another 226 votes, making a total of 415 votes, as was the case in the original returns.

On the re-canvass, the check list showed that but 922 voters appeared for the right to vote which showed a discrepancy of 12 votes from the first returns, in which the check-list showed that 934 had appeared, he testified.

FORMER MONTVILLE PASTOR RECEIVES GIFTS AT WESTERLY

Of the Christmas presentation to a former Montville pastor the Westerly Sun says: Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of St. Michael's church a Christmas entertainment was held for the benefit of the children of grammar school age in the parish. The Connecticut Council of Catholic Women sponsored the entertainment and decorated the hall and Christmas tree. The parishioners who attended to witness the joy of the kiddies were agreeably surprised and immensely pleased to find that a very delightful entertainment had been prepared for them by the Sisters and pupils of St. Michael's school.

The entertainment was followed by the presentation of gifts to Rev. Father John F. X. Quinn, pastor, formerly of Montville, and Rev. Father Weston, curate, who thanked the Sisters, the council and the parishioners for their interest and aid in preparing the entertainment for the children.

Following the presentation Santa Claus appeared and gave every child a gift and a box of candy.

NEW INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE IS ASSURED FOR EASTERN CONN.

The formation of the much-discussed conference of Eastern Connecticut and Western Rhode Island high schools now seems assured but it probably will not be made in the way that some wanted.

At the special meeting of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league at the Academy Monday afternoon the invited representatives from New London Bulkeley, Windham and Plainfield showed great enthusiasm toward getting together in such a league and, although nothing real definite was accomplished still it looks fairly certain that at the next meeting called for Wednesday, Jan. 11, at the Academy, that final plans for the opening of this league will be made. Killingly of Danielson, which is also reported as being very much in favor of the project, had no representative present and neither did Putnam nor Wheeler of North Stonington. However, as the latter school would be represented in league competition in but one minor sport, tennis, there is little doubt but that she will be willing to fall in line and possess membership in the organization. Nothing is sure about Putnam as yet and an effort is to be made to interest that school in the plan.

That success seems assured is one thing but the success is not what some hoped it would be.

By the newly proposed idea each team would play only four conference games in football and eight in baseball. That is little of an improvement in the situation.

A team in the present league plays six baseball games and six football games, that is they did in the grid sport when the Academy was represented in football. Things are really the same, even with the larger membership. Two games are dropped in football and two are added in baseball. No comparison can be gained in basketball as the present league is only made up of three teams. It would seem that a champion in the new arangement would still find his claim in doubt. It was hoped that a team would be playing all league opponents and then some real definite line could be gotten on the abilities of the various clubs.

The new conference also is not wholly in favor of the idea of offering a yearly all-round athletic supremacy prize. Instead, the old custom of awarding trophies for one sport at a time will be followed. The baseball and football trophies would be donated by the Alling Rubber Co. and that of basketball by Spalding Co. through Buster Ellonsky's store in New London. Several loopholes are noted in this arrangement. A real good team in say one sport, baseball, might find itself at the bottom or near bottom in the other two sports but still the reputation gained in its one good sport would place it, in public mind, as the best all round conference club for the year. On the other hand, there might be a school ranking second in all three of these sports, that is having above-the-average teams but still this club would not be placed as high as the first mentioned club, when, in reality, she would be better under the other all-round supremacy arrangement.

Present at the meting were representatives from Westerly High, Stonington High, Chapman Tech, N. F. A., New London Bulkeley, Windham and Plainfield Highs. President Joel B. Sherman, baseball coach at Westerly High presided.

A plan of a Class A and B schools, the latter including Putnam, Plainfield and Killingly will probably come to something definite at the next meeting when actual formation of the loop is foreseen.

ACADEMY NEWS

According to the Westerly 1928 football schedule announced this week, the Academy is not included. However, this may be remedied by the newly proposed conference.

George (Ned) Hodge, '27, is a member of the freshman crew at Harvard university.

The cut in the basketball squad came Monday although the names of those retained were not announced.

SHARKEY TO START TRAINING FOR HEENEY

Sharkey had his left hand, which was injured in training several weeks ago, examined by Dr. W. G. Fralick. Sharkey was advised to start punching with a light bag, gradually working up to the heavy bag and then engage in active sparring. Sharkey has been idle for more than six weeks.

According to Dr. Fralick, Sharkey is in perfect condition and the time it usually takes for a fracture such as Sharkey's to heal has passed. The doctor said he would keep in touch with Sharkey throughout the week.

Sharkey's injury is a fracture of a bone between the second and middle finger which runs up to the wrist. Ligaments in the wrist were strained also, Fralick said.

Despite denials, reports have persisted that the Sharkey-Heeney match will be postponed again. Nevertheless, Fralick declared Sharkey was confident of being able to go through with the bout.

C. F. C. TEAM TAKES MEASURE OF NOANK

With Brown leading the attack with 24 points, the C. F. C. had little trouble in sweeping to victory over the Noank Crescents Monday night at the Y gym. The score, 59 to 26, the locals never having to travel at top speed. They had a lead of 17 to 7 at half time and then stepped out even farther ahead in the last two quarters. Lambert also was well up in the scoring compiling 19 points on 9 field goals and a foul.

Although the locals were little extended still they showed nice teamwork. The two Pattersons, at forwards, starred for the losers and they rolled up 23 of the Crescent's 26 points.

This game opened the C. F. C. home season and for their next opponent they have the strong Battery E quintet of Westerly for the Y floor next Monday evening. The C. F. C. opened their season by trimming the Soldiers in Westerly.

In the preliminary game last night the Y Emps continued on their unbeaten way by downing the Kappa club of this city 35 to 15. Things were close for the first two quarters but the Conklin machine came out strong at the half and settled matters. Economius and Nevins were high scorers.

Whaples handled the game well.

VON PARAT KAYOES SANDWINA IN SECOND

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—(AP)—Otto Von Parat, Norwegian heavyweight champion ruined whatever hopes Ted Sandwina, German titleholder had of progressing in the championship ranks by knocking him out in the second round of a scheduled eight round fight at the Coliseum tonight.

The battle was one of seven staged for Christmas charities for which a total of more than $50,000 was realized.

In the semi-windup Mike Dundee, Rock Island, 130 pounder, defeated Ray Miller of Chicago, after 8 slow rounds.

Miller floored in the second, became so cautious that he refused to lead. He clinched and held at every opportunity, drawing boos from the crowd. Dundee forced the milling winning every round.

Joe Chaney, Baltimore, 135-pounder won the verdict over Frank Larabee, of Lincoln, Neb., in the opening six rounder.

Benny "Kid" Carter, Mexican featherweight of Phoenix, Ariz., won a close bout from Toney Mandell, a rough wild swinging youngster of Boston, in another eight rounder. Mandell, substituted for Joey Sangor of Milwaukee, left the ring the loser but with the cheers of the crowd in his ears. He carried the fight to Carter, but met a sharper and more accurate hitter. He was dropped in the second with a left hook, but jumped up without taking a count. Carter scored the cleaner punches and outboxed the Boston boy but whatever Mandell lacked in boxing skill was made up in aggressiveness. Carter weighed 122 1-4; Mandell 124.

Harry Forbes, Columbus, Ohio, featherweight, had no trouble in defeating George Rivers, of Los Angeles, in eight rounds. Rivers weighed 119 1-4 and Forbes 122 1-4 pounds.

SCHAEFER HOLDS 99 POINT LEAD OVER COCHRAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Jake Schaefer, of Chicago tonight won the first block of his 1500 point match with Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, for the world's 18.2 balk line billiard crown now held by the Californian. The score was 300 to 211.

The champion was badly off form and missed numerous chances to wipe out a lead Schaefer had established by running 148 in the sixth inning. It was a coincident that Cochran chose the same frame to put together his best string of the night—66.

Schaefer's run of 148 was the best of the night and he also matched Cochran's high run with one of 65 in the seventh inning.

The first block of the match provided few sensational features. The next block will be played tomorrow afternoon.

Inning score:

Schaefer: 0, 0, 23, 2, 8, 148, 65, 5, 11, 4, 2, 32—300.

Cochran: 8, 16, 3, 0, 13, 66, 28, 22, 30, 31, 0—211.

Averages: Schaefer 26. Cochran 10 2-11.

High runs:

Schaefer 148, Cochan 66.

MARTINEZ WINS JUDGES DECISION OVER ALGERS

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)— Hilario Martinez, lightweight champion of Spain, won a judges' decision over Billie Algers, of Phoenix, Ariz., in a 10-round bout here tonight. Martinez weighed 141 3-4 and Algers 144.

The Spaniard's victory was decisive and he jabbed Algers almost at will, having the advantage in nine of the ten rounds. In the fourth round Martinez dropped to his knees under a hard right to the jaw, followed by another right to the heart, but was on his feet again in an instant, showing no effects from the blows. During the rest of the battle he gave Algers a boxing lesson.

ST LOUIS, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The claim of Frank L. Moore, Cincinnati betting commissioner, against Rogers Hornsby, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and now captain of the New York Giants, was reduced from $70,075 to $45,075 when trial of the suit opened today in St. Louis county circuit court at Clayton.

The claim is for money alleged he advanced to the baseball star and his wife in connection with bets on horse races. Counsel for the plaintiff withdraw two items in the claimish, one for $18,000 alleged to have been advanced to Mrs. Hornsby, and another for $7,000 alleged to have been loaned to Hornsby on a "demand note."

Hornsby, in answer to the suit, contended he is not legally liable because to the suit, contended he is not legally liable because the transactions were in the nature of gambling and therefore outside the law.

Ferris, today announced its support of a bill to legalize amateur boxing in the District of Columbia, where the lid has been clamped on ring activity of all descriptions for some time. The measure, according to the A. A. U., is sponsored by Representative Updike and Senator Watson, both of Indiana.

BELANGER WINS N. B. A. FLYWEIGHT TITLE BY OUTPOINTING JAVIS

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Frenchy Belanger of Toronto gained the flyweight championship of the National Boxing association tonight by outpointing Ernie Javis of London in a 12-round title struggle. Belanger weighed 110 pounds, Harvis 111 3-4.

Belanger was forced to a stiff battle before receiving the judges' award. Belanger floored Jarvis in the first round and was knocked down himself in a furious mixup in the eleventh session. The Toronto boxer was continually the aggressor and gave the English lad little chance to go far in his spurts.

Belanger varied his attack from rights to the head to left hooks to the body which at times draped Jarvis almost helplessly along the ropes. However, Jarvis battled pluckily against his hard hitting opponent and with a torrid offensive in the eleventh round did much to counter-balance the Toronto youth's score.

While Belanger is the acclaimed titleholder of the flyweight championship of the N. B. A., the New York state athletic commission recognizes Corporal Izzy Schwartz of New York on the basis of his victory over Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, Ia., last Friday.

Schwartz wired authorities here today he would meet the victor of tonight's clash to clear up the flyweight situation.

STECHER-LEWIS MATCH FIRST IN SEVEN YEARS

ST. LOUIS, Dec 19.—(AP)—The finish match of Joe Stecher and Ed "Strangler" Lewis, both claimants of the heavyweight wrestling title, scheduled here Feb. 20, will be the first between them in seven years.

Stecher and Lewis last met in New York city Dec. 13, 1926, when Lewis won the championship for the first time in his career by pinning Stecher for a single fall in one hour and 41 minutes.

Lewis was accused by Stecher in succeeding years of side-stepping offers to meet him in a return match. When Stecher won his claim to the title by defeating the elder Zybszko here May 30, 1925, he announced he would retaliate against Lewis by refusing to meet him.

Lewis continued to claim the title, contending he was unfairly beaten by Wayne Munn who won the decision from him at Kansas City, Jan. 8, 1925. Munn, in turn, was defeated by Zbyszko the following April 15, before Munn could meet Lewis in a scheduled return match.

Promoter Tom Packs, who concluded negotiations yesterday, said he was completed to outbid rval promoters of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, Los Angeles, and other cities and to guarantee Stecher the largest purse ever offered a wrestler in the United States. He refused to divulge the amount.

Harry S. Sharpe of St. Louis has been named referee.

Forkins Wins

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Mickey Forkins, Columbus, defeated Wolcott Langford, Chicago, Negro middleweight champion, in a 12 round bout here tonight. All three judges gave Forkins the decision.

CONGRESSMEN OFFER REMEDY FOR ARMY-NAVY BREAK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—Congress today took its first official notice of the break in football relations between the Army and Navy with two house members offering proposals for smoothing over the situation.

One came from Hamilton Fish, a New York republican, who in his younger days won for himself a berth on Walter Camp's All-American eleven as a tackle at Harvard, and the other from Fred Britten, of Illinois, the senior republican on the house naval committee, who was influential in taking the 1926 service battle to Soldiers' Field, Chicago.

Fish introduced a resolution to request the secretaries of war and navy to endeavor to work out an agreement that would be satisfactory to both schools, while Britten in another resolution demanded that the Army be compelled to adopt eligibility rules enforced by "principal American universities."

Fish, who represents the West Point district in congress, declared it was not in the interest of football or the military academy to solicit appointments for outstanding college stars and then permit them to play thre years at West Point.

"Captain Wilson of this year's West Point team has been playing college football for seven consecutive years and Captain Hewitt of last year's team has a similar record," he said.

"If West Point will not accept the three year rule adopted at Annapolis and by practically all the big colleges, I suggest limiting former college players to a total of four years on varsity teams as a compromise. There certainly must be some friendly compromise.

"There are 1,241 cadets at West Point, and 1,534 midshipmen at Annapolis and I believe the proposal I have suggested would tend to equalize the slight difference in numbers. Besides, the age limit at West Point is two years older which is a great advantage as far as football material is concerned.

Britten in a statement said that the apparent severance of athletic relations between Annapolis and West Point had given the country a shock which should be immediately set at rest by executive action.

"Failure to play the 1928 game would do more to hurt the fine cordiality now existing between the Army and Navy, than could anything else I know of be added.

"In fairness to the principal colleges of the country which have long recognized the three year eligibility rules in football, I certainly hope that West Point will amend its rules and if it doesn't then I shall bring my resolution before the house where the West Point attitude can be shown in its true light.

"If perchance the Army-Navy game should not be played in 1928, then in fairness to Yale and other first-class colleges with which West Point may play, the country will insist on an equality of rules unless West Point can show that it is entitled to a handicap before agreeing to play.

"Unless the secretary of war forces the stubborn Army mule to meet the Navy goat on an equality, I fear for the best interests of the sport."

GARCIA FORCES HILL TO QUIT IN EIGHTH

DETROIT, Dec. 19.—(AP)— Bobby Garcia, Baltimore featherweight scored a technical knockout over Johnny Hill, Filipino boxer, in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here tonight. Garcia caught his opponent coming in with a stiff left hook to the chin in the fourth round and the Filipino, badly dazed, was a wide open target until the finish when his handlers threw in the towel to save him for further punishment.

Zbyszko Sails For India

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—On the invitation of the Rajah of Punjab, Stanislaus Zbyszko sailed today on the Liner Stuttgart, en route to India for a series of wrestling exhibitions. The veteran Polish grappler and former world's champion, catch-as-catch-can style, will appear at a celebration at Patiala, India, sponsored by the Rajah. Zybszko will return to Poland after finishing his India engagements.

The adage that "misfortunes never come singly" seems to be illustrated by a dialogue which was overheard in a Jersey City trolley car:

"You don't tell me that Prof. Isaacs has been struck dumb?"

"He has."

"And wasn't he master of seven languages?"

"He was."

"And is it possible he was struck dumb in all seven? How extraordinary!"—Stray Stories.

Ruth Elder Cashes In On Flight

Ruth Elder, the first of the American fliers to "cash in" on her flight across the Atlantic Ocean. Miss Elder has just signed a contract with the Loew circuit for $1,000 a day for 100 days.

David Sutherland, of Freeport, L. I., a Princeton graduate, was fined $300 and sentenced to three days in jail by Judge Robert L. Munger in common plea scourt in New Haven on a charge of breach of peace on Policeman Raymond Eagan on the day of the Yale-Princeton football game here.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON MAN CHARGED WITH ATTACK ON MOTHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 19—This community was shocked today by as wanton a case of beastiality as ever has been written into the record of local doings. Tonight Edmond LeClair, 22, of the West Side, was in Brooklyn jail in default of bonds of $500, for his appearance at the next term of the Windham county superior court having criminal jurisdiction.

In a hearing presided over by Justice Laura Pike in Brooklyn this afternoon LeClair pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rape. The victim of the attack was his own mother—Mrs. Lodi St. Pierre, with whom he makes his home.

The heinous attack of LeClair on his mother followed a drinking bout, it was said by state officers who investigated the case. A struggle of very serious nature admittedly occurred, and at the first opportunity the horrified woman notified the state officers, and, during last night, LeClair was locked up.

Mrs. LeClair has been twice married. It was stated this afternoon that her second husband—St. Pierre—has lived apart from her for several years; that she caused his arrest, about three years ago, for non-support, and that while in jail serving a sentence he escaped and has not since been seen in this territory.

Again the need of stressing details relative to Christmas mailing appears. In the height of the rush now underway at the Danielson postoffice the bulk of the holiday packages going out are legibly marked and well and securely wrapped—but there are exceptions. Insecurely wrapped parcels and poor and incomplete addresses may be the means of a valuable Christmas gift going astray, and of disappointments for all concerned. It is for these reasons that it is again urged that these details of sending out mail matter at Christmas time be carefully observed.

Display of the handiwork of members of the sewing classes of Killingly high school has brought forth favorable comment. The sewing classes were established about a year ago, following the building of additions to the high school. The sewing course is therefore a comparatively new one at the local school, and citizens who like practical things have said some appreciative tives about the examples work done by the classes.

Danielson's little people, all enthused over the coming of Kris Kringle, are anticipating with special delight the raising of a giant Christmas tree on Davis park this week, its illumination and the exercises that are to be held there next Saturday night—the eve of the holiday. Preparations for having the tree set are proceeding. Wauregan, as for several years past, has a community Christmas tree again this year and even this early it is lighted each evening, and a pretty sight for all who pass.

Another of the important real estate transactions of the year in Danielson came today with the purchase of the Palace Laundry company property on Center street by George L. Gendron of this town. The laundry property adjoins the Orpheum theater property and extends along Center street to School and along School to the School street garage property.

The laundry business has been suspended for several weeks and the place closed insofar as business activities have been concerned. Following of the closing of the laundry in foreclosure proceedings several have negotiated for the purchase of the property, which was heavily encumbered, but which represents a good investment opportunity.

Mr. Gendron said this afternoon that he is to re-establish the laundry business. He was with the Palace Laundry company as an employe and is familiar with the trade.

On an early morning train today the body of Byron J. Wheateon arrived here from St. Petersburg, where Mr. Wheaton died last Thursday, and was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood. This forenoon funeral services were conducted at Mr. Wood's undertaking rooms by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. The bearers were Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Fred Miller, S. Irving Frink and Herbert Lyman.

Mr. Wheaton was a native of Brooklyn and lived there for years. He was 52 years of age. He was in the south as the Florida representative of the Bankers Utilities corporation of San Francisco.

Dozens of steaming radiators and stalled cars, not to mention those that were disabled in the garages in which they are regularly kept, told the story today of what happens to machines not supplied with anti-freeze mixtures when the first severely cold weather of the season arrives. The difficulties of the car owners yielded a harvest for garage men to whom those in distress turned for aid.

The postal force here put in a very busy Monday, the real rush of the Christmas season now being under way.

This morning the temperature dropped to 12 degrees in Danielson. Tonight ice two inches in thickness was reported on some bodies of water hereabouts.

Deserving of what might be termed special praise is the achievement of the children of the East Brooklyn school in selling $65 worth of Christmas seals.

This is not to be taken as indicating a chance to go skating Christmas week, with safety, but there was promise of that this afternoon with the Assawaga river frozen over.

Gifts were exchanged and there were various other interesting phases of a Christmas party held in Putnam this evening by telephone employes, with a number present from the Danielson and Moosup divisions.

The Tatapochon Camp Fire Girls held a meeting at the Congregational church this evening.

Attorney and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill are to leave Friday for New Rochelle to remain over Christmas with relatives.

While here this morning Joseph B. Stetson, resident in the western part of the town of Brooklyn, told of recent narrow escapes himself and housekeeper have had from being struck by rifle bullets fired by deer hunters operating over in that section.

It is anticipated that Rev. John R. Pratt will have so far recovered from a recent surgical operation as to be able to occupy his pulpit at the Brooklyn Congregational church on Christmas.

Herbert Chase was a visitor in Hartford today.

Miss Emma F. Pilling was in charge of the sale of Christmas seals in the lobby of the postoffice this afternoon. The seals are selling well in Danielson this year.

Members of Mary A. Livermore Tent, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, have a meeting scheduled for Thursday evening.

Tonight the third and fourth degrees were conferred upon candidates of Killingly grange. Following the work there was a social hour, with refreshments and dancing.

St. James' parochial school will close this week and for the Christmas vacation, which will extend to January 3.

STAFFORDVILLE

Miss Ruth A. Bosworth visited her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hulett and family in East Longmeadow, Mass., the first of last week.

Mrs. Herbert Bosworth and Mrs. Hiram Walbridge were in Rockville purchasing gifts for the Sunday school christmas tree to be held in the M. E. church Saturday evening, Dec. 24th.

Rev. Edward Eells spent a few days of last week in Walpole, Mass., visiting friends and former parishioners. He attended the centennial celebration of the Congregational church of Walpole.

Mrs. John DeCarli, with her twin sons, who has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Festi for a few days, has returned to her home in Rockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tallman and little Marjorie Brann, of Hartford, were guests of hr parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rishton, for a few days, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gladez and family, of Westfield, moved recently to the house vacated by Vern Hatt and family.

STERLING

Thursday night the Woman's Liberty club connected with the United Protestant church here gave an entertainment and supper. The church was crowded and a good sum was netted. The next entertainment at this church will be a Christmas concert on the evening of Dec. 23, given by the Sunday school.

PUTNAM

NATIVITY PLAY AT POMFRET DRAWS WIDE ATTENTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Dec. 19.—The Pomfret Nativity play, which has received so much local interest and national prominence for a number of years, was given Sunday night to three crowded houses. The first performance was at 6 o'clock, the second at 9 o'clock and the third one at 10 o'clock. This pantomime is simply an introduction to the spirit of Christmas and was originally conceived by Miss Ella Boult and Miss Beatrice Stevens, well known Pomfret artists, nearly twenty years ago and has attracted national recognition. Various publications all over the country have given much space to its description and portrayal. Many people from a distance were in Pomfret over the week-end to witness the performance.

After the singing of Christmas anthems by an invisible choir, and the reading of the gospel account of the birth of Christ by Rev. R. B. Hatch of St. Philip's Episcopal church, not a word was spoken. The scenes showed the shepherds watching their flocks by night, the star appearing in the East, the angel appearing to Joseph, the wise men and their visit to Mary at the manger, the multitude of the heavenly hosts and many other gospel scenes.

Warren W. Averill, J. Frederick Ash and Miss Annie Ash were members of the original cast who took their usual parts. Others who took part many times since the original presentation were Miss Ester Gustafson, Mrs. Eleanor Ash Bennett, Frank Chandler, Robert Arnold and L. Allen Averill. Miss Gustafson, who took the part of the Angel Gabriel, is a member of the all-star cast in the "Merry Wives of Windsor," of the Harrison Grey Fiske company and the closing of the company for a week enabled Miss Gustafson to reach Pomfret on Sunday, just in time for her usual part in the pantomine.

In the annual report of Miss Esther E. Wells, district nurse in Putnam, the following is the resume of the work done during the past year: Families attended, 536; patients attended, 637; visits, 1,831; nursing visits, 1,069; advisory visits, 719; s. s. visits, 43; pay patients, 75; free patients, 140; no charge patients, 244; insurance patients, 187; deliveries attended, 15; maternity patients, 60; prenatal patients, 155; C. WESTERLY

MECHANIC STREET FIRE—DAMAGE FROM SMOKE & WATER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 19—When Mrs. George Ward and son Fred returned home Monday afternoon about 3:45 and started a fire in the front room stove upstairs at 165 Mechanic street, flames shot out into the room and set it afire. Letter Carrier James P. McMahon turned in the alarm from Box No. 42, Mechanic street. The P. S. Barber Hose company responded with truck and Foreman Thomas L. Donohue took the hose from the booster tank into the front door of the two and a half story frame house and up stairs to direct the contents into the room where the blaze could be seen through the front windows. Two streams of hose were laid from the hydrant at Mechanic street and Burdick avenue, the first being also taken into the front of the house and soon subdued the blaze from which smoke poured from the roof, attic and second story windows. The second hydrant stream was in readiness at the rear of the house, but was not used. Furnishings of the room, half burned, were thrown out to the front lawn. At the rear of the house a ladder was raised and the attic window was forced by a fireman to allow the smoke collected in the attic to find vent. Just as the window was pushed in a sawed off double-barrelled shotgun dropped to the window sill, which the fireman calmly "broke" to see if it was loaded before passing it to the waiting firemen below.

Damage of several hundred dollars was done from fire, smoke and water. The loss was covered by insurance. The lower tenement was occupied by the family of Michael F. O'Connell, and the damage was mostly from water and smoke. Mrs. Margaret A. O'Connell had her attention directed to a pet poodle, which continued to gaze from her kitchen window unmindful of the crowd in autos which lined Mechanic street nearly to the press works of the C. B. Cottrell and Sons Co. The dog was rescued by her and many articles were salvaged. Firemen continued to watch the partitions for any indication of more fire and the recall was not sounded until about 5:30.

Christmas carol singing gave pleasure to five or six hundred persons, including many members of local church choirs at the United theater Sunday afternoon. The annual Yuletide song festival was conducted by the Young Women's Community association, Miss Lillian Russell, president. Ralph H. Koelb of Calvary Baptist church led the singing and Mrs. Charles S. Larkin, director of Christ Church choir, played the organ. There was a solo by Mrs. Theodore Dewhurst, soprano, with violin obligato by Miss Amy Eaton. Words of the carols were projected on the motion picture screen in the theater. The carols sung were "Joy to the World," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "As With Gladness Men of Old," "O Come, All Ye Faithful" and "Silent Night."

NOANK

The Boy Scouts basketball team is one of the best teams since the Scouts started playing three years ago. Saturday night at the town hall there came from the mill village of Taftville the Taftville Whirlwinds, in their pretty suits of white and blue. After going around the circle for ten minutes the referee's whistle sounded for the battle. The small crowd was ready to see one of the best games for the junior class in this section, for the Taftville boys knew the court game but the fighting Scouts with their grit and winning ways kept right after the ball. The first quarter was over, Scouts 8, Taftville 5. The quarter proved a good passing game on both sides and the fans cheered. The blue and white team was not used to the hall and found the baskets hard to get by back-boarding. But how the two small forwards could put the long shots in clean! Midget D. Roberston who is 55 inches high kept the crowd on edge with his over-hand shooting by running away from the basket. The first half was over Noank 16, Taftville 11. After 10 minutes' rest the Whirlwinds team went into a huddle and said "Get the Noank forwards, stop them from shooting and let's bring back to the mill town the bacon!" Timer Sweet's whistle was heard for the third quarter and the team from Taftville put in a field goal and foul in quick time. Lanky Chesebro shot a side shot for his team for Whirlwinds' guards seemed to have the Scouts' forwards on the go, keeping them in their sight. When the third quarter was over the Taftville boys had outscored them 3 to 2, but the lead Noank had was big to cut down and it stood Scouts 18, Whirlwinds 14. Going into the final quarter with a small lead for the Scouts in the white suits, their cheering section on the side lines, led by Cheer-leader George Patterson was roaring encouragement; but Taftville team showed their never-given-up spirit and the quarter was fast and the back team playing clean. Spark Clark, the center with a left hand tap kept getting the ball to his teammates and when the game was over the Scouts had won, 34 to 17, but the Wijirlwinds went down fighting to the end and the fans went home satisfied with their money's worth, for it was the fastest and best game in the village hall this season. Midget D. Roberston got 5 field goals, Spark Clark was credited with 4 goals and Lanky Chesebro did good floor work for the Scouts. For Taftville's team, Durr made 4 field goals, 2 fouls; Adams 3 field goals and they were the stars. Timer, Sweet; scorer, Jackson. Attendance 95.

Word has been received in the village from Philadelphia by Charles Cox that his brother Arthur is seriously ill in a hospital.

The fire bell was rung by Eddie Morgan and Lester Smith for over 10 minutes Saturday afternoon at 2:30 for a chimney fire at the home of O. W. Beebe on Elm street. The fire engine did quick time. Behind the wheel was Earl Foster and 15 smoke-eaters were on board. Getting out the ladders, up went Hoseman Ebbert Palmer and Ladderman A. Brocky with two fire extinguishers, using about 10 gallons of chemicals before the blaze was out. Much excitement was caused neighbors in that section, who had buckets ready to do their part. The damage was so slight, one fireman said "I think Capt. Beebe must have burned his toast; that set the chimney afire!" At 3:10 p. m. the recall was sent in by Chief Park and the fire fighters were on their way back to the fire house.

About 7:30 o'clock Saturday morning when Angus MacLeod of Prospect Hill was taking his tools from his tool box to start his day's work on the fishing boat the boards on the stagings were slippery, on account of the light ice the night before. He was on the brow of the boat when he slipped and fell 8 feet to the ground, striking a block of wood. The other workmen rushed to his aid and carried him to the office of the plant where a doctor was called from the village. Later Mr. MacLeod was removed to his home. His injuries consist of a broken collar bone, one rib broken, and a cut on his head. Mr. MacLeod is an old time shipyard carpenter.

OUTSTANDING CRIMES IN 17 YEARS IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The Marian Parker case is the fourth outstanding criminal mystery in 17 years in Los Angeles.

Anna Poltera, a Mexican girl, 9 years old, disappeared on the afternoon of May 17, 1909, while on her way home from school. Her body was found in Griffith Park, several days later. No trace of the kidnaper was found.

Mrs. Gladyseles Resident, was lured from her home by kidnapers in January, 1921, and held captive for five days in a lonely cabin near Corona, 60 miles east, while demands for $20,000 ransom were made. Her abductors, Floyd L. Carr and Arthur W. Carr, were captured after a telephone conversation was overheard, and are serving life sentences in San Quentin penitentiary. Mrs. Witherell was returned virtually uninjured.

The case of the Martin girls—May, 12, and Nine, 8,—kidnaped Aug. 23, 1924, and murdered, rivals the Marian Parker tragedy in brutality. Their bodies were not found until February of the following years. E. C. Stone, a night watchman in the district where the abduction occurred, was convicted and sentenced to death. Later the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, disappeared May 18, 1926, and reappeared the following June 23. Doubt over her story that she had been kidnaped resulted in filing of charges of conspiracy which later were dropped by the district attorney.

FARM ORGANIZATIONS PROTEST TO THE I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Declaring that a proposed reduction in railroad rates on iron and steel intended for export would so diminish the earnings of the carriers that the farmer would have slight chance of obtaining lowr schedules on his products, a group of Kansas far morganizations asked today that the Interstate Commerce commission withhold its approval. The proposal was advanced by eastern railroads, the new rates to become effective Dec. 3.

The protesting organizations, represented by Clyde M. Reed, former chairman of the Kansas Utilities commission, included the Kansas grange, the Farmers' union, the State Farm bureau, and Kansas cooperatives engaged in marketing wheat and live stock. A petition was presented asserting that the organizations considered that they spoke for all the grain growing territory of the west.

A congressional declaration, generally called the Hoch-Smith resolution, the petition said, has directed the commission to fix the lowest possible rates on all types of agricultural products. It was recalled that the commission, while engaged in a general investigation to determine the possible treatment of agricultural rates, has refused in a number of cases to allow rate changes in advance of its findings.

The document asked that the commission suspend the iron and steel export rates, and prevent them from going into effect. The grain producers particularly presented the demand, because a large portion of its output moves into export over the lines of the same roads that are now proposing to cut the iron and steel charges.

RAIN, SLEET AND SNOW IN CENTRAL NEW YORK

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Many more hours of disrupted transportation and communication service faced central New York state tonight as gangs of road workers and linemen, the latter imported from every part of the state, attempted to repair damage done by four days of rain, sleet and snow storms.

The worst conditions were in Oswego county, a few miles north of here, there a blanket of snow varying in depth from seven inches to more than two feet covered the ground, and whipped by high winds, piled into drifts which made highways and railroad cuts impassable. Automobile bus service was suspended throughout the area after two Watertown-Syracuse machines were forced to remain overnight at Pulaski, halfway between the two cities, while snow and fallen wires forced suspension of traffic on the Ontario division of the New York Central railroad out of Oswego.

A snow storm which at times nearly reached blizzard proportions was in progress here during the afternoon and into the night, threatening further tieups on main east and west transportation lines. Up to early this evening however, the main line of the New York Central railroad reported little difficulty in holding to its schedules.

The severe snow fall of last night seriously hampered restoration of the wire communication with the north, wires which fell last Friday night under the weight of tons of frozen sleet still lay under the snow today, cutting off telephone or telegraph connections with the outside world. Several places also were without light due to the failure of power lines, but no serious conditions were reported.

U. S. Admiral Reported In Dispute With British

Vice Admiral Guy H. Burrage, commanding the American naval squadron in European waters, who it is reported has mixed himself up in a snarl with British authorities at Gibraltar. According to the rumor, Admiral Burrage claims that the British at Gibraltar refused facilities for landing the men on leave and for sports and other forms of entertainment, also that the British shipyards at that place made exhorbitant bids for work on the ships, forcing him to take the ships to French dockyards for repairs.

MYSTIC

Sunday the Masons and Eastern Star were invited to attend the morning service in the Union Baptist church. Fifty-six men, followed by thirty-six women marched in and occupied seats in the center aisle and with the regular congregation nearly filled the large auditorium. The pastor, Rev. Louis J. Shepler, who is a Mason, preached an eloquent sermon on prayer and service. At the close of the service as the visitors marched out he greeted each one. The flowers were given in memory of memory of Hiram Burnett's birthday, by his daughters, Mrs. L. M. Allyn and Miss Joanna Burnett. Mrs. Joseph Johnson sang a solo during the service.

Men in the employ of the town of Stonington have been engaged in removing the large elm on the corner of East Main street and Lincoln avenue. It was nearly dead and considered dangerous. They are also removing one on Denison avenue in front of J. W. McDonald's residence. A part of the latter tree had broken off sometime ago, leaving it in a bad condition. The village has none too many trees and it is regretted when one is taken down, but in this case it was necessary.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, at Sunday morning's worship at the First Congregational church, preached from the text, Isaiah 60-22. A little one shall become a thousand and a small one a strong nation. The Lord will hasten it in His time. "Perserverance as Illustrated by the Pilgrims," was the theme of the sermon.

The Junior Christian Endeavor society, at its Sunday afternoon meeting, held a Christmas service entitled "A Christmas Story," in charge of the prayer meeting committee. Elaine Barrett was leader. The Story of the Wis Men was told by Ruth Avery, while Miss Elizabeth Avery, a former junior leader, present at the meeting, told the story of the shepherds. Miss Jessie E. Hyde related the story of "A Shepherd Boy of the Bethlehem Hills;" also told the story, "When Santa Claus Came to the Parsonage." The children sang several Christmas songs, Miss Rose Durr accompanying at the piano. Conspicuous among the decorations was a wreath, star and a small Christmas tree, the tree presented the children by Miss Helen Woodworth, corresponding secretary of Connecticut Christian Endeavor, and who gave an address to the children at their meeting the preceding Sunday.

Little Betty Browning sang The Birthday song, at which time the November and December birthdays of members of the juniors were celebrated. Each child was presented a bookmark by the junior committee. The next meeting which was scheduled for Christmas day, is to be omitted, his service having taken place Sunday last, instead.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening was in charge of Miss Louise Sterry. As the meeting is to be postponed next week because of the holiday, the topic assigned to that date was used a week in advance. "What Does Christmas Mean to the World?" John 3:16; Luke 2:8-11, was the scripture reference.

"A Service of Praise and Prayer," Luke 2:4-20, is the theme assigned to the mid-week prayer service of the Congregational church, continuing the study of Advent.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week there was considerable progress made on buildings in Norwich now under construction. The rain and cold weather did not materially slow up the work as the greater part has reached the interior stage.

The new building for the Silberman Co. is well along and has been roofed so that work goes along rapidly on the interior.

The work at the Norwich State hospital on the new ward buildings is well along, one having been roofed while the walls of the other are being erected.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton only four applications for building permits were received and these were for small buildings.

Work on the two concrete silos for the Shetucket Coal and Lumber Co. is nearly complete with the exception of the hoisting apparatus.

Other buildings have been brought along at an equal rate of progress and from present indications the 1927 season will exceed past years in the volume of building and amount expended.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were five sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to 15 sales for the corresponding week in 1926. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $16,300 and 69,750.

There were nine sales of real estate in New London during the past week an increase of three sales over the same week a year ago The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $63,650 and $45,265.

The Neptune building, at the corner of State, Atlantic and North Bank streets, has been purchased from the Salvation Army by the W. S. Alling Rubber company, State street. The building, which is of brick construction, three stories high on the State street front and an additional story in the rear, will be altered by the new owners.

It will contain 100 rooms. The basement will include storage rooms and a laundry. The plans also call for a laboratory, recreation room, a demonstration room and a chemical laboratory. There will be an elevator and an incinerator. Excavating has been started.

BIG GAIN IN BUILDING IN CONNECTICUT CITIES

Connecticut's total of building permits issued during November greatly exceeded the totals both for October and for the month of November last year, according to the monthly building survey compiled by the New Haven railroad under the direction of S. L. Taylor, secretary of the committee on industrial development of the railroad. The large increase in building permits was made possible chiefly by the astounding total issued in New Haven during the month, the permits issued in the Elm City being valued at $6,299,206. New Haven increased its building total by more than five million dollars over November, 1926, and by nearly six million over October, 1927.

Fourteen cities enjoyed gains in building activity as compared with November, 1926, these communities being Bristol, Bridgeport, Danbury, Derby, Meriden, Middletown, Naugatuck, New Haven, New London, Norwich, Torrington, West Haven, West Hartford and Willimantic. In 11 communities gains were recorded over October. These cities were Bridgeport, Derby, Greenwich, Naugatuck, New Britain, New Haven, New London, Torrington, West Haven, Waterbury, and West Hartford. Bridgeport was second on the list for the month with a building total of 922,576, while Hartford occupied third place with a figure of $783,531.

BUSINESS HIGH SPOTS BY STATE CHAMBER

Twenty-five air mail routes now operating or soon to operate in the United States will serve trading areas embracing a population of 62,299,409 persons, according to one of the 64 items of information relating to business conditions, foreign business developments, industry, mercantile trends and insurance which appear in the latest issue of "Business High Spots" sent by the Connecticut chamber of commerce to its members.

Other interesting items are: Business conditions: Although bunes activity began last spring to fall below the totals of last year, it is now on a basis "That more nearly conforms to normal expectancy" when considered in relation to the normal growth of the country, the secretary of the treasury declares.

Despite the fact that cost of living has increased and standards living have risen, the ratio of wages to American workmen has increased above the ratio of the cost of living, according to the annual report of the secretary of labor.

The six principal crops—wheat, rye, barley, oats, corn and potatoes—show a composite average of 6 per cent above last year and 9 per cent above the 3 preceding years' average and the 5 years' pre-war average.

Less favorable business conditions throughout the country and higher operating expense, resulted in the net operating income of the first 29 railroads reporting for October showing a decline of 11.4 per cent from the same month of 1926. The decline was from $75,942,000 a year ago to $67,254,000.

Foreign: Open roads all winter are sought by the Royal Automobile club of Canada. Cost of removing the snow from these highways and of constructing fences along them, the club believes, will be more than paid for by the gasoline tax to be obtained by travel over them.

Special delivery articles for Cuba and other foreign countries must be marked "expres" to obtain expeditious handling. Full text of announcement available.

Population of Cuba increased about 9,000 in first 9 months of 1927, bringing the total population as of September 30, 1927, to 3,576,675. Population of Havana decreased about 500 in same period.

Second class fares by air provided on London-Paris route. Cost for one-way-trip is reduced to $18.50 to stimulate travel by airplane.

Industry: Secretary of labor declares that among the outstanding labor problems before the country are the "scrapping" of men, and the equalization of wages for the same work.

HAS PLAN TO SAVE LIVES OF MEN IN S-4

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 19.—(AP)—J. Robert Fish, Springfield inventor, suggested a plan he believes would save the lives of the six men imprisoned on the submarine S-4. He would construct a box of steel plates large enough to hold eight men and lower it onto the submarine. He wired the Charlestown navy yard as follows:

"Weld steel plates together so as to form box large enough to hold eight men. Make manhole in bottom of box cover to operate from inside. Place ring gasket around manhole on outside of box so that it will form water tight seal when box is lowered to submarine. Have flange in manhole which could be welded to submarine is necessary.

Weight box so that it will be heavy enough to form watertight seal by pressing gasket tightly between box and submarine. Have airlines capable of changing another fast enough to carry off welding fumes.

To put into use place food, water and welding equipment into box. Pump air into box. Men inside seal manhole. Have divers on submarine. Lower box onto submarine. Outside divers get box into position. Slack way off on hoisting cable. Men in box loosen up manhole cover. If no water comes in, take out manhole cover and burn hole in submarine. Men in submarine into box. Seal manhole.

If water comes in increase air pressure in box to counter water. Weld flange around manhole to submarine, changing air in box fast enough to carry off fumes. Cut hole in submarine. Get men into box. Cut box free of submarine.

OKLAHOMA'S POLITICAL CONTROVERSY IN COURTS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 19—(AP)—Courts held the spotlight again today in Oklahoma's political drama.

The day marked the second failure of efforts to take the question of validity of the legislature's self-called impeachment session before the state criminal court of appeals and the issuance of subpoenas to more than a score of administration leaders who have opposed the session, ordering them to appear in district court tomorrow to give depositions.

The criminal court of appeals declined to issue a writ of habeas corpus to R. P. Wents, who challenged the right of Governor Henry S. Johnston to order him returned to Little Rock, Ark., to face a charge of embezzling a diamond ring. Wents's attorney, David Tent, had argued that Governor Johnston was automatically suspended last week by the acceptance of house impeachment charges by the senate. He contended that despite the fact the senate had voted specifically not to suspend the governor until he be brought to trial, the state constitution made suspension mandatory.

Presiding Judge Thomas H. Doyle, however, refused to entertain Tent's arguments. He held that even if the acceptance of charges had served to suspend Governor Johnston, he was still governor in fact, since there had been no effort on the part of Lieut-Governor W. J. Holloway to assume the office. Judge Doyle's view was subscribed to by the other two members of the court.

Subpoenas were issued today to Governor Johnston; all members of the state supreme court; Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, the governor's confidential secretary; J. R. Armstrong, counsellor to the governor and Mrs. Hammond's uncle; and a number of administration employes, ordering them to appear in district court tomorrow and give testimony relative to the present situation.

POETRY

A Song for December

The earth's shroud is embossed
With gems of twinkling frost;
The heavens snap with cold,
A wind mysterious thrills,
With music sweet and old.
The stars sing in December
And shake with music yet;
For are they will remember,
Although the world forget,
The God-child's birth-cry ringing
From out a lowly place
That sets the planets singing
In farthest fields of space.

From warm sweet depths of sleep
Where little child-hearts keep Their faith until the morn,
Beyond the silent bars
To shake the farthest stars
Another song is borne.
Their hopeful dreams ascending
In waves of music flow,
A joyous chorus blending
With song the night is teaming.
But, oh, how mute we are,
Who have not faith for dreaming
Nor wisdom of the star!
—By T. A. Daly.

The Two Friends

I have two friends—two glorious friends
—two better could not be.
And every night when midnight tolls they meet to laugh with me.

The first was shot by Carlist thieves—
ten years ago in Spain
The second drowned near Alicante—and
I alive remain.

I love to see their dim white forms come floating through the night.
And grieve to see them fade away in early morning light.

The first with gnomes in the Underland is leading a lordly life,
The second has married a mermaiden, a beautiful water-wife.

And since I have friends in the Earth and Sea—with a few I trust on high,
'Tis matter of small account to me—the way that I may die,

For whether I sink in the foaming flood,
or swing on the triple tree,
Or die in my bed, as a Christian should,
is all the same to me.
—Charles Godfrey Leland.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Doctor—"You have dyskinesia."

Patient—"Don't cure me until I learn to pronounce it, will you?"—Exchange.

First caveman—"I'm looking for a wife."

Second caveman—"So am I. Let's club together."—Life.

Husband—"Doctor, what's good for my wife's fallen arches?"

Doctor—"Rubber heels."

Harassed hub—"I wish I lived where the styles in dress never change."

Snappy spouse—"Humph! There's the penitentiary, if that's all you want."—Boston Transcript.

"Make your story short," growled the grocer to the traveling salesman.

"I can't," panted the latter. "I'm selling cereals."—The Progressive Grocer.

"I believe I'm in luck this time. My new maid's a treasure—clean, energetic, economical and capable."

"How long have you had her?"

"She's coming in tomorrow."—Montreal Family Herald.

Lady of the House—I'll give you something to eat if you'll chop that wood.

Flivver Gypsy—Pardon, lady, but I'm a tree doctor, and it's against the rules of my profession to hold autopsies.—Detroit News.

Wife—I've just been reading an article on electricity, and it seems that before long we shall be able to get nearly everything we want by just touching a button.

Husband—You'll never be able to get anything that way.

Why not.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Argentina's corn crop promises a surplus for export of 233,000,000 bushels.

Mt. Rainier was built up to its present hight of more than 14,000 feet by successive layers of lava, ash and other volcanic materials.

A parrot, taught by its owner, Miss Anna Watkins, of Buffalo, N. Y., to shout "police" at any strange person, remembered his lessons when a burglar forced a window and frightened the burglar away.

A clock is operated in the Polytechnic Institute of Zurich, Switzerland, which does not need to be wound. Its running power is provided by a mechanism set in motion each time there is a variation in temperature of 2 degrees.

The Japanese, who 30 years ago, never drank milk and gave it to infants only as a last resort, are learning to like it through efforts to popularize it as a beverage and item of food. The increasing population of foreigners largely was responsible for the first increased demand, which was met by importations of condensed and powdered milk.

A dish of cooked ants is a delicious food, says a globe trotter writing to the London newspapers. He has lived in Uganda for many years and says that there are many kinds of ants greedily relished by the inhabitants. Some prefer their ants raw, others cooked. In hospitals a plate of boiled ants is frequently given to patients, while on market days children buy portions wrapped up in banana leaves.

Count George Friedrich Solms-Laubach, flying mate and financial backer of Otto Koennecks, devotes many an evening hour to playing the organ. Count Solms boasts of having one of the oldest and most interesting organs in Germany. It is so rare a specimen of the art of organ building in the seventeenth century that the management of the Frankfurt exposition on "Music in the Life of the Nations" requested its loan for the duration of the fair. Count Solm readily assented. The ancient organ has only five stops and one manual.

The report that the Leaning Tower of Pisa is in danger of toppling over has led a German camera man to go on the hunt for the leaning towers of Germany. He has discovered three of them. The first is the belfry of the Catholic village church at Frankenstein, in Silesia. It stands off from the rest of the church and leans for about three-fourths of its height. The top is straight. The belfry assumed this grotesque form as a result of an earthquake several hundred years ago. At Bad Ems, the favorite spa of Emperor William I, there is an ancient tower which leans over the country road at so sharp an angle as to make one expect its fall any moment. It was part of the town's medieval fortifications. In the city of Ulm, famous for its Gothic minster, or cathedral, there is a leaning tower known as the "Metzgerturm," or butchers' tower. It was the guild headquarters of the butchers in the middle ages.

Almost two-thirds of the world's population has never heard of Christmas.

STOCK PRICES CONTINUE TO RISE AS BUYING ORDERS COVER A BROAD LIST

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Resumption of the "bull" movement in prices in today's stock market carried the average of 20 leading industrial shares to a new high record for all time. Buying orders were again distributed over a broad list, but speculative attention centered largely in the so-called specialties believed to be under pool sponsorship. While final quotations disclosed a number of advances ranging from 5 to nearly 12 points, there were also a sizeable number of declines, some of which ran as much as 5 points.

Fears that the rapidity of the recent advance had impaired the technical position of the market were expressed in a number of commission house advices, and undoubtedly inspired much of day's selling. "Bear" traders also went gunning for weak spots but, with few exceptions, met with little success. Continuation of call money at 4 per cent, declaration of several "Christmas dividends" and the publication of another series of optimistic business forecasts for 1928, all helped to maintain bullish enthusiasm.

Although the Kansas City Southern Railroad, the first to report its November earnings, showed a small increase in net operating income as compared with the same month in 926, the rails as a group were rather sluggish. Wall street was filled with rumors that the Interstate Commerce commission would shortly hand down unfavorable decisions in the St. Paul reorganization and Chesapeake & Ohio merger cases, but no basis for these reports could be found. Bankers in each case were still hopeful of favorable action. Losses, as a rule, were confined to a point or less.

Copper shares continued to respond to predictions of 15 cent copper and better earnings next year. Greene Cananea, which is believed to harbor a trapped interest, ran up nearly 13 points to a record high at 142, and closed within a small fraction of the top. Anaconda, Chile and Miami also reached new high ground. Steel shares held firm on reports of improving trade conditions and unconformed rumors of special dividend action on U. S. Steel common early next year. Vanadium ran up more than 6 points to a new peak at 65. Ludlum was conspicuously heavy.

Among the heavy issues to break into new high ground during the day were American Can, Brown Shoe, Coca Cola, International Business Machines, Indian Motorcycle, Montgomery-Ward, Sears Roebuck, Southern California Edison and Union Tank Car.

Oils were heavily bought in reflection of the recent increase in Pennsylvania crude prices and rumors of an early increase in the Southwest. Sinclair and Simms touched new 1927 peaks. Pan-American issues were weak, selling at the lowest prices in three years on unfavorable dividend rumors. Acute weakness also was shown by American Machine & Foundry, Cudahy Packing, Gabriel Snubber, International Silver, and Miller Rubber, selling of the last-named being influenced by the omission of the dividend.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sharp advances in wheat and cotton featured the commodity markets.

Except for a jump of more than 20 points in Japanese yen, which again ruled around 46 1-4 cents, there was little of interest in the foreign exchange market. Sterling cables ruled slightly higher around 4.88 5-16.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad has entered the equipment market for 690 miscellaneous passenger and baggage cars requiring expenditures of between ten and twelve million dollars.

Negotiations are reported to be under way for consolidation of Fox Film corporation and the Fox Theatres corporation into one company. Details have not been announced.

The paper industry continues to enjoy a large volume of business, but is profiting from this demand only to a moderate extent, says A. A. Graustein, president of International Paper Co. Excess capacity in this, as in many other important industries, has made it difficult for producers to maintain prices at levels justified by capital investment and costs of manufacture. Over production in leading wood pulp producing countries has been a disturbing factor also. Consumption of most grades of paper in 928, he said, was expected to surpass all previous records and the industry may regard the outlook with renewed confidence.

The second vacancy of the directorate of the United States Steel corporation has been created by the death of William P. Palmer, president of the American Steel & Wire Co. A successor on the board to Elbert H. Gray, chairman, who died August 15, has not been chosen.

Plants of General Alloys Co. are operating on a 14-hour daily production schedule and unfilled orders for Nichel-Chromium Alloy Steel and Casting are at the record figure of 300,000 tons, President Harris reported.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Few features relieved the bond market today from absolute dullness. Prices on the whole were fractionally irregular, and there was an air of marking time, presumably due largely to the approach of the holidays. New bonds offered as the week opened approximated $70,000,000, but with money continuing at easy rates, the competition thus presented had little, if any, effect on the price trend in the listed market.

Buyers favored the oil group. Simms Petroleum 6s sold as high as 100 3-4, an extreme gain of nearly 3 points, while moderately large accumulation was noted in Barnsdall 6s, Sinclair 6s and 6 1-2s and Humble 5s. The demand in this group was attributed to recent inactivity of petroleum issues and a feeling that they were "out of line." Coppers, which led the list all last week, eased off from their year's high level.

Interest in the railway division was confined to a few ordinarily inactive bonds, such as Ulster & Delaware 5s and New York Central & Hudson river 4s, a point gain by the former being balanced by a like loss in the latter. New Haven 4s sold at 80 for the first time this year on a handful of transactions. Public Utilities were neglected.

There was moderate accumulation of some of the U. S. treasury issues, but Liberty 3 1-2s fell below 102 for the first time in several weeks.

Offering was expected some time this week of the $50,000,000 Peruvian national loan, to be floated in this and European markets, as part of a large refunding operation. Listed foreign bonds were steady in the main, with easing tendencies in the French and Italian groups.

New England Industries

CHEMICALS.

New England produces four percent of the total production of chemicals in the United states, with four percent of the workers and seven percent of the establishments in this industry located here. Products considered under this heading in a survey conducted by the United States department of commerce in co-operation with the New England council do not include sulphuric, nitric, or mixed acids, explosives or wood distillation products.

The average value of products for each plant reporting in this survey is $523,000. Massachusetts produces 90 percent of the output for New England, the greater part of which is sold in regional markets. Almost every company reports an increase in New England sales since 1921, but decreases are reported by manufacturers of chemicals for the textile industry. Total sales increased 17 percent in 1926 and eight percent in 1926, with a decrease of 12 percent in 1924, and another increase of 10 percent in 1925.

The average age of plants is 22 years in Massachusetts, 13 in Connecticut, and 10 in Rhode Island. Nearness to market has been the chief attraction for locating in New England, although in Massachusetts favorable labor conditions are a close second. Only one plant reported branches, all of which are established in New England. There is little use of incentive wage methods such as piece work, while seasonal employment fluctuations are slight. Only three companies report the development of special products or supplementary employment for slack periods.

Five companies state that they brand or trademark all their products; two companies identify between 90 and 100 percent of their products in this way. Distribution is direct to wholesalers and manufacturing consumers. Other channels reported are through commission agents or direct to retailers.

Cost of material averages 57 percent of value of product, and labor costs amount to 20 percent. All but two of the reporting Massachusetts plants employ less than 30 workers. Connecticut plants report from four to 100 employes and Rhode Island establishments from three to 30.

nell the crew was making everything fast in expectation of increasing wind tonight.

The coast guard patrol boat 178 took seven navy divers out to the Bushnell during the afternoon. The sea was very rough and few boats ventured out at any time during the day.

The mine-sweeper Falcon, from which diving operations were carried on yesterday and last night was absent today, having gone to Boston to take a diver, injured last night to the hospital and to get additional equipment and provisions.

TERRIFIED BY NEWS OF BREAK IN THE AIR LINE

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 19—(AP)—Six men were huddled together in the forward torpedo compartment of the sunken submarine S-4 waiting in an agony of mind that can only faintly imagined for the rescue that did not come. That was the situation that confronted the naval and coast guard armada which was foiled by high seas today in its frantic effort to carry aid.

Whether any others of the forty men who went down when the submarine sank after collision with the coast guard destroyer Paulding Saturday afternoon were still alive no one knew. That those six had survived at least part of another day was indicated by a radio message from the rescue fleet which said they had sent out signals as late as two o'clock this afternoon.

All that could be told earlier in the day was that messages had been interchanged between divers and the imprisoned men last night and early today. The man who deliberately and with apparent calmness in the face of a terrible fate tapped out in the Morse code the word that came from within the submarine was Lieutenant Graham Newell Fitch, one of the four officers aboard.

"How long will you be?" was the plea that came to the rescuers last night. The last message received early today asked if oxygen and emergency food supplies could not be pushed through the torpedo tube.

Then communication ceased. A diver had been seriously injured. After he had been rescued from a perilous position in tangled wreckage 100 feet beneath the surface the gale had kicked up such terrific waves that it was impossible to continue diving operations.

Meanwhile a discovery was made which led to even graver fears for the men down under the ocean. The air line through which it had been thought they were being given means to breathe was not functioning as had been desired.

The mine sweeper Falcon had hooked an air line to a connection with one of the two air lines on the S-4 opening into the torpedo room. The men inside signalled that when they opened the valve water instead of air came in.

It was when Diver L. C. Michaels went down to try to connect the air line with a second line on the submarine that his lines became fouled and he was caught in the tangle. He was unconscious when hauled up. The connection was not made.

The army of men aboard the rescue fleets were helpless while the gale raged. Michaels needed hospital attention. Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, aboard the Falcon and in charge of operations, decided to make a run to Boston.

The Falcon made a quick trip to the Charlestown navy yard. Michaels was taken to the naval hospital at Chelsea where it was said tonight he probably would recover.

Admiral Brumby held a hasty conference with Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commandant of the yard. Then the Falcon, with more supplies aboard hurried back to Provincetown.

The terrifying news of the break in the air line of the S-4 was received by the same system of dots and dashes which had brought the hopeful message that six still lived in the torpedo compartment at the forward end of the submarine. It was this latter message which ended with the urgent: "Please hurry, will you be long now?"

The air line of the S-4 is a pipe about one and a half inches in diameter running from one end of the ship to the other and affording an outside connection near the conning tower. The line is designed to carry air to men in the various compartments when the submarine is beneath the surface. In each compartment is a gag valve, a small wedge-shaped piece of metal, which is usually left open, so that air can be forced into the compartment in any emergency.

With this line unbroken the imprisoned could be fed life-giving air indefinitely. It was to the external connection of this vein of life that divers last night bent all their efforts.

"Try your gag valve" the Falcon messaged to the imprisoned a hundred feet beneath the surface. On the reply to these instructions hung the hope of speedy aid for the unfortunates. Not even the bitter cold of Provincetown's wind and water could resist the glow of that hope.

And then came the answer that the valve admitted water when opened, that it must be kept closed to save the men from the water which would force its way into their compartment from a break in the line in some other part of the ship. It was an answer that the line carried death instead of life for the men, it dimmed hopes for a speedy rescue but it served to determined defiance of all elements in the attempt to succor the men "down there".

AIRPLANE TENDER WRIGHT DELAYED BY HEAVY SEAS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—The airplane tender Wright, which left Norfolk late yesterday for the scene of the S-4 disaster with pontoons and other equipment, advised the navy department by radio tonight that she was being delayed by heavy seas. Her time of arrival off Provincetown is uncertain.

MAY ATTEMPT FORCE OXYGEN THROUGH TORPEDO TUBES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—An attempt to force an oxygen flask and food supplies through torpedo tubes to the six men trapped in the sunken submarine S-4 will be made as soon as the weather moderates sufficiently to permit diving operations.

Everything is in readiness, a message received tonight at the navy department said, to make the attempt, but it was indicated that the diver might experience some difficulty in reaching the tubes. Soda, lime and a flashlight were included in the list of articles to be passed through to the men.

The message said that the diver might be impeded by mud which would have to be washed away from the mouth of the tubes.

"All available information from chart soundings and divers' reports show S-4 lying in deep mud," the message continued. "One diver went into mud up to his hips abreast conning tower and was pulled out with difficulty. Another diver reports mud piled on bow, probably due to scooping action when vessel struck."

Naval officers here said the mud would be washed away by means of a hydraulic pump carried to the bottom by the diver, and this operation of itself would be comparatively simple.

12 SEAMEN NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(AP)—Twelve seamen narrowly escaped death in the icy waters of Long Island sound today when heavy seas capsized two small boats in which they were attempting to salvage a pontoon which had broken loose from the naval tug Iuka on its way to scene of the sinking of the submarine S-4.

The twelve struggled ashore through the heavy surf and were taken to the coast guard station at Rocky Point, five miles away.

When the pontoon, one of three being towed by the Iuka, was sighted off Horton's Point, near Greenpoint, L. I., three men put off from the Chewink in a dory and nine more followed from a coast guard cutter in a 31-foot motor launch. The dory capsized first, and, as the men started to swim ashore, another wave overturned the larger boat.

MESSAGE AT 4.45 ASKED "IS THERE ANY HOPE?"

BOSTONN, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The six men imprisoned in the submarine S-4 at the bottom of the ocean off Provincetown, were still alive at 4.45 o'clock this afternoon, a radio message received at the navy yard here reported.

The brief message received here said that the men aboard the S-4 asked, "Is there any hope?"

The communication was in code tapped on the hull of the sunken submarine by the men and the message was picked up by the oscillator on her sister ship, the S-3 which had received previous communications during the day.

WILL ATTEMPT TO CONVEY FOOD TO IMPRISONED MEN

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 19—(AP)—Despite a heavy gale that made ship to ship communications almost impossible, a coast guard surf boat late tonight moved 12 cans of concentrated food and several lengths of hose from the submarine S-3 to the mine sweeper Falcon. The mine sweeper will attempt to convey the food to the six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4.

On her second trip the surf boat was assisted by coast guard patrol boat 178. While the supplies were being transferred Alvin Fisher, a member of the Sandwich coast guard crew was injured. He was later removed to the coast guard cutter Tampa. His injuries were internal, physicians said.

The line of the surf boat became entangled in the propeller of the patrol boat, which was compelled to tow the Sandwich men into Provincetown harbor.

The gale at midnight was heavier than in the early evening when the wind velocity was 40 miles. Officers of the patrol boat said the craft rolled so much that it was impossible to stand on the deck.

LINDBERGH TO INCLUDE NICARAGUA IN HIS TOUR

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 19—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh announced this afternoon that he will include Nicaragua in his Central American tour but will be unable to extend it to South America, although he hopes to do so some time in the future.

Guatemala City will be the first stop in Central America, Colonel Lindbergh said in announcing that he will leave Mexico City some time after Christmas day. He expects to make the trip from Mexico City to Guatemala City in about nine hours, allowing generously for head winds.

"I am accepting invitations from all Central American countries," Colonel Lindbergh added.

LINDBERGH PRONOUNCED BULLFIGHT INTERESTING

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 19—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh thinks a bull fight is "very interesting" but "that is all there is to say about it."

Asked by newspapermen this afternoon what he thought of the chief Mexican sport which he witnessed at an exhibition yesterday afternoon, he thus dismissed the subject which prompted vigorous protest by several American humane societies.

In a semi-humorous editorial today El Universal Grafico says it was "United States puritanism" that protested Lindbergh's attendance at the bull fight," yet those same puritans while protesting were themselves eating the meat of animals that had been killed that they might eat." The newspaper praised Lindbergh's action in accepting the invitation and said that if he had refused he would have offended millions of Mexicans whereas to accept he offended a "handful of Puritans."

AUTO ACCIDENT FATAL TO MERIDEN 8-YEAR-OLD BOY

MERIDEN, Dec. 19—(AP)—Succumbing to injuries that he sustained yesterday morning when crushed against a hydrant by an automobile, Albert Yara, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Yara of Hobson avenue, this city, died at the Meriden hospital late this afternoon. Dr. E. T. Bradstreet, medical examiner, attributed death to a crushed chest. He is a victim of a hit and run driver.

Frederick E. Soper, 54, of 19 Crompton street, New Haven, driver of the car is out on $500 bonds on charges of evading responsibility and reckless driving.

CHRISTMAS AN OCCASION FOR "PAGAN BARTERING"

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(AP)—Christmas is rapidly becoming an occasion for "pagan bartering," the Rev. Dr William H. Faulks, pastor of the First Presbyter'an church of Newark, N. J., told the New York Methodist Preachers' association today.

"Peoples' eyes are filled with tinsel," he said. "They do not penetrate to the pure gold of divine reality." He conceded that men and boys have their place in the observance of Christmas, but declared they have little in common with the real purpose of the day.

THREATS OF DEATH MADE AGAINST A CLERGYMAN

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 19—(AP)—Threats of death have been made against the Rev. John S. Hackett, pastor of Wiley Methodist Episcopal church, because of his sermons exposing alleged vice conditions in the neighborhood of his church.

The pastor made this known tonight after a sermon on Sunday in which he declared that the "hands of the police are tied and they cannot uphold the laws." He said he would continue his campaign against "speakeasies and dens of vice which honeycomb this neighborhood."

CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCES.

Cakes made of honey, nuts and poppy seeds are always a feature of the Christmas supper in Hungary.

The very first evidence of a feast having been held in honor of the birth of Christ was in Egypt, about the year 200.

Among the peasantry of Czechoslovakia it is the custom to remember each animal on the farm with special food at Christmas.

Santa Claus was introduced into America by the Dutch. He is the American representative of the German Knocht Rupert.

The most famous event in United States history associated with Christmas day was Washington's crossing of the Delaware river to attack the British at Trenton, N. J.

In Sweden the Christmas tree is kept some weeks, usualy until January 13, when the neighbors' children are invited in to "plunder" it. It is a matter of great pride to the average Swedish youngster to have attended a large number of such "plunderings."

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN CONGRESS YESTERDAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Congress scattered its energies in so many directions today that the sum total of progress on outstanding legislation was almost imperceptible.

The senate spent the day introducing bills and resolutions, discussing in plain-spoken indignation of the Hearst Mexican slush fund charges, and putting the breaks on proposed senatorial investigations. In the house a seemingly interminable succession of bills to bridge various and sundry rivers held the right of way, although two other measures of general interest did squeeze through with house approval. They were an authorization to expand the public buildings program by $140,000,000 and the Walsh bill amending the statute of limitations to aid in prosecution of the Fall-Sinclair case.

The senate's mood toward new senatorial investigations, such as in recent years, have been given smooth right of way, greatly surprised some of the senators themselves. After an argumentative flourish, accompanied by some desk-pounding on both sides, it was voted 40 to 36 not to proceed at once with the sweeping inquiry of public utility companies, who said it meant at least an indefinite delay, the proposal was referred to a committee. Consideration of Senator McKellar's plan to inquire into civil service postmaster ratings as they affect the Memphis postmastership likewise was blocked by an objection, and Senator Fletcher's demand for investigation of the affairs of the defunct war finance corporation hung fire in the banking committee.

The fib over the Walsh public utilities resolution and the one-sided debate about the Mexican charges easily furnished the high points of color on the senate floor, silhouette the drama of the interstate commerce committee a fight of undetermined proportions.

SLEIGH SENT TO RELIEF OF STORM-BOUND MOTORISTS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 19—(AP)—A bob-sleigh pulled by horses tonight was on the way to the relief of more than 100 motorists held prisoner in the town of Evans by drifting snow.

The sleigh carried bacon, corned beef, flour and eggs to appease the hunger of the refugees, while Erie county and township engineers mobilized equipment to cut a road through the drifts to the marooned motorists. The workmen were faced with the job of clearing more than 15 miles of state highway.

The food was dispatched by Mayor Sweetland of Angola, N. Y., in response to appeals from the motorists. One of the messages, telephoned to Buffalo, was addressed to Governor Smith and demanded "action."

Among those stranded were Miss Jenny A. Reamey, Providence, R. I., H. S. Morse, Phyllis, Peggy and Estelle Morse and L. Hull, Boston, Mass.; James P. Connelly, Springfield, Mass., Ernest Taylor, Mansfield, Mass., and Frank Adams, Brattleboro, Vt.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19.—The use of punch boards, a form of gambling, is to be stopped in New London. Today Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin issued orders to Captain of Police Charles A. Officers were instructed to visit stores where the punch boards are being used and to warn the proprietors to remove the boards and if the order is not complied with to arrest the merchant that he can be presented in the police court. DEFRAUDED BY NORWICH CROOK MIKISKO ACTS STRANGELY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19.—Harry Mikisko, about 45, of Winthrop street, gave battle to the police this morning when he was being arrested for safe keeping. He is now a patient at Norwich State hospital, for he was taken there this afternoon after City Physician George P. Cheney committed Mikisko to the hospital for temporary observation.

Mikisko was standing at the corner of State and Bank street, acting queerly. He was observed by Patrolmen William Manice and Frank Philopena who approached Mikisko for the purpose of questioning him. The officers had no sooner started to question Mikisko than he directed several punches at them. Officer Manice seized Mikisko and in the tussle both fell to the sidewalk. Mikisko fought the officers savagely and as he is possessed of great strength, he gave the cops a hard fight. Traffic Officer John Courtney observed the fight from Bank and State streets and started to go to the assistance of the other officers. Before Courtney arrived, Officer Manice pulled his blackjack and dealth Mikisko a blow on the head, which opened the scalp and then Mikisko was subdued. He was taken to police headquarters and restrainers were placed on ankles and wrists, after which several stitches were taken in his scalp to close the wounds. Mikisko several years ago was victimized of $2,000 by a man who came to New London from Norwich and sold Mikisko a device, which, it was claimed, would manufacture money, particularly bills of any denomination. Mikisko withdrew his entire savings from the bank and paid the crook the money. Since then Mikisko's mind has been unbalanced.

The case was continued to Jan. 9. Delaporta was arrested early Sunday morning by Patrolman Albert Iverson when the officer observed Delaporta soliciting passengers at the corner of State and Bank streets. The only other business to claim the attention of the court was the disciplining of five drunks.

The residence of Sol Ockoneff, 91 Jefferson avenue, was robbed Saturday afternoon, it was revealed today when complaint was made to the detective bureau by Ockoneff that the plunder obtained by the thief was $45 and two rings. An axe used by the crook to gain admission to the house was found on the ground beneath a window that had been forced. Mrs. Ockoneff left her home about 5 o'clock and while her husband, a jewelry store proprietor, was at his business. She returned about 6 o'clock and found the house had been entered for the furnishings in two rooms were greatly disturbed. Investigation revealed that the money and jewelry had been taken.

Fanning, stationed at Curtis Bay, Maryland, has communited with the New London police requesting aid in locating Mrs. Sundstrom, who, he believes, is in this city. Mrs. Fleming is survived by two sons, James Fleming of Oakland, Cal., and John Fleming of Groton and daughter, Mrs. Thomas Barrett of Scranton, Pa. Mrs. Fleming had resided in Groton many years; prior to her removal there she resided in Montville.

The funeral services for James Dray were held at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church at 9 o'clock this morning and was attended by a lyarge gathering of mourners. The high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. George Clark. The bearers were Francis Corcoran, James R. May, John F. Murray and William T. May. Morosini was learning to drive and was receiving instructions from his son as to the proper way to handle the operating devices. When the auto was about to pass another car on the outskirts of Mystic, Morosini lost control of the mechanism of the car and it crashed into the other auto. Morosini was thrown against the front of the car, his face receiving the full force of the crash. After receiving medical treatment, Morosini was brought to the New London hospital.

Some of the merchants started to keep their stores open for the holiday trade tonight, but most of them, particularly the larger stores did not keep open.

FRED GASCEL ARRESTED AFTER AUTOS CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19.—An automobile owned by Jeremiah F. Fitzgerald, of Williams street, and driven by an employe, Frank Tinker, and a car owned and driven by Fred Gascel, of 25 Garfield avenue, were wrecked this afternoon when they collided at the corner of Connecticut and Garfield avenues. Although both automobiles overturned, Tinker was the only one to sustain injury; he received only bruises about the body. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith made an investigation and arrested Gascel, charged with reckless driving. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow. The machines met at the intersection of the highways and before either Tinker or Gascel could apply the brakes, the cars collided with great force, overturning with the drivers held prisoners. The Fitzgerald auto is a heavy coach, a Packard.

CITY COUNCIL CALLED DOWN BY MRS. SPEIRS, PLANNING BD.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19.—The city council held a two-hours' session this evening at which streets, unaccepted streets, some 1ss of them received the attention of the members. How these streets again be treated was put up to a committee, after the director of law had reported upon the matter. A report from the committee will bring the matter back to the council for action. Some of the streets have been in public use nearly 75 years. They have water, lights, sewers, and the highways have been given the attention they required. Others have not been so treated. It is probable that when a survey has been made of them and they are properly placed before the council as public highways, they will be accepted and given the place among the city's streets to which they are entitled.

Seven applications for building permits were presented to the council and granted.

The city voted to buy 15,000 tons of trap rock for street improvement and repair at an estimated cost of $15,000 to $25,000. It also voted to buy tile pipe at a cost of $620 and soft coal cinders at a cost of $1,250.

Tax Commissioner Blodgett called attention of the council to a form of bond to be given to tax collectors and treasurers of cities of the state. The council was asked to adopt it and to fix the amount of the bonds that shall be required.

A change was made in the contract for painting the interior of the municipal building with Michael Delmore by providing for a third coat of paint on the ceilings, an advance being made in the price for the work.

A deed of land at Ocean avenue and School street tendered the city by Henry H. deBeaulieu, was accepted.

An opinion was given and the director of la. submitted a proposed ordinance as to the removal of trees other than those that may be removed as a matter of public necessity or convenience. The expense of removal is placed upon the party petitioning for the removal. Street extension was considered and referred to the committee.

A report from the planning board on the proposed zoning ordinance was to have been presented to the council this evening, but it did not get there for some unexplained reason, but Councilor Whitton, chairman of the planning board, submitted a tentative copy of the report.

Land at Main and Douglass and North Bank streets was offered to the city for a central fire station, but the proposal was only read and reply was made by the mayor in writing. It was sent to the public safety committee.

Mrs. Emily Speirs, a member of the planning board, was given the privilege of the floor. She took exception to the remarks that had been slightingly made concerning the planning board. She advised the members of the council to read the charter that they might be advised of what the duties of the board are.

Daniel Noonan, an employe of the water department for 31 years, was retired at half pay. He is 81.

MAYOR'S SUB. RESOLUTION IS FINALLY TABLED, 5 TO 2

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19.—The city council this evening had before it a resolution stating in substance that through the board of councilors of the city, the people of New London extended sympathy with condolence to the families of the men in the disaster, Dec. 17.

It was resolved that a copy of the resolution be entered in the records and a copy be forwarded to the president of the United States, the secretary of the navy, the chairman of the naval committee and to each of the two Connecticut senators, together with a letter accompanying, setting out the features and suggestions as contained in the mayor's address.

The resolution, which was introduced by Mayor May followed the introduction of an address by Mayor May, in which he urged the forwarding to officials at Washington a petition urging that drastic measures be taken to prevent similar calamities. Opposition was made by some members of the council, with the result that when a vote on the matter was taken, it was tabled, five to two.

County Detective William Lewis was in New Haven today to subpena witnesses in the case of John Leitkowsky, of Norwich, charged with violation of the prohibition law and which will be tried at the criminal term of the court of common pleas, to convene here tomorrow. One witness is Charles Garvan, who has obtained evidence for the state several times in connection with liquor violators.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Twenty-five years ago today Signor Marconi sent messages by wireless from Cape Breton to Cornwall to the kings of England and Italy.

Prince George, the youngest son of their British majesties, is in line for congratulations today on his 25th anniversary.

Marion Talley, the youthful opera singer from Missouri who, like Byron, awoke one morning to find herself famous, is 21 years old today.

Two weeks from today will be the first business day of the new year, and you will be writing it "1928"—providing you do not forget and put down "1927."

Only one more day remains of autumn, and then, as the poet sings, comes "the long and dreary winter, the cold and cruel winter!"

Bread Theater.

"The Lily," Fox Films version of David Belasco's gripping stage success, which comes to the Bread theater Wednesday and Thursday offers theatre-patrons one of the most talented casts ever assembled for a motion picture play.

Heading the list, is Belle Bennett who brings to the screen a technique second to none in America. She was virtually born under a circus tent and has been in theatrical work all her life.

Her work in "Stella Dallas" has won the praise of hardened critics thrughout the world. In "The Lily" she is said to surpass even the supreme achievement.

Miss Bennett, surrounded by an excellent cast, is said to rise to new heights in this Victor Schertzinger production. Many critics assert she has outrivaled her great characterization in "Stella Dallas."

The cast includes John St. Polis, James Marcus, Ian Keith, Reata Hoyt, Gertrude Short, Barry Norton, Tom Ricketts, Richard Tucker, Lydia Yeamans Titus and other well-known actors.

Gorgeous sets, built on the largest stage in the world, are exact duplicates of the famous old chateau near Paris. The screen play is by Eve Unsell from the stage play by Pierre Wolff and Gaston Leroux.

The Strand Theater.

The Non-Stop Fight is a gigantic melodrama of the high seas and aviation. As the graphic title indicates, this picture is a stirring photoplay of the lamented hop to Hawaii last summer in which Commander Rogers and the other navy airmen won eternal fame for their daring and skill. Even the historicw P. N. 9, the big seaplane in which Rogers made his hop and which was compelled to come down when 300 miles from the coveted goal, has an important part in this absolutely authentic and moving cinematic tribute to Uncle Sam's Magellans of the air route. Woven into the spectacular incidents of the flight is a warmly human story which has its beginning in Sweden and ends amid the tropic beauties of a Pacific island.

Smoldering Fires is another complete and very interesting story of our weekly series. We also show a very amusing two reel comedy.

Broadway Theater.

If you need a tonic for the blues don't miss the double feature comedy program at the Broadway theater today and tomorrow.

In "Blondes By Choice" you are guaranteed a vacation grom gloom. It provides an hour filled with laughs and crammed with human interest. The comedy situations have been adroitly worked out by Director Hampton Del Ruth and his staff, which includes Clarence Hennecke, comedy constructor who devised the gags for two of Harry Langdon's recent comedies and Mary Pickford's forthcoming picture, "My Best Girl."

The humor, while it is legitimate fun and not of the slap-stick variety, is genuine'y hilarious and will put you in good humor for the day. The cast is of a high calibre, headed by Claire Windsor, Allan Simpson and Walter Hiers, and includes Bodil Rosing, Leigh Willard, Joseph Belmont, Bess Flowers and many others.

The co-feature, "Is That Nice," is a new brand of comedy that every one will enjoy. The star George O'Hara has a buoyant, breezy style all his own, and his characterizations breathe an exhileration and dashing charm which is very refreshing. This particular vehicle is a happy choice for O'Hara because it gives him a chance to display, not on'y his ability in the comedy line, but his ability as an athlete and his very decided penchant for making love par excellence. The story is a mine of rich humor and George has made the most of every situation. The author of this delightful yarn is W. A. Sinclair while Paul Gangelin wrote the continuity. The cast includes Doris Hill, Stanton Heck, Charley Thurston, Roy Laidlaw, Babe London, Red Kirby and Ethan Laidlay. Del Andrews is the director.

Palace Theater.

The vaudeville program presented at the Palace theater yesterday is exceptionally pleasing. Opening the performance was Lew Rella and Company in a speedy routine of novelty stunts, featuring the catching, from a high distance, heavy cannon balls on the back of his neck. Dorothy Nelson and Company entertained with her selection of songs and patter. Walsh, Ellis and Company presented a comedy evolved around youth patronizing road houses, that was well received. Then came E. J. Moore in the funniest sequences of magical comedy ever witnessed by an audience. Closing the bill was the LaVerne and Fayles Revue, an act consisting of five clever and capable performers in a well balanced program of songs and dances.

The feature picture being shown, "Alias the Lone Wolf," is indeed a treat. Starring in this production is Bert Lytell, Lois Wilson and William V. Mong. The story concerns a band of international crooks after a famous collection of jewels. Opposing the gang is Bert Lytell as the "Lone Wolf." The action is thrilling throughout the entire picture and never lags for one moment.

Coming to the Palace for the last three days of the week is a novelty never before tried in Norwich although being a success all over the country. Manager Fink has booked for this occasion an all girl vaudeville show in conjunction with the feature picture, "A Girl From Rio," starring Carmel Myers. These attractions should prove an outstanding event in theatrical circles for Norwich.

TORRINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Joseph Hanson, 35, of 314 Calhoun street, this city, died early this afternoon as the result of buckshot wound received yesterday afternoon when his shotgun accidentally discharged. The heavy charge of shot entered Hanson's lower jaw.

GIRL HURLED INKWELL AT POLICE MATRON

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Policewoman Mury Nevins had a narrow escape from injury tonight when a heavy glass ink-well, hurled at her head by an infuriated girl, missed its mark by inches and crashed to the floor of the detective bureau.

The girl, Elizabeth Tracewski, 17, of 35 Mix street, was arrested by Detective Sergeant A. Moore, of West Haven at the request of the New Haven police who wanted her on a theft charge.

When ushered into the detective bureau, she let loose a flood of profanity which was enlightening even to the older men. Mrs. Nevins, who was handling the case, was discussing what was to be done with the girl with the complainant, Mrs. Jacob Fewes, of 126 Spring street, when Elizabeth seized the ink-well from a nearby desk and threw it at Mrs. Nevins' head. The policewoman saw the motion just in time, and ducked.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE GETS DONATION OF $500

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Substantial contribution toward financing the American Olympic boxing team, for its trip to Amsterdam next summer, was announced today by the Madison Square Garden club, otherwise known as Tex Rickard's "600 millionaires," in connection with the club's first annual "all-champions" dinner on January 4.

The committee in charge of the dinner already has subscribed $500 toward the Olympic fund and expects to double that amount, as a demonstration of its interest in amateur as well as professional boxing.

With the idea of showing the "600 millionaires" and their guests the type of amateur boxers having their support, the Amateur Athletic union will stage six bouts, bringing together 12 prospective Olympic team candidates, as an entertainment feature of the dinner.

A unique and impressive demonstration of the clean, smokeless, quick-firing properties of White Oak Coal has been devised by its producers and is now making the rounds of leading cities of New England.

Upon the back of the truck a specially constructed platform has been provided upon which is installed an ordinary coal range. A brisk fire burns within the range and fresh fuel is added from time to time. Frequent stops are made and the further advantages of this excellent fuel are explained in detail, particular emphasis being made of its free burning properties and remarkably low ash waste.

MAY RUN ANNUAL COUNTY FAIR FOUR DAYS NEXT SEPTEMBER

The adjourned meeting of the directors of the New London County Agricultural society was held in the office of Dr. I. J. Manwaring in the Disco building, Monday evening, at eight o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the new president, F. S. Armstrong. President Armstrong gave an historical outline of the activities of the society for the past seventy-four years and emphasized its importance to every branch of the county's industry. He also stated that the commercial and industrial interests of the county should get behind the fair and that if they would there is no doubt that it would be most successful. The fair deserves full support as it is helping the county grow and busines in tre county depends upon the county for its support. Mr. Armstrong stated that the meeting was largely a get acquainted meeting to get the ideas from the directors of how the county fair could be made to represent the individual towns in a better or more satisfactory way. Each director gave his views freely and many valuable suggestions were brought forward and will receive a place in the programme of activities the coming year.

The meeting proved to be a most interesting one and did not adjourn until a late hour to meet again Tuesday evening, December 27th at the offices of the Norwich Commercial school. Announcements concerning the different committee appointments are to be made and a report by the directors from each town will be received.

It is also planned at this adjourned meeting to appoint the members of the executive committee. Each director at the Monday evening's meeting volunteered to make sure that a companion director would be on hand so that a 100 per cent attendance is practically guaranteed.

The meeting was so interesting that many of the directors remained afterwards for further discussion. A complete report of the financial activities covering the past seven years was prepared by the secretary and this information is to be tabulated for consideration at the next meeting of the directors, it being felt by the directors that all the facts at hand should be in shape for the full consideration of all those interested so that the finest results possible might be obtained this coming year. It was thought that possibly the last week in September would be the best time to hold the fair as thi swould dodge the Eastern States fair and the Brockton fair and might be the best time to hold the New London County fair.

Some very spectacular events are under consideration and the committee is also considering whether or not it might be worth while, in view of the large programme, to have a four day fair instead of a three day fair. The committee have already got in touch with an aviator for circulating the county and broadcasting the events taking place at the fairgrounds. It was also suggested that events from each town such as running horse races, boxing, wrestling and other contests for which suitable cash prises would be offered might not be worthwhile as a special drawing card. The directors are very anxious for suggestions and are going to bring in all the new ideas they can at the next meeting.

Another feature that seemed to meet with hearty approval was that of special prizes for the best calf and other pets that might be raised and brought to the fair next year by the boys and girls of the 21 towns in New London county. It was felt that several suitable cash prises ought to be offered and that these pets be brought before the grand stand for exhibition.

STATE NAVAL RESERVISTS HAVE HIGH RATING

The standing of fleet divisions of the United States Naval Reserve firing short range battle practice on the summer cruise of 1927 shows the 19th fleet division of the Connecticut Naval Reserve battalion to have attained a merit of 89.75 to give that division the standing of third among the 32 reserve divisions throughout the United States. The 19th Fleet division has headquarters at Hartford. The gunnery practice was held on the destroyer McFarland, on which vessel the Hartford division made its annual summer cruise. Other divisions of the Connecticut battalion also stood high in the stand'ng published by the navy department.

For the first time since the policy of cruising fleet divisions of the naval reserve on destroyers of the regular navy has been in effect, target practice with the four-inch and five-inch guns of the destroyers was held during the naval reserve cruises of last summer. The training of gun crews is a part of the training performed by the reservists at their armories; all armories are not, however, equipped with loading machines or four-inch guns. Some of these not so equipped are able to receive this training on board vessels, mostly Eagle boats, assigned their organizations. A number of divisions, however, due to lack of armory equipment, were obliged to concentrate their preliminary training within the two weeks spent on board the destroyer for the training cruise. As loading machines and four-inch guns become available, they are being supplied to naval reserve armories lacking this equipment, until it is hoped that in a reasonable time all armories will be so supplied.

The form of target practice conducted was the modified short range practice, the target being a towed spar. Constructive hits were credited.

STATE POLICE INVESTIGATE BURNING OF AUTOMOBILE

A Reo sedan owned by William F. Maine of Windham Center was destroyed by fire Saturday morning in Groton Center under circumstances which resulted in calling state police of the Groton barracks to investigate as the blaze is believed to be of incendiary origin. Mr. Maine has for some time been engaged in cutting trees in Groton. Since early fall there have been a number of petty thefts committed and property destroyed there with the state police engaged in rounding up offenders. Some time ago several sets of harnesses belonging to Mr. Maine were stolen and two men arrested for the theft. One of them was sentenced to jail and the other is awaiting trial.

Saturday morning Mr. Maine with his foreman motored to Groton to pay his workmen and to measure the wood cut during the week. He parked his car in the woodlot just off the main highway. Twenty minutes later some children came running through the lot and informed Mr. Maine that his car was on fire. He hastened to the scene and found the machine ablaze with some men pouring water on the flames. The children informed Mr. Maine that they were in the woods to gather Christmas greens,and their attention was attracted by the fire which was then in the rear of the car and could not have been caused by explosion or otherwise as the gasoline and wiring was in front.

When the fire was finally put out there was every evidence to show that it had been greatest in the rear of the machine. The state police were immediately notified and an investigation started. They have secured several clues to show that the fire was of incendiary origin and arrests are expected in the near future.

HOPE FADES FOR SURVIVAL OF THE MEN TRAPPED IN SUB AT BOTTOM OF OCEAN FAINT TAPPING AT 6 P. M. YESTERDAY

Naval Men Assert the Tapping "Might Have Come" From the S-4—Since Early Yesterday Morning No Understandable Signal Has Been Received From the Sunken Sub—Continued Rough Weather Makes Salvage Work Impossible—The Impression Prevails That the Navy Soon Will Be Forced to Admit That the men in the S-4 Are Dead.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 20.—(AP)—A faint glimmer of hope tonight relieved the growing depression in the minds of those seeking to rescue six men entombed in the sunken submarine S-4. After hours of silence on the part of the imprisoned men had all but convinced the listeners above that there would be no further signals from the wreck, the oscillator of the sister ship at 6 o'clock tonight registered seven faint tapping sounds.

Twice before during an anxious day sounds only barely distinguishable had come from the ocean bed 17 fathoms down where the S-4 lies imbedded in mud.

At 8:15 and again at 11 o'clock in the forenoon these vague proofs of life had been noted by the oscillator. But a silence of seven hours had caused the S-8 crew almost to abandon hope when the new sounds came.

Naval men would not assert that the taps were made by a chipping hammer in the hands of a survivor of the S-4 collision. They said the sounds "might have come" from the S-4, but even that slight encouragement renewed hope a little.

All day long a grim pressage of defeat lay depressingly upon the rescue fleet. While those in charge of operations refused to announce official abandonment of hope, the belief grew that there were no longer living men in the steel prison on the ocean floor.

The elements appeared to have turned the scale against the rescuers and those they strove to save. While precious hours passed, and the signals tapped out by the imprisoned men grew fewer, the northwest gale continued to whip up the water off this harbor, cutting off all salvage attempts.

Tonight there had been no actual exchange of messages between the torpedo room of the S-4 and her sister ship, the S-8, stationed above the wreck, for more than 24 hours. There had been no recognizable signal from the S-4 since 6:20 o'clock this morning. But the S-8 was under orders to remain as long as there was the slightest hope of communicating with the imprisoned men, and every facility of her crew was strained to this end.

And still the gale continued tonight, preventing any one of the more than a score of divers aboard the mine sweeper Falcon, flagship of the salvage fleet, from descending to the wreck. As if further to discourage the workers a signal tower set high on Monument hill above Provincetown, flashed northwest storm warnings for tomorrow.

The impression grew in fleet and town that the navy soon would be forced to admit that the men on the S-4 were dead and to announce postponement of salvage operations until next spring. Rear Admiral Frank Brumby, in charge of the salvage work, declined to set a definite dead line. When asked whether hope of rescue would be given up by six o'clock tomorrow night, as had been reported here, he replied:

"You can say that. I cannot."

Not "The Ghost of a Chance."

The admiral said he was not very optimistic as to the outcome of rescue work, while veteran divers, summoned to aid in the emergency, admitted freely that the men on board the S-4 had not "the ghost of a chance."

As the wind churned the open ocean off Wood End into white caps today, not a wheel of the salvage machinery was able to turn. The only break in the line of waiting rescue ships came late in the afternoon when the Falcon ran in to Provincetown harbor to make a change in personnel. Some 30 of those on board were then transferred to other vessels, and 25 men, experienced divers and employes of the Merritt-Chapman-Scott lighterage company were taken on board. The Falcon then returned to station, but Admiral Brumby said diving would not be possible tonight unless the weather moderated considerably.

Included in the new additions to the salvage staff were W. L. Bibbells, chief diver in S-51 salvage operations, R. C. (Tug) Wilson, the second man to go down to the S-51, and James Ingram, who was the first to be lowered to the S-51 after it was sunk in collision with the steamship City of Rome off Block Island in 1925. Ingram, now on the reserve, was called back to the service along with several other diver reservists.

Several veterans who had worked in the salvaging of other wrecked submarines, said that the fate of the S-4 crew was sealed when it crashed to the bottom in its present location at this season. They said that if rescuers succeeded in reaching the imprisoned men with oxygen and food, the only result would be to "prolong the agony."

May Not Raise Hull For Months.

There was no possibility, they said, of raising the hull of the S-4 for many months, probably next May, and it would be impossible to save the men without raising their prison to the surface. Adding to the total of depressing facts of the situation, tests with a thermometer today showed that the temperatures at the ocean floor at the spot where the S-4 lies was 34 degrees, but two degrees above the freezing point. Divers who have been down to the ship reported that she is imbedded in five feet of soft mud, an additional handicap to the salvage vessels.

The immediate aim of the rescuers, Admiral Brumby said today, is to send down supplies of oxygen, food and lime soda, the latter being for the purpose of purifying the air in the torpedo room. He said that the plan was to have divers pass these things through the outer shutter of the torpedo tube. If men still lived within the hull, they would be able to open the inner shutter and take in the supplies, while admitting a little water also.

"We will hang on as long as there is a chance," Admiral Brumby said.

The officer said that before advising the navy department to discontinue rescue work and await weather more favorable for salvaging the submarine, he would confer with Captain Ernest T. King, Commander Edward Ellsberg, and other officers taking part in the work and would then notify Washington of the results.

DOES NOT BELIEVE THE SOUNDS CAME FROM S-4

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, in charge of salvaging the sunken submarine S-4, does not believe that sounds detected at six o'clock tonight by the oscillator of the submarine S-8 came from the six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the S-4.

The officers of the S-8 were not sure that the sounds were made by men tapping on the hull of the submarine. Admiral Brumby said they possibly were due to interference outside the hull. He made the statement to a representative of the Associated Press who made a night trip from Provincetown to the mine sweeper Falcon, flagship of the salvage fleet, on a coast guard picket boat.

The sea was very rough tonight, and no diving operations were attempted.

An expert from the Boston navy yard took on board the Falcon tonight a tapping machine to be used in drilling a hole through the hull of the S.4 so that a hose may be attached to carry air to the imprisoned men.

Slayer of Marian Parker Is Known

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Defying capture at the hands of the greatest force of officers ever assembled for a man hunt in the west, William Edward Hickman, identified as the kidnaper and slayer of Marian Parker, 12-year-old school girl, was still at large late today.

Spurred on by the positive identification of Hickman as the youth responsible for the abduction and killing of the child and the arrest of another youth, Milton [illegible]wsky, believed to have been [illegible]e, police in Los Angeles [illegible]ern California pressed for[illegible] hunt relentlessly.

Eight [illegible] men combed Los Ange[illegible] environs, while other [illegible] prosecuted a search [illegible]t the Pacific southwest for [illegible] murderer on whose head a re[illegible] of $100,000 has been placed.

In the arrest of Jakowsky, authorities believed they had found the man who gave Hickman information concerning the Parker family during the kidnaper's ransom negotiations with Perry M. Parker, bank official and father of Marian.

Jakowsky, in the belief of investigators, acted as an intermediary for Hickman, who graduated as an honor student at Central High school in Kansas City in 1926 and is said to be 19 years old.

Police said Jakowsky came to Los Angeles five weeks ago from Washington, D. C., where he believed to have been a government employe. Jakowsky is known to have been friendly with both the Parkers and Hickman. His age was given as 25 and he was said to be single. Earlier in the day it was reported Jakowsky was from Kansas City.

Jakowsky attempted to overpower guards at the city jail this morning but was subdued by four men and locked in another cell while crying that he would take his own life.

A heavy guard was maintained about the jail because of threats voiced on the streets against the prisoner. Although taken into custody last night his name was withheld until noon today.

Announcement that Hickman had been identified as the youth who lured the girl away from school last Thursday, and on Sunday night delivered her torso to her father in exchange for a ransom of $1,500, was made after police had compared fingerprints from the slayer's car and ransom notes with those in Hickman's police record. His photograph from the police files was identified by Miss Neona Britten, teacher, who was trained into permitting Marian to accompany the kidnaper by his story that her father had been injured.

Belief that Hickman was still in Los Angeles or vicinity was strengthened when Jack Woods, attendant of a filling station, identified the hunted youth's photograph as that of the driver of a blue Cadillac automobile, which included a hot pursuit here at dawn today.

In reconstructing the crime today, police assigned vengeance as an obvious motive for the slaying, but hinted that degeneracy may have been at the bottom of the case.

Hickman was employed as a messenger in the bank of which Mr. Parker is assistant cashier. He was arrested on a forgery charge last summer, but was paroled.

OBITUARY

Dr A. A. Murphre

He had been president of the University of Florida for more than 16 years, and also at the time of his death was president of the American association of university presidents.

It was shortly before Bryan's death that "he commander" announced he would support Dr. Murphre for the democratc nomination, dclaring he was one of the party's outstanding men and that he believed he was presidential timber. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Professional Peddler of Mex. Documents

Miguel Avila, Procurer of Documents Published in Hearst Newspapers, Thus Classed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Miguel Avila, procurer of the documents published in Hearst papers purporting to show creation of a $1,215,000 Mexican fund for four United States senators, was pictured today to the special senate investigating committee by Robert H. Murray, a former newspaperman in Mexico as a professional peddler of Mexican documents.

Murray said Avila had told him that he had offered to sell to the Chicago Tribune last spring a document which had been "made up" by Joseph W. De Courcey, former correspondent in Mexico City for the New York Times, who was deported from Mexico some months ago.

Murray who served for years in Mexico City as correspondent for the New York World, made it clear that he and De Courcey were unfriendly. The document which he said Avila had advised him De Courcey had "made up" included, he testifed, the name of Murray as a paid publicity man of the Mexican government.

The committee heard Murray, who is now New York representative of the Bank of Mexico, after he had voluntarily informed Senator Johnson, republican, California, and Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, two committee members of his relations with Avila. Although Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, its chairman, was out of the city, the committee held a suddenly called meeting.

Declaring the "air in Mexico last spring was filled with documents," Murray informed the committee that it was his understanding that the American embassy had been a "generous purchaser" of documents purporting to come from the files of the Mexican government and to show a particularly hostile attitude by Mexico toward the United States.

Murray, who is now suing the New York Times for libel, said that he had been told recently in New York that De Courcey was in San Antonio, Texas, "in close touch with Avila." Avila previously had told the committee he bought some of the Hearst documents, which he claimed had come from the office of President Calles, in San Antonio, from two Mexican clerks.

COMMITTEE OPENS ATTACK ON ADMIRAL MAGRUDER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Tables were turned on Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder today, and the man who was deposed as commander of the Philadelphia Navy yard after he had published articles accusing the navy of over-organization and wasting money, found himself under attack.

For an hour and a half, three members of the house naval committee closely questioned the admiral concerning the facts on which he had based his charges and demanded that he show how his questions would result in economy in naval administration.

Acting Chairman Britten directly accused Magruder of failing to substantiate his charges of waste by specific figures and after an extended interrogation declared:

"Admiral, your plan for economy will cost the government about a thousand million dollars to put it into effect."

"Isn't that an exaggeration?" inquired Magruder.

"I don't think so," retorted Britten. "We want your suggestions. Not in a general but a specific sense."

Magruder offered to supply specific figures on certain questions asked but Britten declared that the committee could obtain the information from books.

"We would rather get it from you as you have been in the limelight as a great naval expert," Britten continued.

"I take exception," replied Magruder.

Representative Vinson of Georgia, senior democrat on the committee, asked the admiral what had prompted his articles which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

"My object was to tell the public about what I considered a system that had become very costly due mainly to what we call bureaucracy," Magruder answered, "it caused very much more of a stir than I expected."

Vinson cited figures, which, he said, disproved Magruder's contention that the navy would save money by having private shippers transport its supplies, and that destroyers instead of old cruisers should be used for police duty in Nicaraguan waters.

MOTHER THREW BABY GIRL FROM WINDOW AND THEN JUMPED TO DIE BESIDE HER

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A golden haired baby girl with a doll clutched in her arms was tossed from a sixth floor window to her death today by her own mother, who then flung herself from the same window to die beside her daughter on the stones below.

The mother was young Mrs. Elizabeth Levine, whose mind was believed weakened by a recent nervous breakdown, but who carried out her plan with all the cool calculation of a surveyor.

Having abandoned any plan she may have had, police believed, to use her own home for the suicide and killing because it was not high enough, the mother was seen to enter the six-story Marbridge Hall apartment building on Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, leading the daughter, Ruth, two and a half years old, by the hand.

"Hurry," the mother was heard to say as the baby lagged. "Hurry, we have no time to lose."

And the two climbed slowly up the stairs from floor to floor, the one intent only on death and the other coddling her China doll in innocence of the fate awaiting her at the stair top.

At the fourth floor landing, a window was later found open, indicating to police that the woman had halted there, looked out to gauge the distance, decided that a jump from there might not mean certain death, and climbed further up.

The mother and child were seen to reach the sixth floor, the little girl was heard to scream in terror as her mother's plan first became evident to her, and an open window told the rest of the story to those who rushed into the hall and found it empty.

An iceman who heard the two crashes in the paved rear court was the first to reach the scene. The child, lying among the fragments of her doll's painted head and still clutching the stuffed body in her arms, was dead. The mother did not regain consciousness and died on the way to a hospital.

No explanation was left by the mother and her husband could think of no cause other than the recent nervous disorder.

REMUS ACQUITTED ON THE SOLE GROUND OF INSANITY

If the Court Would Have Permitted, the Jury Would Have Freed the Wife-Slayer Outright—Remus Must Remain in Jail Pending a Hearing to Determine His Mental Status—As the Verdict Was Announced Remus Shouted: "I Wanted American Justice and I Thank You Folks."

CINCINNATI, Dec. 20.—(AP)—George Remus, who forsook a legal practice in Chicago to become the operator of one of the most extensive bootlegging businesses in the United States, late today was found not guilty by a jury here of the murder of his estranged wife, Imogene Holmes Remus. The verdict was based solely on the ground of insanity.

Nineteen minutes of deliberation sufficed for the two women and ten men in the jury to do all they possibly could towards freeing the former "king of bootleggers" two days less than 11 weeks after he shot and killed his wife, while she was en route to court to divorce him. Under the charge as given to the jury by Judge Chester R. Shook, Remus was denied a verdict of outright acquittal and his face automatically was certified to the probate court for a sanity hearing.

Within thirty minutes after the acquittal, the papers were laid before Judge William H. Lueders, but he declined to act until tomorrow morning.

Meanwhile Remus was forced to remain in jail because the law permitted no bail for a prisoner held for a sanity test and also because he was under a conviction for contempt of court for an outburst in which he verbally attacked the prosecutor's staff in the closing days of his five weeks and two days long trial.

In his jail quarters, however, Remus was host to a merry ante-Christmas party. There rushed at least four of the jurors and there was a constant stream of well wishers hurrying to congratulate the man whose life had been in jeopardy only a few minutes before.

"You know what I said in the jury room," Robert Hosford, painting contractor, juror number 12, remarked to a cheering group gathered about Remus in the jail.

"I said 'Let's go out and give him his Christmas present. Let's make him happy one Christmas. He wasn't last.'"

Hosford told newspapermen that if the court had permitted the jury would have returned a verdict freeing Remus outright.

"We thought Remus had been greatly wronged and that persecution has lasted long enough," said Hosford.

To Remus, Hosford and Mrs. Ruth Cross, the 22-year-old "baby" of the jury, said:

"We were with you from the start."

Remus who set up a defense of "transitory maniacal insanity," with himself as chief counsel, received the verdict with a wild shout:

"I wanted American justice and I thank you folks," he said.

Tears were streaming down his face as he left the court room where cheers still were echoing and was hurried the short distance down a corridor equally alive with cheers to the elevator which took him to the jail two floors above.

"I was prevented this morning saying what I thought about the judge not including a verdict of straight acquittal," he shouted friends and newspapermen through the steel barred elevator door, "but now I can say it that was the first time such a charge ever was made in an American court of law. But for that I am sure right now I would be a free man."

Once in his jail cell, Remus hurriedly dictated a message of thanksgiving to his secretary, Vernon R. Chumbley, federal convict from the Leavenworth, Kas., penitentiary, brought here as a possible witness.

"Thank God for a verdict that lifts the greatest burden man must ever stand," it ran. "God alone knows the thing that is within my heart at this moment.

"The rest of my life I will dedicate to stifle the insult that is upon our statutes, known as the national prohibition act.

"Had there been no prohibition law to fill the coffers of a class that seeks only the practices of venality, there would have been no act for which a jury of my peers would have to acquit me."

VARIANCE IN BALANCES OF NORWALK TAX RECORDS

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 20 (AP)—An audit of the books of the tax collector's office of Norwalk showed wide variance in balances, according to testimony offered today by Charles W. Church at the trial of Robert G. Mitchell, former tax collector of the city of Norwalk. Mitchell is on trial before Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin and jury upon a charge of having embezzled $55,442.48 of the city's taxes between February 7, 1922 and October 10, 1926, when he was voted out of office.

Through a ruling made today by the judge, the states is excluded from introducing any evidence relative to alleged misappropriations by Mitchell before the 1922 date.

Church in his testimony declared that for the year 1923 and 1922, an audit of Mitchell's books showed that he collected $1,892,218.16 and that the checks available showed that he remitted $1,860,395.56 showing a balance of $14,922.60 unaccounted for. Church declared that his probe of the checks showed that none of this amount was wrongly applied.

RESURRECTION FAILED BENJAMIN PURNELL

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Dec. 20—(AP)—All that is mortal of Benjamin Purnell, self styled "seventh messenger" was carted out of the House of David colony today in an undertaker's hearse, the resurrection having failed to materialize.

The body of the dead "king," who for 25 years held temporal and spiritual sway over the several hundred believers in his doctrine of the immortality of the body went from the colony, unmourned and unsung. But a single follower, Frank Wyland, Purnell's bodyguard in life, followed the hearse.

However the remains of him who proclaimed himself the chosen one to lead 144,000 to life eternal will not be buried. The body will be permanently embalmed, and if the plans of the colony leaders materialize, will be placed in a mausoleum on the colony grounds where the faithful may witness that the king's body can never fall into corruption.

Several yards from the bodies two pistols were found.

After a coroner's jury found the men had died from bullet wounds inflicted by an unknown person, authorities began investigating the possibility that McGrath and Tiberghein were involved in liquor operations.

Sheriff Frank Kennedy, of Dubuque informed Abraham Hathaway, sheriff and E. L. Duierstein, coroner, of Jo Davies county, the man recently had been in jail at Manchester, Iowa, on liquor charges.

EXPLOSION ON LANGLEY KILLED ONE, INJURED FOUR

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Dec. 20—(AP)—An explosion, the second in less than a year, rocked the airplane carrier Langley of the United States navy in the harbor here today, killing James Raynor Ailsworth, 41, aviation chief carpenter's mate, and seriously injuring four other men.

Several others were reported suffering from minor injuries, sustained when blown into San Diego bay or when struc kdown while working in the machine shops forward of the scene or the explosion.

The blast was followed by fire but the flames were extinguished before the arrival of the navy tug Koko and San Diego fire boat from shore. The vessel was anchored in the bay when the explosion rent the air and flames enveloped the ship.

At naval headquarters it was said the explosion made the Langley unseaworthy, as large plates were torn off just above the wate riine. Temporary repairs probably will be made here before the vessel leaves for Mare Island, January 3 for its scheduled overhauling. None of the vessel's engines was damaged.

LINDBERGH TOOK CALLES AND OBREGON ON FLIGHT

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 20.—(AP)—President Calles of Mexico was in good humor and smiling when he stepped out of a big commercial plane at Valbuena field today. He had just taken an air trip with Colonel Lindbergh, premier flying man of the United States.

This was the first flight that the president of the Mexican republic had ever made over his own or any other land, and he appeared very proud of it. For twenty minutes or more Lindbergh soared with him above the city not too high to be out of range, and when the president returned he commented with surprise on the easy motion of the machine—"even better than riding on a train."

General Alvaro Obregon, presdeutial candidate, and next to Calles considered the most influential man in Mexico, also went up with the American aviator, and, not to be outdone, the American ambassador, Dwight W. Morrow insisted that he should share in the most notable series of brief air expeditions ever witnessed here.

Following the reports remarks were made by the team captains and others called upon including William T. Barbre of Hartford, field director of the state chamber of commerce. The money was raised at the unusually low cost of $405.82. This fact was mainly due to the efforts of Albert B. Smith, secretary of the Y. M. C. Fullerton, chairman, Walter S. Barnes and James H. Hurley and also to the cooperation of the Chronicle Printing company. (Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 20—The funeral services for Warden Matthew J. Geary, at St. Patrick's church in Norwich Tuesday morning, were attended by 60 friends from his home town. No finer evidence could have been displayed, telling of the kindly feeling that existed here toward "Mat" Geary, the borough's friend, than was shown by the large local delegation at his funeral.

The solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. McCabe, pastor of the St. Mary's church, Jewett City. There were delegate bodies attending from Very Rev. Christmas boxes have been sent to hospitals. Mrs. Dorsey of New London was unable to be present. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

CHARLES RAUB'S GUN-SHOP ROBBED OF REVOLVERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20.—Thieves gained entrance to the locksmith and gun shop of Charles Raub, 31 Golden street, tonight, but the plunder the crooks, probably boys, took, will not amount to more than $25 or $30 in value. Patrolman Elwood Bailey was making his rounds about 8 o'clock and when looking over the rear entrance to the store he found a window of the Raub store smashed and inspection revealed that the window had been forced. The detective bureau was notified and Sergeant Nelson Smith made an investigation. Because of the crude manner by which entrance to the store was gained there is every reason to believe that the job was done by the juvenile type of burglars. Mr. Raub was notified of the burglary and going to the store, discovered that a half dozen revolvers had been taken.

LIEUT.-COMMD'R McGINLEY DIED THROUGH KINDNESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Joseph McGinley wife of Lieut. Commander McGinley, a member of the crew of the S-4, who has been temporarily residing on Thatcher street, left for her home in California when her husband started on the last trip the submarine will make. Lieut. Commander McGinley had been transferred to another boat, but the officer who was to succeed him, asked permission to spend Christmas at his station and this was arranged. The deferring of Lieut. Commander McGinley's going to his new station resulted in his continuing as a member of the crew of the S-4 and undoubtedly his death.

DANIELSON

EARLY MORNING FIRE DESTROYS DAYVILLE STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 20—Dayville's most disastrous fire in years did from $12,000 to $15,000 damage to the building and store stock of Napoleon P. Gingras, a selectman of Killingly, during the early hours of this morning. It is understood that Mr. Gingras' insurance is only $3,000. A defective heater is believed to have caused the fire, which was eating its way up into the building from the cellar, where the heater is located, when the blaze was discovered by a gate-tender on duty at the Main street railroad crossing of the village. This was at about 2:30.

Cries of Edward Bartlett, the gate-tender, awakened Landlord Walter Mnurphy of the Dayville hotel and Mr. Murpuhy, in turn, awakened a number of men staying at the hotel. Meanwhile, in other parts of the village men were hurrying into their clothes, and in very good time firemen were getting into action. Eventually three lines of hose, through which water was being forced by a splendid pump in the mill of the Assawaga company, were drenching the blazing building. Operations of the firemen were directed by Louis G. Sayles, master mechanic at the mill.

By 3 o'clock the fire had gained such headway that burning embers were being carried for considerable distances through the air, threatening to ignite other buildings. At this period of the fire Landlord Murphy of the hotel put in a telephone call for Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson department. Using an emergency telephone call list kept for just such occasions, Chief Woodward assembled about a dozen members of the Danielson department, and they left here with the big pumper at about 3:15. So effective and well directed had been the efforts of the Dayville firemen in this interim that the Danielson apparatus was not needed upon its arrival, and the men who went along merely watched the fire.

When the fire was out the building, which is owned by Mr. Gingras, was badly damaged and his big and varied stock of goods practically a total loss. Tons of water were of necessity poured into the building, a one-story frame structure, located between Columbia hall and a brick building in which the Dayville postoffice is located.

Men who were at the fire almost immediately after it was discovered said that the fire started in the cellar, close by the location of the heater, and that the flames rapidly ate their way through a side of the building and up through the structure.

So rapidly did the fire spread and so dense was the smoke within the building that it was impossible to salvage any of the stock.

Mr. Gingras' loss is an especially severe one for him, and particularly unfortunate coming during Christmas week, when his stock was exceptionally heavy, some heavy shipments of goods arriving only Monday. He had built a good business in Dayville, starting with a grocery store and gradually expanding his lines until he handled a great variety of commodities. Sympathy for him is widespread. This morning offers of temporary quarters were made to Mr. Gingras that he might at once re-establish his business and continue it while the damaged store building is being repaired. The damage to the building is severe and extensive.

JOHN GEBERT TO RETURN TO BE NIGHT PATROLMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 20—John Gebert, now in Rochester, Mich., is to return to Danielson and again take up his duties as night patrol officer in the business section. This announcement was made this morning by Chief John McFarland, who made known that Mr. Gebert's reappointment is approved by the warden and court of burgesses. Mr. Gebert resigned the night officer's assignment early last spring that he might return to Michigan.

Last week, at a special meeting of the warden and court of burgesses, Special Officer Hosea E. Greene was selected for the appointment, to fill a vacancy. Having since seriously reconsidered his appointment, Officer Greene decided not to accept it. For a score of years he has been a carrier on a rural route out of the Dayville postoffice and within comparatively few years will be in line for an annuity. By resigning from the postal service to take the patrolman appointment, he would sacrifice his opportunity in the direction mentioned.

Mr. Gebert is to start east at once and will take up his duties within a few days. He is an experienced officer and a World war veteran, also having an honorable record of service in the regular army.

DOCTOR SENDS "GALL" PILLS TO WESTERN NECKTIE FIRM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 20—Here's a new angle to the "necktie racket" that has irritated hundreds of eastern Connecticut people, and it san angle they may be delighted to know something about.

It is related that not long ago a doctor received a box of neckties from a western concern, with a letter telling him to keep the ties and remit $1, or to return the ties.

Instead of following instruction, the doctor sat down and sent the concern a few pills accompanied by a letter telling the necktie people the pills were recommended for "gall." "The value of the pills," he said, "is $2, and I will give you credit for the necktie bill of $1.00, and please send me the additional dollar."

In a few days he received an acknowledgment of the pills, which were returned, and also a request to return the ties. The doctor then replied that it was two blocks to the postoffice and that he always charged $2.50 for request calls, so if the concern would forward that sum he would send the ties back.

The correspondence was closed when the concern wrote the doctor that they had taken his name off their list.

With many variations of which one can think, this system can be used to confound the confounded necktie concerns, and it is offered to the locally pestered public gratis.

Danielson will be represented by a delegation when the second meeting of District No. 5, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, is held with the J. Avery camp at New London on Saturday evening, January 7. Department officers of Connecticut are expected to be in attendance as well as department officers from Rhode Island. Visitors will include representations of Norwich, Mystic, Danielson, North Grosvenordale, Meriden and Hartford.

Oliver Langevin, 60, claiming Biddeford, Me., as his home is an on-again, off-again, or an out-again, in-again sort of customer. He was released from jail yesterday and went back to Brooklyn today. In the town court this morning Judge W. Fenner Woodward gave Langevin 30 days for having been intoxicated and 60 days on a vagrancy charge. Langevin didn't seem to mind. He is all set for the worst of the winter, and knows where he is going to get his Christmas dinner. He wouldn't be so sure of that if he were a free-sovereign citizen, for he has no regular home.

George L. Gendron, new owner of the Palace Laundry property, has started operations for the rehabilitation of the buildings. Roofers were at work on the main building today and interior repairs will be started at once. Overhauling of the power plant, the installation of a new engine and the addition of new machinery and repair of songs now in the plant are all in Mr. Gendron's program.

YOUR CHRISTMAS MAIL

We have gotten to that point in Christmas week where there is certain to be a severe strain placed upon the postal service. It is the time when everyone is getting packages and bundles started on their way and they hope they will reach their destination before or by Christmas day. Those who have made the most of the last ten days or so have nothing to fear as to the amount of time allowed, while those who wait until the 11th hour must take their chances.

In the mailing of Christmas packages it should be borne in mind that valuable aid can be given to the postal employes by seeing that the address is plainly and correctly placed upon every parcel along with the name and address of the sender. If a package is intended for New York and the sender addresses it "City" it cannot be expected that the mind reading department of the post office will be able to deliver it. Everyone is in a hurry but sufficient time should be allowed for making certain that addresses on packages as well as upon letters are correct.

For the proper protection of the articles within packages and to insure such bundles reaching their destination intact they should be tied securely. This doesn't mean wrapping them up in flimsy paper and putting a piece of common twine about them a couple of times. Such a method of doing up packages seems ridiculous if we stop to think about it, and yet there are those who seem to think they can stand the ravages of a trip through the mail quite as easily as when carefully carried home from the store. Inadequate wrapping is the cause for many lost articles.

Millions of people are expecting much from the postal service these days. They know that excellent results can be anticipated but they should realize that they can do individually a great deal to increase the efficiency by refraining from handicapping delivery by addressing their mail matter of all kinds clearly and fully, putting their return address thereon in all cases and if they are sending packages by wrapping and tying them securely.

PARKING PROBLEMS

The parking problem has been growing, and it can be expected to do so just as long as the number of automobiles increase and owners insist upon leaving their cars in the streets.

In the national capital the merchants on one street are making bitter complaint because they claim they are losing business since a new order has gone into effect requiring parallel instead of angle parking in that street. It was fully understood by the authorities of that city that more cars could be accommodated by the angle parking method, but they also were obliged to take notice of the fact that such parking, with cars constantly backing out into the center of the street was seriously interfering with the moving vehicles which the streets are expected to accommodate. When the flow of traffic is subjected to steady interruptions congestion follows.

The change in the parking regulations in Washington, or in that particular street, is the result of the increased use of the highways. There never was a time when there was so much traffic and there never was a time when there was such a large part of thoroughfares occupied by parked vehicles. In many instances there is just a narrow lane for moving traffic because the rest of the street is occupied by parked cars, some making very brief waits but others there for the full limit and beyond.

When it is advanced that streets are intended for and should be reserved to accommodate the moving traffic there is bound to be opposition from many quarters. Cities are spending millions of dollars to widen streets for the accommodation of increased traffic conditions, but there is justification for the claim that such streets are not being widened for the purpose of providing more parking space. Whether this means that the time is coming when all parking on busy central streets of large cities will be prohibited remains to be seen.

GETTING MORE RUBBER

Demands for rubber are increasing every day. This country is the biggest user of rubber and yet it controls only about 4 per cent. of the world's production. Repeatedly has it been deplored that this situation was not foreseen and provisions made a long time ago to make us less dependent upon other countries and to escape the effects of the tightening of foreign markets. That we didn't is evident and as the result we must take the consequences until conditions can be changed.

In this connection there cannot fail to be a deep interest in the development which has been planned by Henry Ford of nearly 4,000,000 acres of rubber land in Brazil. Acquisition of that acreage is the preliminary step following the decision to produce rubber. Para is a rubber state in Brazil that needs no introduction. Conditions there are favorable to development as rubber plantations. Experts have gone over the ground carefully and considered it from all angles, both as to available help, rubber growing conditions and the amount of raw material that can be made use of in various ways as the land is cleared for rubber planting. It is to be expected that Mr. Ford has gone as thoroughly into the merits of this matter as is characteristic of him in his other enterprises. It will require some years to get the rubber trees of sufficient size to produce, but if this Para field will yield 500 pounds an acre, as expected, it ought to furnish enough raw material to supply not only such needs as Mr. Ford will have for rubber but take care of almost all the raw rubber required by the manufacturers of this country, which amounted to over 354,000 long tons last year.

The increase in rubber consumption is growing yearly so that by the time that field is producing the manufacturers' requirements in this country will be able to take care of this increase without trouble provided the undertaking proves as successful as expected. It is a delayed effort to develop this South American field, but it is backed by a man who usually accomplishes what he undertakes.

MEETING SUBMARINE DISASTERS

While there may have been other cases which seemed to warrant a most thorough consideration of means of meeting just such an emergency as has existed off Provincetown for the past several days, the sinking of the S-4 emphasizes the need of giving thought to it on occasions other than when a submarine lies helpless on the floor of the ocean.

Many suggestions have been offered as to the methods that might be employed for the release of the imprisoned men, or for the getting of air and food to them. It is entirely possible that all of these have been thoroughly gone over by those directing affairs at Provincetown, who are of course in touch with the actual conditions and know whether they the suggestions could be employed. The advancement of an idea does not necessarily mean that it would be feasible or that it could be applied under those particular circumstances.

Another matter which has to be taken into consideration and which most certainly contributes to the helplessness of those striving to master the situation is the opposition being offered by weather conditions. Over such there is no control. Every necessary means of getting the submarine to the surface might be at hand but without favorable weather there is a serious obstacle to progress.

Such a disaster and such a helplessness on the part of humanity to do anything effective for the relief of those men is frightfully distressing. The handicaps of the situation nevertheless call for the devotion of all possible efforts for the provision of some means that will be more effective than those available. As much as we might hope that there will be no more submarine disasters we must make provisions for the contrary. Each experience teaches its new lesson.

GROWING CHRISTMAS TREES

Maine regards its Christmas tree industry as an important one, and well it may when it is estimated that it will receive about $100,000 from the trees that are sold during a six weeks period.

Much has been said against the idea of Christmas trees on the ground that it means the destruction of small trees that ought to be allowed to grow and mature, and because there is so much appreciation of the need of restoring the forests that are cut for lumber purposes.

Reforestation is of vital importance, but even the strongest supporters thereof are cognizant of the fact that the Christmas tree business has little or no bearing theron. The trees that are cut for Christmas represent the thinning out of trees which would have to be sacrificed anyway, while others for the most part are trees which are of little or no value for any other purpose.

It would mean a serious inroad into the future lumber supply of the country if trees which would contribute to such a supply were being utilized in such numbers. Those which are cut are those which have been grown for that particular purpose for the satisfying of a particular demand and when organizations which are laboring for the increase in the woodlands of the country offer no objection to such a practice it cannot be expected that the Christmas tree raisers of Maine or any other states are going to turn away from a chance to increase their incomes. When it is realized that the trade is served from land devoted to supplying such a market the objections disappear. No successful substitute has as yet been produced.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: It may be taking a big chance to mention it, but the traffic signal is still intact.

The gas man might like to tell about stills in the cellars, but when he is ordered to do so he feels differently about it.

The only trouble with the fine progress in federal debt reduction is that it isn't half appreciated by many who are reaping the benefit of it.

Colder weather is making it seem a bit more Christmasy, and we can hear some adding that a little snow would make it even a bit more so.

That Los Angeles fiend deserves the worst and should get it quickly, but with Loeb and Leopold in mind there's no telling what will happen.

One of the complaints of Admiral Magruder seems to be that the navy department is doing what congress ordered it to do. We are getting to the time when there's sure to be speculation as to whether it will be a white Christmas.

THE FIRST OF THE MONTH

"I've got my balance, Gregory. Do you want to look it over?" Gregory Spaulding concealed his astonishment as he glanced across the room at his wife.

"Got it ready, and this the first month since you started to run the whole budget yourself? I should think I would look it over!"

For some minutes there was silence as he bent over the books, dashing off little sums in the margin of his wife's neat accounts.

"Good enough," he finally admitted, "but it does seem to me that we spend quite a little money on H. O. K. I notice that you buy some every few days; just what do you use it for?" Gloria twisted her pencil nervously.

"You see, I don't exactly buy it," she explained. "It just happens when I balance my cash."

"It might help if I knew what the mystic symbols stood for. Is it a secret?"

"Certainly not. It means 'Heaven Only Knows.'" Gregory's amused laughter tapered off into a worried frown.

"It's an ingenious idea," he admitted, "but most of the money for my new spring coat seems to have gone H. O. K."

"I'm sorry, dear."

"Oh, that's all right. I've never kicked on anything you spend, but if we have so much H. O. K. floating around we have to learn—"

Gloria was rescued by the door bell. Investigation disclosed that it was being prodded by a long gentleman who wore a cutaway collar and a permanent smile.

"Mr. Spaulding?" inquired the stranger.

"You probably don't remember me," offered the visitor. "I'm from the church; my name is Kendall."

"From the church?" repeated Gregory stupidly. "Won't you come in, Mr. Kendall? This is Mrs. Spaulding."

"Charming little home you have here," confided Mr Kendall. "No wonder you find it difficult to leave on a Sunday morning. Nevertheless, I believe you should make the effort. It is a shame to let your faces grow so unfamiliar to your old friends."

"We make it whenever we can," explained Gregory.

"Oh, dear! don't misunderstand me," protested Mr. Kendall. "I'm not here to tell you your duty; I merely called as part of our every-member canvass, to tell you a little about our new program."

The gently insistent voice filled the small room without interruption. It touched upon the fine work being done by the church organization and sketched the tremendous strides it would be able to make if provided with slightly increased facilities. He gave the entire essence of religion in one long sentence, punctuated with dollar signs.

"We may consider this in the light of an investment," smiled Mr. Kendall, waving Gregory's check gently to and fro as he took his leave. "An investment in character and right living, if you follow me. Good evening, my friends."

"There are some things a man simply has to do to hold his place in the community," Gregory offered apologetically as the door closed behind their visitor.

"I guess so." Gloria was agreeable but unenthusiastic. "It does seem a shame, though, when you really do need a new coat. By the way, should I put that in with this month's accounts?"

"Put it where it won't show," requested Gregory. Gloria turned the pages of her account book thoughtfully.

"I really don't know—we haven't a page for benevolences yet. What did Mr. Adams-apple call it—an investment? Shall I just put down $10 worth of character?"

"Maybe you'd better put it in the insurance account."

"This says that Stanley Spaulding—not Gregory Spaulding—has just crashed through with $10. Stanley, I believe lives around in the court somewhere. We were always getting his mail. No wonder Mr. Sign-on-the-dotted line found our faces unfamiliar."

"Gregory!" Her voice was anguished. "Well," resignedly, "how shall I enter it?" Gregory lit a comforting cigarette.

"Stanley Spaulding gets the credit here below," he decided, "but if there's any justice they ought to get the names straight in heaven. Just charge it to H. O. K."—Chicago News.

Edward Chappell

From Norwich Bulletin, Oct. 14, 1891.

News was received in Norwich at noon Tuesday of the death of Edward Chappell of the firm of E. Chappell & Co., at Marlboro house, New York city, after a brief illness, at the age of 76.

Edward Chappell was born in New London, Nov. 3, 1815. He came to Norwich in 1839 and associated himself in business with John G. Huntington. After a year or two the co-partnership was dissolved, and he went into business for himself. He made a hard struggle for success, but in 1848 he became embarrassed and failed with large liabilities. His creditors had faith in his strict business ability and integrity, and he immediately resumed business on a new basis. Mr Enoch F. Chapman then entered his employ as a clerk and became a partner in 1863, and has remained his business associate for 43 years. The firm prospered and the business grew to its present proportions, Mr. Arthur H. Brewer being added to the firm, and having acquired one-third interest in the business.

In politics he was a republican and at one time represented his party in the common council.

He was a member of Christ church and a liberal supporter of it.

He was a shrewd business man, and as he increased his capital he became interested in manufacturing establishments in this vicinity, and, at the time of his death, was the largest stockholder in the Ashland mills at Jewett City, the largest local stockholder in the Ponemah mills at Taftville, and the largest stockholder in the Falls company.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles Lathrop Pack, who advocates the prevention of floods by reforestation, is president of the American Tree association and an important figure in conservation of forests work. Few men of wealth have so intelligently followed the theoretical and practical development of forestry and other natural resources, and his experience along these lines enables him to speak as an authority. Mr. Pack has served as president of the American Forestry association and of the national conservation congress. He has also been president of the World's Court league, succeeding John Hays Hammond in that position, and during the war he served as head of the National War Garden commission of the United States. He has played an important part in educational development and aside from his public activities he has been prominent in financial circles in Cleveland and New York.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Be-Christmas Thought.

Mr. Editor: We are not justified in looking at the Bible as a test book of science, because it covers a period of human history long before men were qualified to treat the phenomena of nature scientifically. The main purpose of the Bible—particularly the Old Testament—is to give us the correct record of God's historic work in human redemption, and this it does with the utmost fidelity. The Old Testament is continually pointing to the future. It has a vision of a great event coming for which present things are only a preparation. That event was nothing less than the Light of the World.

YOUR HEALTH

The Motives Behind the Gargas Idea.

By Hamilton Stillson, M. D., Seattle, Wash., Member Gorgas Memorial.

(The following is one of a series of articles prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its Better Health and Longer Life program. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the memorial, which has been organized and endowed by prominent doctors and laymen throughout the country to perpetuate the work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.)

In order to show that we are playing the game fair we have to place our cards upon the table. The physicians who are promoting the Gorgas idea would like to have the public place confidence in their motives in the matter.

Business men who think only of furthering their business interests in all they do cannot understand why physicians who make a living by treating the sick should want to show people how to avoid sickness. To the business man it seems incredible that physicians should insist upon sanitation, pure food, scientific modes of life, since all these things tend to put the physician out of business.

But the physician is more than a minister to the sick. The right-minded physician does more than boost his business. He is a scientist. He is, first of all, a scientist. He cannot become a physician unless he is of a scientific turn of mind. And, like all true scientists, he becomes imbued with the possibilities of his science. As a rule, he is too apt to lose sight of the practical bread-and-butter aspects of his business and to immure himself in the fascinating pursuit of knowledge. It is quite to be expected that the true physician should look through and beyond the sordid sorrows of mankind and envisage the glorious day when preventable diseases will be prevented—when life will be prolonged and we shall be glad we are alive.

There is still something of the priest about your physician. He is constantly brought into very intimate contact with the mysteries of generation of birth, of life, of death; and the priest is actuated by the desire to do all he can to make all these things better.

There is still something of the "voyageur" about your physician. All the great natural sciences were pioneered by physicians who dabbled with their test tubes and collected their butterflies for the sheer delight of the quest.

There is still something of the missionary about your physician. So necessary is this intimate relation that all the missionaries first prepare themselves in the elements of medical science.

Your old family physician is still your safe counselor and most sympathetic friend. How could it be otherwise so long as your suffering becomes his suffering, your recovery his joy, so long as sympathy grows by what it feeds upon?

Therefore, when your family physician suggests that you should come to him once a year to let him give you a thorough physical examination, you may be quite sure he is not actuated by a desire to boost his business. Not at all. He is sincerely desirous of saving you from unnecessary suffering—desirous of forestalling incipient disease.

Saving a duck from death in the breakers has figured for the first time in the history of the life guard force of Atlantic City, N. J. The duck, a fledgling pet of John L. Young Jr., son of Captain Young, waddled out of its pen at the Young residence far out on the big pier, and tumbled into the water, 20 feet below. Stunned by its fall the duck was unable to swim, but life guards who heard the wails of the duck's small owner put out in a boat and saved the bird.

WIFE DESERTED HUSBAND AND FOUR CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Dec. 20—Leaving their four children crying at home, Bennetta O. Kenneway of Putnam, Conn., deserted Leon C. Kenneway of Leicester, at Brookfield, Feb. 10, 1923, and has never lived with him or the children since that time, according to his testimony in probate court yesterday at a hearing on his libel for divorce. Judge Hary H. Atwood granted him a decree nisi of divorce for desertion, which under the Massachusetts law will become absolute in six months. He was also given custody of the children, which he claims to have cared for during the separation of nearly five years.

The marriage of the couple was at Putnam, Conn., April 18, 1913, and they lived together at Worcester and Brookfield. The husband said his wife seemed unusually affectionate, and hugged and kissed him, when he left for his work on the morning of the desertion. He testified thatw hen he returned home that night, he found the children huddled together, crying, and his wife had gone.

Later Mrs. Kenneway wrote to her husband from St. Petersburg, Fla., and that she could not be a hypocrite and live with him when she did not care for him, he told the court. He said he met his wife in Worcester later, when he was walking with his daughter, and the wife suggested that they sell their real estate, which stood in her name, and go back to live together again. He said he agreed to do so, but when she received a check for her half of the property she disappeared.

CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENT SERV.

(Special to The Bulletin)

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE, Dec. 20—A certified check for $400 has been cabled to the European headquarters of the International Student Service as the Christmas gift of the students at Connecticut College for Women, New London-on-the-Thames. The fund, generally known as the Student Friendship fund, represents the contributions of students and faculty here towards the needs of students in European universities, and will be in use for their relief by Christmas day.

This year's gift is the eleventh annual contribution which has gone from Connecticut College for the purpose of helping re-establish pre-war student conditions. The first call for help, which was sent out in 1917, when students and teachers were in war service and in war prisons, asked for $2,500,000 from American colleges. Connecticut college responded with $3,700, which averaged $28 from each professor and $18 from each student. The money raised in 1917 was used largely to supply books and comforts for the prisoners of war who had been university students and teachers, and who were going mad from the restraints of the war prisons and the lack of books or other relief. In subsequent years, the American gift has been used to relieve the post-war conditions of student life and to promote international student friendship.

The amount asked this year from American students was $34,000. Connecticut college's check for $400 represents a proportionate share of the lessened amount equal to the gift of $3,700 made in 1917. The yearly need decreases as reconstruction progresses and peace-time prosperity is re-established. The International Student Service is able to devote more of its activities to the promotion of international understanding among students, now that actual starvation is for the most part relieved.

NORWICH REBEKAHS AT WILLIMANTIC ROLL CALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 20.—An elaborate program was carried out tonight in connection with the initiation of five new members and the roll call of Violet Rebekah lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F., held here tonight. About 145 were in attendance from Norwich, Hartford and local lodges. A supper was served at Odd Fellows' hall at 6.30 and was presided over by Noble Grand Sabra Stoughton. The election of officers resulted as follows:

Noble grand, Edith Larkin; vice grand, Marion St. John; recording secretary, Ruth McCullum; financial secretary, Alice Esterbrooks; treasurer, Louise Johnson; trustees, Sabra S. Stoughton, Sadie Curley and Nettie Reynolds. Adjournment was taken to the town hall where the initiation ceremonies were carried out. Exhibition drills were given by the squads of Liberty lodge of Hartford and the local drill squads in charge of Eldon Johnson, drillmaster. The occasion was also in celebration of the meteofic growth of the local lodge for the past year during which 32 members were received.

Called For Supposed Fire

At 6:15 o'clock Tuesday evening Squad A responded to a call for a supposed fire in the Odd Fellows building. The janitor stoking up the furnace in the basement, was responsible for the summons.

WOMAN'S CITY CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND HEARING AT HARTFORD

A special business meeting of the Woman's City club was held at the Wauregan ball room on Tuesday afternoon with about one-third of the membership present. Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell, recording secretary, read the report of the last meeting. Following this report was that of the treasurer, Mrs. Albert M. Comstock.

Miss Marion L. Bishop, the president, called for reports from various departments. First to respond was Mrs. Shepard B. Palmer finance chairman, who gave a most encouraging resume of the club's finance programme. She said that at the time the different departments budgeted their year's allowance it was upon the basis of the money accumulating from a membership of 500. Now that the club has a membership of approximately 600, this department is keeping well within the original budget which gives promise of at least a small surplus at the end of the year's activities. Mrs. Palmer remarked that surely all members would agree that so far all had received their money's worth.

Mrs. Alan Foster spoke of the financial success of the puppeteers and of the effort which the dramatics department put into making it a success as well as a pleasure.

Regarding the literary round table Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, chairman, announced that those taking place for the remainder of the year would be at 4 p. m. instead of 3 p. m. as listed in the year book. The current events class is being patronized by 294 members and gives every evidence of being better than self supporting during the coming three lectures.

Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, civics chairman, expressed regret that the department tea must be foregone because so many personal and club activities of import have to take precedent. The new mother's child study group, a department of the civics committee is flourishing and grew out of the demand for such a group on the part of the members.

The sanitary committee, another civic sub-committee, has previously reported the action taken in regard to the condition of Lowthorpe Meadows, they have made corrections in one shop in town and are at present at work on better arrangements for ash can disposal.

The parks and trees committee are having their liveliest work this week in connection with a hearing in Hartford on Thursday concerning highways. It is expected that many club members will attend this hearing. The committee and club as a whole are especially interested in preserving as many as possible of the pines in the grove south of the state hospital. It is hoped that some modification of the present plan to ruthlessly destroy 42 trees may be obtained.

After these reports were concluded it was voted that an assistant secretary be appointed as a member of the executive board for the remainder of this year which was the most important new business to come before the club. Mrs. Geraldine Oat Barnet was made a member of the executive board.

At the close of the business session the woman's chorus an important outgrowth of the new music department made its first public appearance. This chorus of 30 women under the direction of Prof. Lawrence Erb of Connecticut college, delighted the club with its rendering of Christmas carols. Among the carols were the beautiful old Latin Christmas hymn, Adeste Fidelis, the German, Holy Night, and the old English God Rest Thee Merry Gentlemen and less familiar, were a group of French carols, The Sleep of the Child Jesus, Joyous Christmas Song, Here a Torch, Isabella and Sing We Noel which were very unusual and most enjoyable.

NORWICH MAN SUES THE CONNECTICUT CO.

William Mell of Norwich has brought suit in the court of common pleas against The Connecticut Co., asking damages of $500. It is claimed by the plaintiff, who is the owner of property in the town of Norwich, along the highway leading from Occum to Baltic, that the defendant company on or about Aug. 25, 1927, placed many cross ties upon his land, which remained there for several weeks and caused the grass, grass roots, dirt and newly seeded ground to become dead and washed. On Nov. 28, of this year, the complaint states, the defendant removed dirt and stone from a gutter in front of his stairs, so that the passing for pedestrians is and has been dangerous and the bank and land washed down into the gutter and the driveway causing it to be in a poor and improper condition.

IRONSIDES BOARD CORP. CREDITORS HELD MEETING

It is expected that the bankrupt estate of the Ironsides Board Corp., of this city will be settled in the near future. Creditors and others interested held a meeting Monday at the office of Referee in Bankruptcy Thomas M. Shields. Attorney Thomas J. Kelly, trustee in bankruptcy of the estate, stated at the meeting that a suit had been brought against the Norwich Savings society and the Uncas Paper Board company, and this claim was settled on a compromise for $2,500, which has been paid over to the trustee. This suit was for $100,000 damages.

Attorney Benjamin Slade of New Haven, counsel for the trustee in the above action seeks $1,250 as his services for effecting the settlement and bringing the suit, while a New York attorney petitions the bankruptcy court for a reasonable allowance for services rendered to the trustee.

ENTERTAINED SMALL GUESTS AT HER BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Miss Arelene Sullivan entertained Monday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sullivan of Ward street in honor of her fifth birthday. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Sullivan assisted by Mrs. Clifford Crary at a prettily decorated table. The Yuletide color scheme was carried out and suspended over the table was a large Christmas bell with streamers at the ends of which were a place card and favor for each guest.

In a short time the veterans will occupy their new quarters, moving from their rooms on Market street. The names of F. L. Piper, H. F. Burdick and Lewis S. Hull, Jr., for the veterans are signed to the lease on record in the office of Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook.

The order was founded by Don James I. King of Arragon, in 1218.

Monsignor Neale was elevated to his present rank and was made a domestic prelate to Pope Pius XI in August, 1924, and received further recognition for distinguished service to his church and state in March, 1926, when he was decorated by the same Pontiff with the Order of Merit.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASS'N. HOLDS MONTHLY MEETING

The December meeting of the shareholders of the Norwich Building and Loan association was held in the chamber of commerce rooms Tuesday evening with a good number in attendance. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented and approved. Three applications for mortgage loans were received and referred to the board of directors. John J. O'Rourke made a report for the committee on the new series of shares, to be opened in January and the plans suggested by the committee were approved.

The president was empowered to appoint a committee of five to present nominations for officers and directors at the annual meeting on January 17th.

At the meeting of the board of directors which followed, the secretary reported upon the loans which had been completed during the past month.

The applications for loans, received from the shareholders meeting, were referred to appraisers.

After the transaction of routine business, it was voted that a dividend be declared for the current six months at the rate of six per cent per annum. This dividend completes a period of three years during which the association has paid dividends of six per cent per annum and during the five year period of 1920 to 1924, inclusive, the dividend rate was five and one half per cent.

The association will mature and pay the second series of shares at the meeting in January.

WILL URGE EARLY START ON RIVER IMPROVEMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Congressman Freeman today received a request from the Norwich chamber of commerce to ascertain if possible when the work of the river improvements from Allyn's Point to Norwich would be commenced. Under the $350,000 appropriation made for that purpose Mr. Freeman will confer with the chief of army engineers and urge that the work begin at the earliest possible date. Mr. Freeman will leave for Florida this week in company with the rivers and harbors committee of the house to investigate the waterway needs of Miami and Hollywood. The trip will consume much of the holiday recess.

RESIDENT CHARGES INCREASED AT CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20.—An increase of $100 in the resident charges for students at Connecticut college was voted by the board of trustees at its December meeting. The increased charge, which will go into affect in July of 1928, will not be applied for the class of 1929, which enters its senior year next fall. The board further authorized the president to rebate the increase in part or in full in cases of needy students, who, in his judgment, find it an impossible financial burden.

The action of the board of trustees follows the inspection of college budgets which has concerned those engaged in the financial aspects of higher education. According to an article in the Atlantic Monthly by the presidents of seven of the leading colleges for women, women's colleges are not sufficiently endowed to provide educational opportunities equal to those offered men at the same price.

The cause of women's education has not yet commanded the vast amount of endowment and public support which education for men enjoys in this country. Consequently, the charges of the colleges for women must approach the cost per capita of the education if the standards are to be preserved.

This latest increase in expenses to the students at Connecticut college follows an addition of $100 to the tuition charge, which went into effect in July of 1927. The charge is now $400 for tuition and $600 for residence, agreeing with the cost of most other women's colleges. Connecticut college lives within a yearly budget, and the increases have come as a direct result of the increased costs of maintenance which are being recognized by institutions and individuals.

SCHAEFER INCREASES HIS LEAD OVER WELKER COCHRAN TO 310 POINTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—Jake Schafer challenger for the world's 18.2 balk line billiards crown, gained a commanding lead over the title holder, Welker Cochran, by taking the third block tonight, 300 to 174. By virtue of his third block victory Schaefer leads Cochran in their 1,500 point match, 900 to 590.

After playing in poor form at the start, Cochran made a courageous comeback in his sixth turn at the table running 93 as a result of some superlative billiard playing. Young Jake, however, retaliated with a beautiful cluster of 137 that put him within four of going out. Cochran, then seemed to break under the strain and he could get but seven although the balls were in good position.

The challenger then ran out with an unfinished run of four.

Cochran now faces the apparently hopeless task of overcoming Schaefer's lead of 310 points with only two more blocks to be played.

Score by innings:

Schaefer—
15-40-50-20-15-9-137-4-300-300

Cochran—
14-24-0-5-3-99-7-174-590

Averages—Schaefer, 37 4-5; Cochran, 24 6-7.

High runs—Schaefer, 137; Cochran 99.

THREE MANAGERS DRAW SUSPENSION IN ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The Illinois State Athletic commission today suspended indefinitely three managers and revoked their licenses, after finding them guilty of maliciously slandering members of the commission.

The commission, in its first major offensive to silence "whisperings" concerning its actions, raised the bars against Duke Barry, manager of Rodeaux Saguero, Cuban light heavyweight; Joe Glaser, manager of Eddie Shea and Walcott Langford; and Dick Curley, pilot of Mike Dundee.

Curley was charged with publicly refusing to be governed by the officials selected to decide the Dundee-Miller bout in the Christmas fund show at the coliseum last night, and also wilfully delaying the appearance of his boxer at the ringside.

Glaser's offense was criticism of a decision in which the judges awarded the verdict to Babe Ruth, of Louisville, over Shea, in their bout of Dec. 13. Glaser, it was charged, circled the ringside after the decision, making slanderous remarks directed at members of the commission and the judges.

Barry drew an indefinite suspension for remarks attributed to him after Saguero had been fined $750 and suspended for 30 days for his poor showing against Chuck Burns, the San Antonio light heavyweight.

Joey Sangor, Milwaukee featherweight, was also indefinitely suspended for refusing to box Benny (Kid) Carter, of Phoenix, in the Christmas fund show last night. Sangor withdrew from the match, claiming he was suffering from infected teeth.

Ray Miller, Chicago junior lightweight, was reprimanded for his poor showing against Dundee last night, but suspension was waived after he agreed to donate $300 of his purse to the Christmas fund. Miller became so cautious that he refused to lead against Dundee and was continually guilty of holding.

HARVARD DOCTOR TREATING DARTMOUTH CAPTAIN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 20.—(AP)—If Dartmouth, one of Harvard's major football opponents next year, is without the services of its captain when it meets the Crimson in 1928, it won't be the fault of Dr. Tommy K. Richards, the Harvard team's doctor.

Dr. Richards was the man who patched up Dud Charlesworth, Yale center, after he had been carried out of the Harvard game this fall with a broken leg, and now the chief of the Crimson hospital staff has finished treating the lingering knee injury which kept "Bullet" Dick Black, Dartmouth captain-elect, out of most of the important games this year.

Charlesworth is now reported busily engaged on a Christmas holiday bank job in North Adams. He has discarded his crutches and walks with only a slight limp. Black came down from Hanover for the Christmas recess to see Dr. Richards and has been informed that his knee should no longer be a weak spot.

MEEHAN IS RE-ENGAGED AS N. Y. U. COACH

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—John F. (Chick) Meehan has been re-engaged as head football coach of New York university according to an announcement tonight by Dean C. Rowland Collins, chairman of the board of athletic control.

This action was made public at the annual dinner tendered by the letter club of the alumni federation to members of the varsity football team at Hotel Commodore.

There were no details outside of the bare announcement. However, it was understood that Meehan signed a new three-year-contract at a reported annual salary of from $10,000 to $15,000.

About a month ago, Meehan served notice on the New York university officials that he would not renew his old contract. Following his act, alumni waged a campaign for him to reconsider and conferences between the coach and members of the board of athletic control resulted. Satisfactory arrangements were made, whereby differences over schedule and coaching matters were adjusted.

JUDGES DISAGREE ON GIVING FIGHT VERDICTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—A puzzled New York state athletic commission today considered with much scratching of heads the problem of synchronizing the judging of fights at Madison Square Garden and other clubs about New York.

Even more perplexing than the widely divergent views of two judges and a referee on the winner of individual rounds in the battle between Jack Sharkey and Jack Dempsey here last summer were the cards turned in to the commission today by officials at the junior lightweight championship tilt between Tod Morgan, Seattle titleholder, and Joe Glick, buttonhole maker of Brooklyn, last Friday night.

Glick was disqualified for fouling Morgan in the fourteenth round of a stirring battle after dumping the champion to the floor in the second session and twice in the fifth for lengthy counts.

As for the entire bout, Forbes gave Morgan seven rounds, Glick five and called one even, on the other hand Judge Patrick awarded the champion only four rounds, and gave Glick a margin in nine with one drawn on a basis of fourteen rounds. Barnes came in between with six rounds for Morgan, four for Glick and three even.

The commission suspended Glick indefinitely for fouling Morgan and gave him little encouragement when he asked for another match with the titleholder.

The pugilistic solons awarded the world flyweight championship to Corporal Izzy Schwartz, tiny army warrior, who conquered Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, Ia., on the same card with the Glick-Morgan bout. Schwartz succeeds as far as New York is concerned to the throne abdicated by Fidel LaBarba, California champion who quit the ring to go to college. The National Boxing association has recognized "Frenchy" Belanger, of Toronto, as the champion.

RED SOX WILL START SOUTH IN FEBRUARY

BOSTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—Bill Carrigan will take advantage of leap year's extra day to throw his entire 1928 Red Sox playing roster on to the new southern new drill grounds at Bradenton, Fla., before the end of February, the earliest date he has ever started work as a big league manager.

According to present plans, the battery men wil report for work on February 22 and a week later on February 29, the year's extra day, the rest of the team is due. The start would be made even earlier, if practical, the Red Sox pilot intimated, due mainly to his discovery last year of what he considered an amazing lack of knowledge of fundamentals on the part of the players.

Carrigan returned to his home in Lewiston, Me., after the big league meetings in New York last week to spend Christmas with his family, but as soon after the holidays as possible he plans to leave for the south with President Bob Quinn to look over the Bradenton facilities and prepare the plant for the coming of the squad two months later. The trip was planned as a precautionary measure, prompted by previous experience with southern optimism over climate and playing conditions.

FOUR TIE FOR FIRST HONORS IN $1500 OPEN

LA JOLLA, Cal., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Four golfers, Al Espinosa, Chicago Country club professional; Tony Manero, Fairview Country club, New York; Ed. Dudley, Hollywood, Cal., and Hutt Martin, Long Beach, Cal., shared first honors in the 36 hole open tournament for $1500 purse at the La Jolla Country club today. Each turned the two 18 hole laps of the course in 143 strokes.

"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn finished next with 145 strokes, while Roy Tufts, San Diego Country club professional, trailed Mehlhorn with 146. Horton Smith, Springfield, Mo., turned in a card of 147, and Al Watrous, Rapid Rapids, Mich. 148. The four top players split the purse.

La Jolla's well trapped course brought trouble to many of the golfers, and only two broke par Al Espinosa and Tony Manero, the former of Chicago, and the latter of New York, each go a 70, one under par on the first round, but thereafter par stood all assaults.

The final hole, a par four dog leg, brought the tie for first money. Espinosa, Martin, Dudley and Manero, the low four, each with a chance to win, took a five on the final hole.

The leaders, unable to play off their tie because of darkness, split the first four money prizes, getting $206.25 each. Mehlhorn collected $100, and Roy Tufts, and James Duncan $74 each. Horton Smith, Willie Hunter and Al Watrous each collected $50.

Tommy Armour, United Sates open champion, was just outside the money with 152, two 76's.

C. F. C. TEAM PREPARING FOR BATTERY E. FIVE

The C. F. C. is now getting ready for Battery E. of Westerly, which comes here next Monday evening for a basketball tilt at the Y gym. The locals opened their season by trimming this club at Westerly, winning after a torrid battle.

The locals have shown well this season, losing but one game but even there they played good basketball for it was the strong Central Baptists of Hartford that they were up against. The win over the well-known Noank Crescents has instilled confidence into the boys and all that now seems to be needed is to guard against any overabundance of this confidence.

Coach Davis is drilling his team hard for this fray and present indications are that he will be enabled to start all of his regulars.

NEWSIES EVEN SERIES WITH "Y" JUNIORS

The Norwich Newsboys evened up their indoor baseball series with the Y Juniors Tuesday evening at the Y gym at one-all by staging a sensational 7 run last inning rally and winning 12 to 7. Play was at fever heat throughout with neither team having anything like a commanding lead until the fateful last (or sixth) inning.

The Juniors previously defeated this team and the third and final game of the series comes next Tuesday evening.

Rutchik, captain of the winners, pitched and Charashick caught him while Lambert, another captain twirled for the Y and Risutto was on the receiving end.

Banff, the famous resort of the Canadian Rockies, will hold its annual carnival of winter sports from February 4 to 11.

TUNNEY WILL START TRAINING IN FLORIDA

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Gene Tunney shortly will institute a training campaign in Florida to put himself on "edge" for any necessary defense of his world's heavyweight boxing toga.

This was indicated by the champion's announcement on his arrival here today from New York for a two weeks' vacation. He said he would return to Miami Beach for a protracted stay shortly after the "champions' dinner" to be given in New York Jan. 4 by the Madison Suare Garden club.

"And, as for my training during the winter, it will be light, just enough golf, swimming and outdoor exercise to keep in condition" the champion said.

Tunney trained here during the two winters preceding the battle at Philadelphia in which he won the title.

Genaro Gets Decision

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Frankie Genaro, contender for the muddled flyweight championship, received a newspapermen's decision over Willie Lamorte of Newark here tonight in a 10-round bout. Genaro weighed 114 pounds, one more than his opponent. Jay Lawless, Harrison heavyweight, knocked out Young Monroe of Newark in the first round of a scheduled ten rounder.

Mueller Is Sold

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Clarence "Heinie" Mueller, outfielder of the New York Giants, was sold outright today to the Toledo club in the American association. The purchase price was not announced.

SPORT SLANTS

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—Tex Rickard's more or less well known "600 millionaires", or rather the guiding spirits among them, seem determined on a campaign of "good will" as in indirect method of bolstering the none too stable foundations of the prize ring.

By this means, perhaps, the wealthy members of the Madison Square Garden club hope to take the minds of boxing fandom off sundry events of the past season, which included a succession of unsatisfactory decisions, cries of "fair or foul" and reports of gambling coups that, to close ring observers, boded no good for the future of boxing, especially in New York.

One of the latest manifestations of the "uplift" movement in the new Garden policy is the conspicious support aroused by the "600 millionaires" for amateur boxing, especially in financing the trip of the Olympic fistic team to Amsterdam next year.

Emphasis is laid upon this to offset any impression that the Garden share-holders are more interested in clipping coupons or counting gate receipts than they are in the development and welfare of the manly art.

To further demonstrate this interest in the simon-pure as well as the "Pro", the Garden club will be hosts to "Big Bill" Tilden, Bobby Jones and Johnny Weissmuller as well as to Gene Tunney and Babe Ruth in an "all champions" dinner on January 4th.

The gossip at the cauliflower crossroads now is that if Mr. Gene Tunney has his much-discussed brace of battles next season, the first will be against his ancient rival, Jack Dempsey, and the other—providing he wins—against the survivor of the "elimination" tournament, if any.

The assumption apparently is that if Dempsey essays another comeback, he will want to get it over with but there is not much business logic in this. In two bouts last summer, Dempsey made more than in any year when he was champion, his gross return was nearly as much as Tunney collected in his one million-dollar bout. Another prelude to a third title bout would mean just that much more financial return for Dempsey but the old mauler may prefer to take it in one lump next year, rather than risk a preliminary setback that would put him out of the picture.

Fewer flyweights are flitting around with title claims, as a result of the latest eliminations since the retirement of Fidel Labarba, but the situation is still a bit muddled.

At least three 112-pounders now have some official backing for their championship claims. Lately acquired are those of Corporal Izzy Schwartz, recognized as titleholder by the New York State Athletic commission, and Frenchy Belanger, accorded similar distinction by the wide-flung National Boxing association. But on the Pacific coast it is difficult to convince fans that either has a better claim to the title than Johnny McCoy, of El Paso, who won the California Boxing commission's elimination tournament.

A round robin among this trio would clear the air and set up a generally recognized successor to Labarba.

BOSTON NATIONALS WILL OPPOSE PLAINFIELD PROS THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 20—In facing the Boston Nationals at the Community House on Wednesday evening the Plainfield Pros stack up against one of the leading basketball aggregations that has yet invaded the local domain. Coming to Plainfield with a record of successive wins the Nationals are taking no chances on running against a snag in the Plainfield outfit, which is gaining a wide reputation, and will send in what is considered by basketball experts to be one of the most formidable lineups in New England.

Led by Snappy O'Connell, well known guard, the Nationals present a tough combination in Lauty Waters and Carven, forwards of the first magnitude. Waters has been attracting the attention of the basketball enthusiasts in and around Boston with his flashy game and is considered by sports writers to be the basketball find of the season. Carven is the exact duplicate of Jimmy Malcolm, high scorer of the Connecticut State league, both in physical make up and in the style of game played. At center is the renowned "Coo' Thompson who is rated as the best center in New England and much of the success of the Nationals can be credited to Thompson for his ability to out-jump his opponents at the tap-off. The other member of the quintet is Klim who plays the other guard position. Klim is a deadly shot with a basketball, dropping in shots from all angles and distances, an ability which makes him one of the most feared floorworkers in the game. He is tall and lean, towering many inches over the average player, and added to this advantage is his brilliant speed which makes him a hard man to stop.

Plainfield will have plenty to do to stop this team and that Manager Salisbury realizes this is evidenced in the fact that several extra long training sessions have been in order since the game was booked. Scoring plays have been carefully worked out as well as a defense against the elusive Klim. Bernot and Brusso who have played several times against the Nationals have assisted materially with their advice and of course will take the floor against the invaders Wednesday night. Stavinitsky, who is now playing with the state league, will be at center while Madden, Dissinger, Normandin, and Nichols will be candidates for the other berths on the team.

The game bids fair to be one of the best of the season and accommodations for a capacity crowd have been made. As usual there will be dancing following the game. A fast preliminary has been scheduled for 8 o'clock.

TO ORGANIZE CLASS A FOOTBALL LEAGUE

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 20—(AP)—Nine high schools in widely different parts of the state wil be invited to attend a meeting at the Graduate's club in New Haven on January 14, at 11 a. m., to discuss the feasibility of forming a class A scholastic football league. Dr. Walter B. Spencer, president of the Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic conference and principal of the New Haven Commercial high school, who is calling the meeting will send out the letters of invitation tomorrow morning.

The schools invited to attend are the Warren Harding and Central high schools in Bridgeport, the New Haven Commercial and Hillhouse high schools in New Haven, Stamford high school, the Hartford public, Weaver and Bulkeley high schools in Hartford and the Crosby high school, Waterbury.

Crique Fails In Comeback

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(AP)—An attempt by Eugene Crique to come back in the ring failed tonight when the former featherweight champion of the world lost by a technical knockout in the sixth round to Tiger Humery, one of several claimants of the French championship.

Crique's gameness was the only redeeming feature of the bout, in which he was outclassed from the start.

HORNSBY MAKES GENERAL DENIAL OF RACING DEBTS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20—(AP)—A general denial of indebtednes to Frank L. Moore, Cincinnati betting commissioner, was made today by Rogers Hornsby, captain of the New York Giants and former manager of the St. Louis cardinals, testifying in defense of Moore's suit against him.

Moore, a former intimate friend of the ball player had sued for $45,075, alleging Hornsby owed that amount for unsuccessful horse race bets which Moore had made good for the second baseman among transactions between them totaling $327,995 from Dec. 1925 to March 1926.

Before Hornsby took the stand, however, Circuit Judge McElhinney whittled down the amount of the suit to $36,230 by sustaining demurrers to two counts wherein evidence given by Moore was that he gave that amount to Mrs. Hornsby for bets placed by her and lost, on behalf of her husband. The court held Hornsby was not liable for money given his wife.

Vigorous of speech and manner, Hornsby gazed steadily at the Jury, Moore or his own attorneys, as he testified. He denied specifically that he owed Moore $4,930 which the betting commissioner said he had paid Phil McGuire, a New York sportsman, at Hornsby's request.

"Are you a professional gambler?" one of Moore's attorneys asked.

"No," Hornsby replied.

"Are you an amateur gambler?"

"That is for you to decide," Hornsby answered with a laugh.

Hornsby denied he was a professional writer, stating that Moore is doing all the news writing in this case. Hornsby admitted however, that he had written syndicated articles for newspapers.

Conn. Power League Opens

WATERBURY, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Meriden, Waterbury and Branford quintets won the opening games of the state basketball league of the Connecticut Light and Power company here tonight. Meriden defeated Norwalk 28 to 3; Waterbury defeated New Milford 24 to 16 and Branford defeated New Britain 15 to 13.

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE OPENS AT "Y"

Brothers of Joseph and Central Baptist got off with one sided wins in the opening games of the Junior Church league Tuesday at the Y gym. The Brothers duplicated the performance of the Senior team last week by trimming the First Baptists. The score was 10 to 3. In the second game the Park Congregational team was the victim falling before the Central Baptists by a 39 to 4 score.

The first half in the Brothers-Baptist game was close, the ultimate winners having but a 2 to 1 margin at its end. However, a spurt in the second half settled matters. Segal was high scorer with 8 points.

In the other game Hynd was the only Park performer able to break through the Central defense for scores. He counted on two fields goals while Dickerman and Lambert ran wild to score 30 of the winner's 39 points.

POETRY

A Fine Night in Winter

This night of sweetly-perfumed air
Should not have fallen to December's share.
This is such sweetness as young April breathes,
When violet-girdled spring her garland wreaths
When wall-flowers crowd the borders,
And in the sun
Hyacinth bells are opening one by one,
And tulip buds are red-stained at the tips,
And pear-trees are like full-rigged sailing ships—
In such a place, on such a day stood I,
And watched fine weather walking in the sky,
Through pearly clouds threaded the azure day
And winter seemed a thousand years away.

Here are no flowers, and overhead I see
The quick stars leaping in a leafless tree;—
Not to December's iron share
This night of perfumed air!
—Sylvia Lynd, in London Mercury.

In the Still Star-Lit Night

In the still star-lit night,
By the full fountain and the willow tree,
I walked, and not alone—
A spirit walked with me!

A shade fell on the grass;
Upon the water fell a deeper shade:
Something the willow stirred,
For to and fro it swayed.

The grass was in a quiver,
The water trembled, and the willow tree
Sighed softly; I sighed aloud,
The spirit taunted me.

All the night long I walked
By the full fountain, dropping icy tears
I tore the willow leaves;
I tore the long, green spears!

I clutched the quaking grass,
And beat the rough bark of the willow tree;
I shook the wreathed boughs,
To make the spirit flee.

It haunted me till dawn,
By the full mountain, and the willow tree
For with myself I walked—
How could the spirit flee?
—Elizabeth Stoddard.

SELLING PRESSURE FAILED TO HALT ADVANCE IN THE PRICES OF STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Selling pressure increased in today's stock market, but speculators for the advance nevertheless retained control of the price movement. New leaders were brought forward whenever the old favorites showed signs of weakening, final quotations disclosing a rather long list of net advances ranging from 1 to 10 points, interspersed with a small number of 1 to 7 point declines. For the fourth successive day, the average of 20 leading industrial issues registered a new high record for all time. Total sales fell just below 3,000,000 shares.

Operators working for higher prices had to contend with two unfavorable market developments during the day, the omission of the Pan-American Petroleum dividends and the announcement that a senate committee would hold a hearing, January 16, on the Walsh resolution for the investigation of public utility companies. Wall street had been led to believe yesterday that the proposed investigation had been sidetracked so far as this session of congress was concerned.

Continued ease of money rates, indicating the presence of a huge investment demand, coupled with favorable 1928 business forecasts, tended to maintain bullish enthusiasm. Another flock of extra dividends was announced during the day. Industrial news was rather scarce, but such trade reports as came to hand were cheerful in tone.

Outside the stock market, chief speculative interest centered in the drop of 1 to 2 cents a bushel in wheat futures in reflection of the bearish interpretation placed upon the final government grain crop estimate. The slight stiffening of sterling exchange suggested the likelihood of further shipments of gold to England towards the end of the week. With the exception of a 10 point drop in Spanish pesetas. Other foreign currencies held relatively steady.

Unusually heavy trading took place in General Motors, which closed 1 3-8 points net higher at 138 1-4. One block of 18,000 shares changed hands at 135 early in the afternoon. Hudson, Chrysler and Nash also advanced a point or more in heavy trading.

U. S. Steel common, which had been heavily bought earlier in the week on talk of a special dividend distribution next year, ran into heavy profit-taking, closing 1 1-4 points lower at 147 7-8. Some of the other steels made a strong showing. Midland Steel Products preferred was run up 10 points to a new record top at 242 and then eased to 240. Vanadium crossed 67 to a new peak and then lost all the day's gain.

Pan-American issues each touched 40 1-4, the lowest price in several years on the dividend action, and then rallied about a point. Sinclair, which was in brisk demand on reports of buying by Standard Oil of Indiana interests, yielded fractionally on realizing. Mexican Petroleum, once a spectacular performer, appeared on the tape for the first time in weeks, 10 shares changing hands at 250, a gain of 25 points above the previous sale.

American Smelting suddenly assumed the leadership of the copper group by jumping more than 8 points to a new top at 154 1-4. Calumet & Arizona soared nearly 10 points to 119 1-4 and was accompanied into new high ground by Anaconda, Chile, Kennecott, Howe Sound and Utah. Among the many other issues to reach new high ground were American Can, Continental Can, Lee Rubber, A. M. Byers, Electric Power, Liquid Carbonic, Fox Films A, City Stores B, Brown Shoe and Brunswick Terminal.

Amalgamated Leather broke nearly 7 points to a new low at 73, and conspicuous heaviness also was shown by Adams Express, Gotham Hosiery, National Biscuit, Otis Steel Prior preferred, Porto Rican Tobacco A and B, and Twin City Rapid Transit.

Rails moved forward with the industrials, with the establishment of the highest price in 12 years by New Haven as one of the few features. The Union Pacific Railroad, one of the few to report its November earnings today, made a favorable comparison with the same month last year.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

There was little interest in the commodity markets outside of grain. Cotton futures closed moderately lower.

Reddy Fox Rubs It In.

There's nothing meaner that I know
Than taunting others with their woe.
—Old Mother Nature.

You will remember that Reddy Fox saw Farmer Brown's Boy take Terror the Goshawk from the top of the telephone pole, where he was caught in a trap. He saw Terror carried away in a bag and then Reddy raced away to tell Mrs. Reddy the news.

Now Reddy Fox has quite as much curiosity as Peter Rabbit or any of the other little people. The chief difference is that Reddy is more clever in keeping his curiosity from getting him into difficulties. As he raced home he wondered if Farmer Brown's Boy would keep Terror a prisoner or if he would kill him. Knowing Farmer Brown's Boy as he did he felt quite sure that Terror would not be killed.

"He'll probably keep him a prisoner," said Reddy to Mrs. Reddy. "Yes, sir, he'll probably shut Terror up and keep him a prisoner. I hope he'll keep him where we can see him. I should just love to go over and tell him what I think of him."

"How do you know?" demanded Reddy.

It wasn't long before Reddy and Mrs. Reddy knew just what Farmer Brown's Boy had done. Sammy Jay brought the news. "He has him in a cage out in the barnyard!" cried Sammy excitedly.

"How do you know?" demanded Reddy.

"Because I've seen him," retorted Sammy. "You can see him yourself if you will go over there."

Reddy pretended not to be interested. "Why should I care?" said he. "Farmer Brown's dooryard is a good place to keep away from these days. Terror can be a prisoner over there for all I care." Reddy turned away in a careless manner, as if the subject didn't interest him any longer. But down inside he was fairly itching to get over to Farmer Brown's dooryard.

Reddy did keep away all that day. But when night came Reddy headed straight for Farmer Brown's. Yes, sir, he headed straight for a certain place where he could watch Farmer Brown's house and see when the lights went out. Just as soon as the last light winked out Reddy ran swiftly over to the dooryard. He made sure that Browser the Hound was nowhere about. It didn't take him half a minute to discover the cage in which was Terror the Goshawk. Straight over to it trotted Reddy. The moonlight shone in. At first Reddy could see no one. Then he made out the form of Terror, sitting where he was sheltered by some boughs that Farmer Brown's Boy had put on the top of the cage at one side. Reddy grinned.

"Hello, you robber!" said Reddy in a very unpleasant manner. "How do you like your new quarters?"

Terror made no reply. He didn't even give Reddy the satisfaction of looking at him. He acted as though Reddy were not there at all.

"Perhaps this will teach you to stay at home where you belong," said Reddy. "That is, it will if you ever get a chance to get home. You probably never will. Now that he's caught you Farmer Brown's Boy probably won't let you go. Now don't you wish you had left his chickens alone? If you had left his chickens alone you wouldn't be here now. It serves you right. I'm glad of it. I guess there are a lot of people glad of it. You ought to have known enough to stay up North where you belonged. See what comes of going where you have no business to be. I always supposed you were smart enough to keep out of traps. Yes, sir, I always supposed you were smart enough to keep out of traps. You"

Reddy didn't finsh. He had turned his head just then to look over his shoulder, and there was Bowser the Hound just coming around the corner of the cage. Reddy almost turned a back somersault in his haste to get away.

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20.—At the Union station everything is practically ready for the abandonment of the building as the headquarters of the New London division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. A week from next Sunday, at midnight, the division will be merged with the New Haven division at which time many of the employes will be transferred to New Haven and Providence. Many others will be discharged and will be compelled to seek employment elsewhere.

That those officers and sailors, who have been alive since the S-4 was sunk off Provincetown, Mass., last Saturday afternoon when the undersea boat was rammed by the destroyer Paulding, will suffer death in the compartments of the boat, the same as the others did, there does not appear to be the slightest doubt. The navy wreckers again today were unable to accomplish any work of salvaging the submarine, although divers went to the ocean bed and signalled to the imprisoned men. The signals were answered, but only faintly, indicating that the surviving members of the crew were in an extremely weakened condition. At the submarine base here at 6 o'clock tonight a radio message was received, which said that because of the terrific gale and the heavy seas, no work could be performed in an effort to raise the submerged boat. The divers reported the temperature 34 degrees at the bottom of the ocean.

The members of Northwest Hose company enjoyed a supper tonight, the affair being attended by a hundred or more members of the organization.

Two drunks occupied cells at police headquarters tonight, one of them being arrested at the Union station, the other being a sailor from the United States Coast Guard station, who was found helpless on North Bank street. The sailor was unable to aid himself in walking and was brought into police headquarters over the shoulder of a provost guard.

NORTH STONINGTON

The Women's league of the Baptist church gave a noonday dinner Thursday at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Lucian Drury, serving baked beans, escalloped potato, boiled ham, brown bread, rolls, relishes, pie and coffee. The proceeds were donated by the league toward the Christmas expenses of the Bible school. Among attendants at the dinner from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sweetser, of Jewett City; Mr. and Mrs. Appleton Main, of Poquetanuck, and Mrs. Albert Kinmouth, of Ledyard.

Mrs. William P. Babcock, who has been ill with grip for more than two weeks, is still confined to her room.

The Congregational Bible school is to have its Christmas celebration on the evening of Dec. 22. The Baptist Bible school will observe the joyous festival on the evening of Dec. 26.

The Women's union of the Congregational church gave an amusing play, Mr. Bob, with a cast of nine Friday evening. In spite of a stormy evening the attendance was good.

The schools will close for a vacation Friday.

Miss Constance Pendleton, who has been attending a conference of college students in Lincoln, Neb., will arrive at her home here for Christmas. Miss Pendleton, who is a junior in Wheaton College, was sent to this conference by vote of the college, having all her expenses paid.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Mrs. Mary E. Hartman of New York was a Central Village Sunday visitor.

The children are all displaying Red Cross pins, proving that they have done their bit in the good work. It is tough on some of the shop keepers however, when 40 little ones a day insist on selling stamps when the cash drawers are already comfortably filled. A better system of stamp sales should be arranged by another season, whereby the children could go in districts and not repeat.

Mr. Cutler continues ill.

MYSTIC

THREE PLUCKY WOMEN SUCCEED AT GOAT-RAISING

Mrs. Elizabeth Meadowcroft and daughters, Melissa C. and Betty L. Meadowcroft, resided for several years at Cedar Crest, West Mystic. Seven years ago they went to live on a farm that was left them by Mr. Meadowcroft and from which they did not receive much income. The farm is about a mile from Guilford and is known as the Mulberry farm. They decided that the farm was suitable for raising of goats. The girls were fond of animals, having kept one or two. They also raise cattle that are reared on goats' milk. They co-operate with the 4-H club of the state and have raised a better class of cattle. They have diligently studied books on the line of work they have adopted and have acquired knowledge of their business and are fast becoming good judges of goats and stockk. They have succeeded in the business and have a high grade of goats and cattle. They are expert auto drivers and occasionally come to Mystic to call on friends and several from here have gone to see their up-to-date farm and what three women have accomplished as farmerettes in seven years.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Wolfe. Mrs. Julia Coates, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Wolf read the secretary and treasurer's report, showing the members have been active in raising funds. The monthly suppers have increased in attendance adding to the treasury. The society has held sales connected with the suppers and the total amount earned during 1927 was $665.47, most of which will be used for expenses of the church. The society has lost one member by death, Mrs. Addie Packer Batty, who was faithful in her work, generous and is greatly missed. All the officers were re-elected as follows: President, Mrs. Julia B. Coates; vice presidents, Mrs. R. H. Wilcox and Mrs. J. W. Phillips; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. H. Wolfe.

Old Mystic Social circle met in the Methodist parish house Monday evening. After a short business session Christmas festivities were enjoyed. Each had brought a little gift and these were placed around a prettily decorated Christmas tree. Refreshments were served, ice cream being provided for all.

Grange members who have attended the state Grange meetings remember William F. Clark, who died Monday morning in Old Lyme. He had held the office of gate keeper for 12 years. He had a keen memory and could recall each person as he or she passed in out of the door. He will be missed at the annual session in January.

The 20 new books added to the Mystic-Noank library are in a case plainly marked "New Books," where they are most convenient to the public.

Mrs. Ada L. Swett, retiring worthy matron of Charity chapter, O. E. S., entertained her associate officers at her home Saturday evening. Nineteen were present.

West Mystic grammar school has arranged to give a little play and program Thursday afternoon when school closes for the holiday recess.

The Ladies' society of the Methodist church is to meet Thursday afternoon in the vestry.

John E. Fribance and W. L. Main were in New London Monday on business.

MYSTERY ABOUT THE SHOOTING OF COAST GUARDSMAN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—Roman Jasilan, 23, a Filipino, a member of the United States Coast Guard stationed at the academy at Fort Trumbull is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital. He is suffering from a bullet wound, believed to have been self-inflicted, although that fact has not been established. A board of inquiry has been ordered to investigate the shooting for the purpose of ascertaining whether Jasilin sent the bullet into his body with intention to destroy himself, or whether the projectile was discharged by careless or unskillful handling.

Jasilin, who is a mess attendant in the cadets' mess hall, had been in ill health a long time, but his condition had not been such as to cause him to be confined to his bed. His impaired health is the only reason that coast guard officials could advance if the wound was inflicted by the Filipino in an endeavor to be relieved of his suffering by death. Jasilin was said to be of excellent character and a skilled mess attendant.

Jasilin was about the mess hall as usual this morning and apparently was in good humor. In some manner he had been able to obtain possession of a 45-calibre revolver of foreign make. Without any warning to other attendants of the mess hall, a shot rang out and Jasilin was observed to collapse. Attendants rushed to Jasilin's assistance and as the Filipino was bleeding profusely, from an abdominal wound a hurried summons was made for Dr. Knight, head surgeon. Dr. Knight made a hasty examination of Jasilin's wound and then ordered him taken to the hospital. A short time after Jasilin had been admitted to the hospital an operation for the removal of the bullet was performed and this afternoon it was said that the condition of the patient was "fairly good."

NORWICH FEEDER CO. SALE IS ONLY JUST RECORDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—Although the Norwich Automatic Feeder company business, corner of Goshen and Trumbull streets, owned by Mrs. Harry H. Walker of this city, was sold some time ago with all the equipment and appurtenances used in the factory, to J. Mortimer Specht, of Pelham Manor, N. Y. The deed recording the sale was not filed at the office of the city clerk until this afternoon.

There was no session of the police court today, but tomorrow three cases of violation of the state motor vehicles will be given a hearing. Fred Gaskell, 25 Garfield avenue, will be charged with reckless driving. Gaskell was driving his automobile on Garfield avenue yesterday and at the corner of Connecticut avenue, it collided with a Packard coach, owned by Jeremiah F. Fitzgerald of Williams street which was driven by Frederick Tinker. Both cars were overturned. Frank Melhis, 30 Home street and Francis J. Southard, 76 Harrison street, will be charged with evasion of responsibility and driving without a license, respectively. Both were arrested last night by State Police Officer Peter Busch of Groton barracks. Southard owns an automobile and several weeks ago he permitted Meihls to use it and supplied Meihls with his driver's license, as Meihls had none. During his driving, the auto collided with another car and Meihls evaded responded for he rove away without stopping to learn the extent of the damage caused. The state police yesterday learned of the deception entered into by Miehls and Southard and the arrest of the pair followed.

Miss Harriet Beckwith of Niantic: Louis Battista, 46 Cohen street; Joseph Ramanuka, United States Coast Guard state pier; Harry Hastings, Nathan Hale street; Miss Lucia Chapman, 847 Ocean avenue and Ray Patwshapaw, Uncasville, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral services for Mrs. Mary S. Fleming, widow of Daniel Fleming, formerly of Groton, were held this morning at 9 o'clock at Sacred Heart church, Groton, and were attended by a large gathering of mourners. The high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. William J. Fox. The bearers were John Toohey, William Armstrong, Robert Fleming Thomas Barrett, David Armstrong and John Fleming. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, New London.

Frances E. Enos, aged three weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Enos died yesterday at the residence of her parents, 59 Bayonet street.

Traffic Officer John Courtney is confined to his home, 17 Town Hill court, on account of illness.

DELAY IN MAILING SWAMPS POST OFFICE FORCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—In spite of the urging for several weeks by the New London postmaster that people do their Christmas mailing early, this post office is more badly cluttered up with holiday packages and mail than ever before. Even a force of extra help has been unable to keep pace with the deluge of mail that has been coming in. From morning until night the lobby of the post office is jammed with people. Postmaster Walter M. Slocum states that the postponement of mailing parcels and Xmas cards until the last few days before the holiday works such a hardship on postal employes that when Christmas comes they are too fagged out to enjoy it. Even by working all day and night with extra help it is impossible to keep mail moving to its destination on scheduled time.

Mrs. Gustav Christophersen, of 66 Elm street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

The highway department of the city is keeping a force of laborers at work repairing streets where dangerous depressions exist. The rough places are being filled with a composition of blue stone and tar. Today the workers gave North Bank street attention.

Andrew W. Holman, formerly of 325 Williams street, this city, who committed suicide at Bangor, Me., Sunday night by swallowing a quantity of poison and whose lifeless body was found in bed at a hotel yesterday, is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Elsie Potter and by two brothers, residents of Maine. The brothers ascribe the New London man's rash act to ill health. Mr. Holman had resided in New London several years and conducted a school teachers' agency. The body was brought to New London tonight.

John Mullen, 58, former well known gardener for many years residing on Broad street extension, Groton, died suddenly of heart disease at his home yesterday afternoon. He is survived by his wife. Mr. Mullen remained at his home throughout the day and apparently he was in good health for he had not been complaining of being ill. During the late afternoon and during the absence of Mrs. Mullen, her husband had evidently felt the attack coming on and had started for the kitchen, supposedly to obtain a drink of water. When Mrs. Mullen returned home she found her husband's lifeless body on the floor. Mr. Mullen was born in Dumbarton, Scotland. He came to the United States when but 17 and went to Providence, where he was employed by a florist, later coming to New London and was employed here by the late Edward Clark. Several years ago, Mr. Mullen moved to Groton. Mr. Mullen's last employment was for Belton A. Copp, as gardener on Mr. Copp's big estate in Groton.

The Ladies' Aid society of Groton Congregational church yesterday donated $100 to the church, the money to be used toward defraying the general expenses.

Oramel J. Breskway and Mrs. Ella L. Chappell, both of Norwich were married yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Baptist church by Rev. Chester H. Howe.

The Salvation Army hotel, corner of State and North Bank streets closed its doors last night and today the furnishings of the place are being sold or removed to the army headquarters on Main street. The building was recently purchased by the W. S. Alling Rubber company and after the first of the year alterations will be made to the building, which will provide a large store on the ground floor with offices on the two upper floors.

Continued improvement was noted today in the condition of Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, Howard street, wife of Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, who was operated upon at Lawrence-Memorial hospital yesterday.

Robert and Edward Henkle, sons of Dr. and Mrs. Emanuel A. Henkle of Federal street, students at Cornell university, are spending the holiday with their parents.

Mrs. Jacob Henry has returned to her home in New Haven, having visited with friends in this city.

NORWICH BUSINESS MAN AT THAMES CLUB CELEBRATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 20—Owen C. Wolfe, Norwich business man; Edgar T. Thomas and Dr. E. Oliver Winship celebrated their birthdays yesterday and as the three are members of the Thames club, members of that organization tendered them a reception at the club house last night. The event was attended by about 50 other members, who extended to Messrs. Wolfe, Thomas and Winthrop hearty felicitations. Charles B. Whittlesey was the toastmaster and Robert C. Symington made the speech in the presentation of gifts to the three members. A suckling pig supper was served in the grill room during the celebrating of the event.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

An unusual vaudeville bill has been booked for presentation at the Palace theatre for the last three days of the week, commencing tomorrow. It is an all girl vaudeville show, made up entirely of women and boasting of names that mean much in the vaudeville world.

Headlining on the bill is the Jeanette Adler Syncopators, twelve charming young ladies who sing and dance as well as they play their musical instruments. Miss Adler's company has appeared in all the larger cities in the country, her local engagement being due to a open week in her bookings. The management considers himself fortunate indeed in securing this as a headline attraction for the all girl vaudeville show. Other acts on the bill include the Ruby Merriman trio, which is another act that have been headlining for years, Hayden and Taylor, present an act consisting mostly of fun and jollery, being responsible for many hearty laughs. The Golden Girls are a couple of harmonists of great "weight" but their melody is indeed pleasing to the ear. Eileen Harvey concludes the stage program with a novelty act called "Queen of the Silver Threads."

The feature screen attraction booked for the occasion, brings to the screen, Carmel Myers in "The Girl From Rio." The story is set in a Spanish background and in the ball room scenes in the picture, the producing company has made the film in actual colors in order to bring out the costumes and scenery effectively.

Showing for the last times today are Bert Lytell and Lois Wilson in the famous crook story by Lonsl Joseph Vance, "Alias the Lone Wolfe," in conjunction with five acts of superior vaudeville.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Olympic Roller Rink

In order to accommodate the large number of people that want to roller skate at the Olympic roller rink on Water street, Manager Hendrick has made arrangements to have the skating surface extended about twenty feet. Thursday the attraction will be "candy spot night" it will be very amusing and boxes of candy will be given away Mr. Hendrick expects to have basketball on skates, polo, racing and carnival novelties during the season. Roller skating has proven very popular in Norwich as this rink is operated in an orderly manner and no objectionable person is allowed on the surface.

Broadway Theatre

"Blondes by Choice," which will be shown for the last times today at the Broadway theatre, is a fast-moving and amusing affair, without a dull spot in its entire six reels. The comedy situations have been expertly worked out by Director Del Ruth and his associates and the result is a diverting and hilarious comedy, played in a tempo that is just right, without a single dull stretch.

The story centers about Bonnie Clinton, small town girl with modern ideas, who opens a beauty shop and shocks the town by bleaching her hair. This gets the whole town talking. They are indignant. But then something happens and every one rushes to the beauty parlor to become a blonde. The events which lead up to this denouement and the results for Bonnie and the rest form the basis of this highly diverting comedy.

The co-feature "Is That Nice" featuring George O'Hara is sparkling throughout with well sustained humor that frequently bursts out into roars of laughter.

The story while essentially a farce on newspapers and political controversies, is nevertheless adroitly written and splendidly acted, and the suspense keeps mounting to the fast and furious climax.

O'Hara, as the cub reporter-hero of the tale, plunges into difficulties at the start, when he seeks to recover the proof sheets of a highly libelous story he has written about the political boss of the town.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Turkeys for Christmas

Turkeys will be lower in price than at Thanksgiving. This announcement from officials of the A. & P. Tea Co., means relief to harrassed pocket books all over New England as the A. & P. is the largest retail dealer in fine meats in the territory.

A ten dollar bill will cover the Christmas dinner for a family of six. This sum will purchase a freshly killed tender young turkey of from 12 to 15 pounds and all of the usual Christmas fixings.

They also stated that the finest fresh killed tender young turkeys are now on the way in large numbers and that the retail price in A. & P. markets will reflect these large shipments. The A. & P. markets sold more than twenty carloads of fine turkeys at Thanksgiving and will have as many more ready for Christmas buyers.

Another factor in keeping the price of turkeys low is the A. & P. policy of supplying its customers with turkeys at the smallest possible margin of profit as a token of thanks for the cordial public support given the 200 A. & P. markets in New England.

Other poultry will also be plentiful and low in price, as the mild fall has been favorable to the production of fine poultry. Geese, ducklings, chicken and fowl are now ready and are of excellent quality.

Those who do not care for poultry will find pork an economical substitute. Pork loins, fresh shoulders and fresh hams are selling at most reasonable prices in years and the quality is equal to the best ever seen in the Boston market. Lamb is also of very fine quality and at a reasonable price.

The "fixings" are all ready—celery, squash, cranberries, apples and oranges are pouring into the markets and are all low in price. Christmas dinner will not be expensive this year—great news for Dad!

Breed Theatre

Belle Bennett, who gained world renown by her portrayal of the mother in "Stella Dallas," gives the greatest performance of her career in "The Lily," Fox Films stirring picturization of David Belasco's stage hit, which heads the double feature bill at the Breed today and Thursday.

From beginning to end, "The Lily," is marked by the genius of Victor Scheriznger, the director. The story is laid in France and Scheriznger caught the atmosphere of that quaint country. The scenes in the abbey occupied by the artist and in the chateau of the count possess all the charm that such structures do in reality.

Ranger, the FBO dog star, makes his appearance in 'Ranger of the North," a stirring picture of gold hunting in the wilds of Canada which is booked as the second attraction on the bill.

The story of "Ranger of the North" is built around a city-bred boy and his dog, who find themselves at a little trading post in the upper reaches of North America, where men are still in the pioneer stage of their development.

The manner in which Ranger serves his master to untold wealth and aids him in winning his beloved is said to be an epic of dog loyalty and devotion.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre.

The Speed Demon starring Kenneth McDonald is a horse race picture. The rescue of Peggy Montgomery by Kenneth McDonald and his mechanic gives the production an opening thrill that is alone worth the price of admission to any fan. The smubbling of the jockey just before the big horse race furnishes moments of thrilling suspense seldom equalled in screen history. All star cast in an all star picture. Faster than lightning—that's The Speed Demon.

Showing at the Strand tonight and Thursday is a picture that is distinctly different in plot than the usual photoplay. Woman's Law, for that is the title of the film, offers dramatic surprises of situation at every turn. The heroine, Lillian Rich, is sought by two suitors, Pat O'Malley and Harold Miller, one of whom is in love with her and the other one holds papers which if turned over to the district attorney would incriminate her father, so she consents to marry the latter, although not in love with him. Thus situation is piled upon situation and the solution, which you must see for yourself is just as logical as the balance of the plot.

A 214 pound goal tender is the position on the team that Rathbun is playing. He has made a name for himself with the cheering section. It takes a good skater to put the puck into the net. He was telling his school pals at Jane Carson's store that his team is to play some of the leading teams in Connecticut. Jerry Downs, the center is the fastest man on a pair of skates in the school and is expected to give any of their opposing teams a hard run this season.

Capt. Rollin Rathbun in his powerboat Chisel on the flats Monday was spearing away at the eels. Cold weather does not bother him. In seven hours of hard work he made a catch of 160 pounds of eels, the most brought in by any eeler this season in one day. Capt. Rathbun is putting them in a car and when he gets enough to fill a sugar barrel he will send it to Fulton market, where eels are bringing a good price.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thompson have returned to Hartford after a short stay in Noank with friends.

Mrs. Joseph Palm of Providence spent Monday with local friends.

Mrs. M. McMullen and daughter Grace of Atlanta, Georgia, are spending a few days with Mrs. H. H. Park.

Noank is to have a community Christmas tree for the first time. The tree is a large cedar on the grounds in front of D. of A. hall, Elm street, and it is to be lighted with over a hundred electric lights, red, white and blue. Liberty Council No. 8, Daughters of America and American Mechanics lodge have planned the tree. It will be illuminated until after New Year's. The choirs of Baptist and Methodist churches will sing and an entertaining program has been arranged by the committee.

JURY MAY BE GIVEN GROTON BOILER EXPLOSION CASE TODAY

The $15,000 damage case brought against the borough of Groton by Maurice O'Donnell, Jr., of New London, may reach the jury today (Wednesday). Trial of the case was started in the superior court in this city last week, and continued at the court session here Tuesday, when the court adjourned at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon until this (Wednesday) morning both plaintiff and defendant had rested.

Mr. O'Donnell, who is proprietor of the Electric Welder Co., of New London, is suing the borough of Groton for injuries received May 21st last as the result of the explosion of a boiler at the plant of the water and electric department of the borough. Mr. O'Donnell had been engaged by Supt. William M. Jacobus of the Groton water and electrical department, to weld plates on the end of an old boiler, at the plant, which was being converted into a tank for the storage of compressed air.

On the afternoon he was injured he was preparing to depart from the plant and while he was picking up his tools and welding apparatus the boiler exploded. Supt. Jacobus was killed and Mr. O'Donnell was injured. Plaintiff claims negligence on the part of the borough of Groton in allowing compressed air to be pumped into the old boiler to a greater pressure than it would withstand.

Albert N. Tiffany, a welder, was called to the stand during the afternoon Tuesday and Bennett Dow was also called. Mr. Dow, whose home address is Fall River, testified that he has worked for several concerns as an electric welder during the last 13 years. He was questioned as to whether he could tell from the appearance of a weld whether it was a good weld or a bad weld and as to the appearance of two pieces of welded metal, if broken at the weld.

The defense rested at 4:30 o'clock and the plaintiff rested at 5 o'clock at which time the court adjourned until this (Wednesday) morning.

JURY TO BE GIVEN LIQUOR CASE TODAY

Leopold Liackavitz, of this city, was placed on trial before Judge Charles B. Waller and a jury in the criminal court of common pleas at New London Tuesday, faces three counts of violation of the liquor law. The case will go to the jury today (Wednesday).

Liackavitz, represented by Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, of Norwich, is charged with having sold liquor to Charles S. Garvin, of Scotland, Harold M. Manis, of New Haven, and Harold Johnson, who are alleged to have secured the evidence at the behest of County Detective William Lewis, who was working on complaints made to the State Attorney Arthur M. Brown's office.

In the local city court, Liackavitz was given a fine of $200 and 10 days in jail, from which judgment he appealed to the court of common pleas. Tuesday he pleaded not guilty to all three counts and elected to be tried by a jury.

Garvin testified that he in company with Manie and Johnson and in Johnson's car arrived at the defendant's store at 26 Sixth street, Greeneville, about 3:45 on the afternoon of Nov. 1.

He said that when they entered the place, Manie, who is sales manager for a concern that manufactures certain sprays for the annihilation of bugs, demonstrated his wares to the accused. Then, he said, the subject of drinks was discussed and three men bought bottles of beer for the party. He said they paid 15 cents a bottle. Then he said each of the three men "set" the party up to hard drinks at 25 cents a drink. Finally, he said, he purchased a pint of hard liquor.

Garvin testified that on the way back to County Detective Lewis' house in New London, no one took any drinks from the pint until they arrived in Georgianna street, New London, when each man took a drink from the bottle before they had seen the county detective. Garvin was given a terrific drilling by Attorney Quinn.

The next witness was Manie, who was under fire from Attorney Quinn at the recess.

Ledyard—James N. Holdridge.

Montville—Raymond Palmer.

Waterford—Milton Mitchell, Reuben Austin, Donald Daboll and John Eggleston.

Old Lyme—Frank J. Howard.

Both state and defense had rested when court adjourned for the day. The arguments will be heard today (Wednesday) after which the case will be given to the jury.

BABSON EXPERT ADDRESSES REAL ESTATE BOARD

John T. Alden, "research expert," from the Babson statistical bureau of Wellesley Hills, Mass., was the guest of honor and speaker at the regular meeting of the Norwich Real Estate board at the Wauregan hotel Tuesday afternoon. Preceding the meeting, a delicious luncheon was served.

Mr. Alden, who is in charge of the industrial survey now under way for the local chamber of commerce, talked very interestingly on the subject of city surveys and furnished considerable interesting and educational material for the members of the board to think over and talk about.

After soliciting the aid of the realtors in the undertaking, for as members of the real estate profession, it is one in which every member is vitally interested, there was much general discussion in which Mr. Alden sought to render information in his power and was assured the aid and assistance of each member of the board for any information which they could render.

Among the many subjects under discussion was the matter of equalization of taxation. This is a matter in which every realtor finds many cases of widely varying tax values. Sites for power, sites for factories and housing propositions were submitted and even the early history of the city was taken up. Mr. Alden proved to be a highly interesting talker and stated that Norwich, being one of the oldest cities on which he has been working, he felt that he would, without doubt run up against many odd and curious situations.

STATES ATT'Y BROWN TALKS ON CRIME AND CRIMINALS

Hon. Arthur B. Brown, states attorney for New London county, gave an especially interesting and instructive addres to the more than 100 members of the Arcanum club at their "club night" held Tuesday evening in the club house on Websters Heights, off Main street. At 6:30 o'clock a delicious supper, which was prepared by Chef Blanchard, was served, the menu being as follows:

Blue Point Oyster Cocktail
Roast Pork Mashed Potato
Brown Gravy
Arcanum Club Dressing Rolls
Pickles Coffee
Cigars

Following the banquet Earle E. Styers pleasingly rendered two solos, Tatters by Wilson and Always by Berling, his accompanist on the piano being C. E. Fitch. Tyler D. Guy, president of the club, was toastmaster and with fitting remarks introduced the speaker of the evening, Hon. Arthur M. Brown.

He spoke in part as follows:

The American Bar association appointed a committee to investigate crime. It has been shown that crime has been rampant, especially in the larger cities. Some people have taken the law in their own hands, which is dangerous, as evidenced by signs of trespassing erected by farmers. A South Georgia farmer erected a sign and instead of following the usual procedure he had printed on his sign words to this effect: "Property guarded by two mean dogs; also shot gun, which is not loaded with sofa pillows."

Under our constitution and laws in relation to prosecution of criminals it surrounds the criminal with a wall of protection. A city gangster is arrested for a crime and immediately is bailed out, the money being produced by the gang to which he belongs or individuals. They go out and never come back. In New London county there are very few cases of this kind, that is men who make crime a profession. Men who make crime a business should not be shown mercy.

Men who have been arrested and brought before court are entitled to bail according to the constitution. In criminal cases of theft, larceny, etc., the burden of proof lies with the state and the accused does not have to testify unless he so wishes. The state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the man is guilty. No confession can be used in evidence unless the accused has been warned.

In an article by Simeon E. Baldwin, he says that there is unwisdom of allowing accused to close his mouth and say nothing in court. A person charged with crime should be brought before a magistrate and his statements concerning the crime used against him in the court trial. Mr. Baldwin advocated this 44 years ago. In a court trial, Mr. Brown, said, that the jurors can mingle with their families unless in a murder case.

The reputation of a man arrested for crime can not be used against him. His reputation can not be brought into the evidence. In the prosecution of a criminal case the state's attorney is up against it, more than the average layman knows. The accused must be found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of innocence. In an infamous crime, like murder, he must be indicted by peers.

There should be more justice between employer and employe, between races, and between the different countries. Juvenile law is a failure. Nothing can be done with the boy under 16 years of age. He commits a crime and can not even be arrested by an officer in uniform. He can not be tried under law in the ordinary court room. There are many vicious criminals under that age.

Thousands of notes of sympathy and condolence and flowers were received by Gerald Chapman in the Connecticut state prison. The majority of them were sent by women. This ought to be done away with.

Any human being is bound to make mistakes. The basic laws in regard to criminal prosecution should be changed. At the time the laws were made, they were all right. Some restrictions surrounding the criminal should be removed.

Following Mr. Brown's address, Santa Claus, impersonated by Arthur C. Brown, made his appearance, bringing appropriate gifts for all present. A rising vote of thanks was then given State's Attorney Brown, Mr. Styers and others.

The committee in charge comprised Major Charles A. Hagberg, Wilbur S. Williams and George F. Blood.

HUSBAND SUES WIFE ON DESERTION GROUNDS

Samuel A. Siller of New London has brought suit for divorce in the superior court from Bessie Dolick Siller of Bridgeport on grounds of desertion. They were married June 13, 1910 and desertion is alleged since 1913.

COURT ALLOWS TWO COMMON CLAIMS AGAINST P. SCHWARTZ CO.

The claims against The P. Schwartz Co., of New London which is in a receiver's hands, are allowed as common claims against the receivership of the defendant company, by Judge John Rufus Booth of the superior court in decisions filed with the clerk of the court of this city.

The claims allowed are those of Emanuel Fine of New York city and the Philadelphia Finance Co., of Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Fine's claim is for $2,250 and the finance company's claim is for $1,787.

Both claimants filed application for the allowance of their claims which were disallowed by order of the court on November 18th. With regard to Mr. Fine's claim Judge Booth states in his finding that the court finds that the claim disallowed in the amount of $2,250 should be allowed as a common claim against the receivership of the defendant corporation. A similar decision was rendered on the application of the Philadelphia Finance Co.

SEVEN DIVERS, WORKING IN RELAYS, ARE ENDEAVORING TO RESCUE THE SIX MEN IMPRISONED IN THE ILL-FATED S-4

At 9:30 O'Clock Last Night Seven Divers Had Been Down to the Wreck in Efforts to Lead an Air Hose to the Prison Chamber—Naval Officers Are Working With a Will to Ascertain the Condition of the Victims and Save Them if Possible—There is Admittedly Slight Hope That the Imprisoned Men Are Alive.

AIR BEING PUMPED INTO TORPEDO ROOM OF S-4

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Brumby, in charge of rescue work at the S-4 disaster, advised the navy department tonight that air was being pumped into the torpedo room of the submarine in which six men were imprisoned.

The admiral's message said Divers Wilson and Eliberg had made an air hose connection with the listening device valve leading to the torpedo room and that in his opinion "there is no reasonable doubt that air began going into the torpedo room about 10 o'clock."

As soon as the connection was made the pressure in the torpedo room was pumped up to four pounds and then vented, or slacked down, the message said, adding that the artificial breathing, pouring in fresh air and withdrawing the carbon dioxide thrown off from the lungs of the imprisoned men, would be continued.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN THE RESCUE WORK

Diver "Tug" Wilson and Joseph Eliben were lowered together to the submarine at 8 o'clock and an hour later had attached a hose line to the S-C tube, or listening device, after taking off the cap. The air was then turned on at 150 pounds pressure for two minutes and then allowed to return. At first the pressure of the returning air was two pounds and later four pounds. This process was repeated many times.

At 10.30 the divers came up and at 11.45 Diver Thomas Eadie went down and fastened another hose to the other end of the tube, doubling the intake of air.

After Eadie had completed this work, he began a survey of the bow of the submarine to determine the difficulty of raising it.

An odor of rancid oil was detected in the returning air from the torpedo room. Naval men on board the mine sweeper Falcon base for diving operations, gave no explanation for this.

Samples of the air coming out were taken for analysis. Those in charge of rescue work said they had not decided as to their procedure after it had been determined definitely whether or not life remained on board the wrecked vessel.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Divers, working in relays tonight frantically pressed efforts to rescue the six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4. At 9:30 o'clock seven divers had been down to the wreck in efforts to lead an air hose to the prison chamber.

While hope was admittedly slight that a spark of life still lingered in the men immured in the dark and silent hull since last Saturday afternoon, naval officers directing rescue work strove to determine the condition of the victims and save them if possible.

As diver after diver went down in the work of attaching an air line to the torpedo room, Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, directing the operations, said: "We are doing as hard and as fast as we can. Things have not progressed to such an extent that we can make any determination as to results, however."

The plan of rescue work as outlined by Commander Edward Eliberg, in charge of diving work, offered alternative courses.

Method of the Divers.

First, the divers will attach an air line to the S-C tube, or listening tube of the submarine. If the men inside had adjusted their listening device, air will be blown in through this line in an effort to revive the unconscious victims, if the valve inside is closed, however, the air cannot be sent in.

The method then will be to drill a hole in the torpedo room hatch with a compressed air drill, and then attach the air line. In either event, should the six men or any of them revive, hot soup will be poured through the air hose.

After a day wasted so far as rescue work was concerned by the fact that recent gales had broken a buoy line and caused the submarine "to be lost," actual rescue work began after 3 o'clock, when Diver D. M. Bird went down to the submarine after it had been located by grappling.

"I'm on the submarine," the diver shouted through his telephone.

Commander Eliberg, at the other end of the telephone, shouted out the news and the officers and men of the mine sweeper Falcon, base of diving operations, crowded around excitedly.

Bird came down on the conning tower of the S-4 and was able to make his way forward to the gun. He had taken down with him a 1,000 candle power underwater flood light, and when this failed after 40 minutes, another was sent to him. A second lengthening line was lowered and this the diver fastened to the rail at the gun. Bird emerged after an hour and 10 minutes.

He was followed by Diver W. J. Carr, who had been lowered to the wreck last Sunday. Carr took the line forward on the S-4 and fastened it at the torpedo room hatch. This diver removed the wooden covers from the hatch and came up at 7:35 p. m.

After him Divers R. C. (Tug) Wilson and Joseph Eliben went down together to start the work of attaching the air line to the listening apparatus.

This plan involved stripping the rubber insulation from a small brass tube on the submarine.

After the tube had been cut off, it was to be plugged with wood to prevent too much water creeping through. Then one diver was to remove the plug while the other pushed on the rubber hose over the brass end. Commander Eilsbergh said very little water would be admitted during these operations.

The hitch in this method, the commander said, arose from the possibility that the men in the torpedo room had failed to adjust their listening apparatus. If the check valve is closed, air cannot be forced in.

An Alternative Plan.

For the alternative plan—an air line by means of the torpedo room hatch cover, the work of two divers for about two hours will be required. A compressed air drill will be used to bore through the hatch, and this hole will be plugged until an air line with a threaded coupling at the end is ready to screw into the opening.

Commander Eilsberg said he had 18 experienced divers on board the Falcon. Seven of these had been down at 9:30 o'clock, leaving 11 still available for service through the night. "Tug" Wilson was practicing with the compressed air drill on deck during the evening, preparing for his second tour of duty. Officers on the Falcon said the work was progressing on the theory that the men below, if still alive, were too weak to tap on the hull, but that the air sent down from above might revive them sufficiently to enable them to signal.

Commander Eilsberg said that if it is demonstrated that there is life on board the S-4, divers will at once survey the bow of the submarine, which is deeply imbedded in mud. The work of placing chains under the vessel and raising it by the bow will be hurried along. The officer admitted that the likelihood that any of the men were alive was very slight but declared this fact must not interfere with rescue efforts.

"If we had had the boat in Provincetown harbor we would have had her up long ago but the weather beat us," he said.

Divers Report Temperature 51.

The divers reported a temperature of 51 degrees at the bottom. Mud conditions were bad, they said, the ooze reaching to their knees. Bird said night diving conditions with the flood lights were better than the daylight conditions. Today visibility was only five feet at the bottom while tonight it was given as 12 feet.

As soon as the Falcon got into position above the S-4 she began oscillator signals, but received no response from below. While Bird was down at the wreck the oscillator recorded five taps, but it was learned later that the diver had made these sounds while attempting to signal the men in the torpedo room.

The airplane tender Wright arrived at the scene tonight with four pontoons, two of 30 tons and two of 60 tons lifting capacity. With the five previously sent here, there are now nine pontoons available for lifting operations.

FIRST RELIC OF SUNKEN SUB S-4 PICKED UP

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 21—(AP)—The first relic of the sunken submarine S-4 has come to the surface. Today a Provincetown fisherman, cruising in the vicinity of the spot where the submarine went down, picked up a chief petty officer's vest marked with the name "G. C. Fit——". The garment was bought at the officers' uniform navy supply depot at South Brooklyn, N. Y., on September 24, 1925.

TRAGEDY OF THE S-4 WAS RE-ENACTED IN L. I. SOUND

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 21—(AP)—Four officers and 43 men re-enacted the opening chapter of the tragedy of the submarine S-4 today, when they took the ill-fated vessel's companion ship, the S-19, into Long Island sound for a practice run.

After running for a time on the surface, the S-19, submerged as did the S-4 on its fatal voyage. When the vessel returned toward the surface and reached the stage at which the S-4 was gouged and sent to the bottom by the prow of the destroyer Paulding, not a trace of emotion appeared upon the face of any man, and the S-19 came up safely.

The announced purpose of the run was to test the nerve and courage of the crew. Scarce a man of them had not lost a friend in the S-4 disaster, and Lieut. Alexander Edwards of Newport, R. I., one of the four officers, had slipped from the teeth of disaster in the waters of Cape Cod, when the submarine in which he took his post today was beached on the cape January 13, 1925.

Lieut. Chauncey Cruthers of Logansport, W. Va., was in command in the control room today. The other two officers were Lieut. W. L. Ware of Sewanee, Tenn., and Lieut. R. H. G. Johnson of Lynchburg, Va.

SEVEN MINERS KILLED BY A GAS EXPLOSION

JOHNSTON CITY, Ills., Dec. 21—(AP)—Six miners' families faced a desolate Christmas when seven bodies were taken from the Consrave-Meehan coal mine at Stiritz near here following what was believed to be a gas explosion late last night. An inquest over the deaths will be held here tomorrow afternoon, to determine the cause of the explosion.

The dead are: Frederick Kagle, Scotsboro, loader; David Anderson, Johnston City, loader; Almus Lavender, Marion, motorman; George Grubbs, White Ash, loader; G. Garotto, Stiritz, loader; Charles Wyatt, Marion, loader and William Jones, Marion, loader. All are married except Garotto.

The mine is situated about two miles from Johnston City. Twenty-three men composing the remainder of the night crew were able to make their escape after the explosion, but the other seven were found dead in one of the north entries. They apparently met death instantly according to members of the rescue teams which brought them to the surface. Mine rescue teams from Benton, Herin and Dewmain found three of the bodies at 2a. m. today but were forced to cut through coal and debris to locate the others which were take nout this afternoon.

The only theory of the explosion offered was that gas was ignited by sparks from the trolley of one of the mine cars.

BODIES OF PRESIDENT AND MRS. HARDING LAID TO REST

MARION, Ohio, Dec. 21—(AP)—A military salute rang out over Marion cemetery today as the bodies of Warren G. Harding and his wife were lowered to their last place of rest within the half million dollar memorial erected in tribute to the nation's 29th president.

Only a small group of friends and relatives, in addition to a detachment of 30 infantry soldiers, witnessed the brief and unpretentious services which concluded the ceremony of removing the bodies from their temporary vault in Marion cemetery where they had laid three years.

The occasion marked the realization of a plan which had its inception three years ago. Persons closely associated with the late president during his life time desired to erect a memorial in his memory, through public contribution.

The memorial, overlooking Marion cemetery, was banked with floral tributes. The ritual of the Baptist church, with which the Hardings were affiliated, was read; a three volley military salute was fired and taps concluded the rites.

Messages expressing regret at being unable to attend the services today were received from many prominent in public life, including President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes and Governor Vic Donahey.

Formal ceremonies are to be held in June when President Coolidge will probably deliver the principal address.

NEW POLICY FOR CONTROL OF MISSISSIPPI FLOODS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—A new national governmental policy for the controlling of floods on the Mississippi river and other navigable streams of the country was placed before congress today in two bills.

One measure by Chairman Reid, of the house flood control committee embodied many of the views of the opponents of the Mississippi flood plan proposed by the administration. It would lay upon the federal government the entire responsibility and cost for solving the stream's flood problem. A program for the control by the government of other waterways where destructive inundations are threatened also was mapped out.

Another bill, introduced by Senator Ransdell, democrat, Louisiana, also proposed that the entire cost be borne by the government. It proposed an appropriation of $407,500,000 for a Mississippi project to be expended at an annual rate of $60,000,000.

In both measures the Mississippi river commission was designated to carry out the work. The Reid bill proposed an increase in the membership of the commission, placing more civilians on it with the objective of securing appointment to it of distinguished engineers of national reputation.

WATERBURY MAN SLAIN WHILE BENT ON MURDER

WATERBURY, Dec. 21—(AP)—Michael Andriaccio, 31, of 322 Fairlawn avenue, went to Stoffe inn on the Bethany road early yesterday morning armed with a double barreled shotgun and accompanied by another man, armed with a .44 caliber revolver, with the intention of killing Alexander Mozzone, also known as Di Nicolo, part owner of the inn, a coroner's inquest revealed today.

After he and his companion had thoroughly scared three men and one woman they found in the downstairs apartment, Andriaccio went upstairs to the bedroom occupied by Mozzone. Throwing open the door, Andriaccio hesitated about entering and instead discharged his shotgun into the room toward the general direction of Mozzone, whom he could not see in the darkness.

Mozzone, however, could clearly see Andriaccio standing in the door way and shot him in the throat with a single barreled shotgun. Andriaccio was almost instantly killed and rolled downstairs. His companion, who had discharged the .44 calibre revolver once since entering the house, then fled from the house and escaped in his machine.

Slayer Hickman in Hiding in Los Angeles

Police Hit Trail That Indicted That the Youth Has Not Slipped Through the Cordon.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21—(AP)—New hopes that William Edward Hickman, accused kidnaper and slayer of Marian Parker, would be captured in the vicinity of Los Angeles were raised today as police picked up a trail that indicated the youth had not slipped through the cordon drawn about the metropolitan area by thousands of officers.

Meanwhile evidence was uncovered strengthening the belief of some investigators that Hickman had one or more accomplices in carrying out the abduction and killing of the school girl. Chief of Detectives Herman Cline, however, declared he was convinced that Hickman acted alone.

The finding of a blue Cadillac coupe, in which a youth answering the description of Hickman was seen early yesterday and again last night, furnished the lead on which police combed the city with renewed vigor.

A check of fingerprints on the car, which was located on West Sixth street late this morning, was relied upon to establish definitely whether the hunted youth was the driver who escaped before dawn yesterday after a chase that led almost to the central police station and again last night was involved in a wreck.

Jack Woods, filling station attendant, who pursued the car yesterday after its occupant had obtained five gallons of gasoline and sped away without making payment, identified a photograph of Hickman.

The car appeared last night on the south side, crashing into another machine at Vernon and Main streets. The motorist who reported the collision to the police said the man in the Cadillac resembled pictures of Hickman. The name of the motorist was withheld. Police said he related that the blue coupe backed away quickly, turned and disappeared after the crash.

Edward S. Scheller, owner of the Cadillac, reported it was stolen not far from Woods' filling station. Wood pursued the car early yesterday but was outdistanced as the chase neared the central police station. It was not until later that Wood connected the incident with the search for the killer.

While the man hunt centered in Los Angeles, the guard along the Mexican border was strengthened on the possibility that the man might attempt to escape from the United States. Authorities of the northern district of lower California deputized 150 men to patrol the international boundary from the Colorado river to the Pacific ocean. On the Mexican side patrols also were increased.

A story told to the police by a man and his wife, who live at the Bellerue Arms apartments, where Hickman made his headquarters under the name of Donald Evans, lent some color to the theory that the accused youth had assistance in plotting the kidnaping and disposing of the dismembered body of the child.

The couple reported seeing Hickman and another man carrying packages to the stolen Chrysler automobile in which the slayer delivered the child's torso to her father, Perry M. Parker, bank official, in exchange for $1,500 ransom last Saturday night.

The packages and a suit case were taken from Hickman's quarters about two hours before the kidnaper met Parker, according to the story.

CHARGES OF INTIMIDATING WITNESSES IN THE OIL CASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Additional charges that government prosecutors had threatened and intimidated witnesses to compel them to testify for the government in the criminal contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their associates were hurled at the district attorney's office today by Edward J. Kidwell Jr., of the oil trial jury.

Charles A. Douglas, counsel for Burns, his son and C. L. Vetsch, informed Justice Frederick L. Siddons, just before court recessed tht he was prepared to put witnesses on the stand to prove his charge of intimidation and coercion on the part of the prosecutors. He was joined immediately by counsel for Henry Mason Day and Sheldon Clark. The first allegation of the sort of which the court took notice was made by Sinclair's counsel, George P. Hoover yesterday. The younger Burns, Veitsch, Day and Clark are defendants in the contempt action.

Whether inestigation of the defense charges again he prosecuors would continue to replace the contempt hearing was left for a decision by Justice Siddons. It is expected tomorrow.

For Flood Relief to Replace Roads Aid

New England Congressional Delegation Conferred as to Offering Such a Bill Before Congress.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—The New England delegation met today to confer as to offering a bill before congress for flood relief for replacement of federal and state roads.

Vermont will put in a bill of its own, besides cooperating with general aid bill. Connecticut members expressed themselves against such aid for that state on the ground that all states would thereafter put in claims, Tilson adding that only in great emergency should federal aid be asked for state work. Some members of the New England delegation agreed with Tilson, others joining Moses of New Hampshire and Rogers of Massachusetts in the stand that as certain roads were federal and in many instances towns were utterly unable to do their own restoration work, federal aid for such roads was perfectly proper, as it is in the devastated sections of the southwest.

No decision was reached but a committee of one from each of the New England states was named to consider the matter, consisting of Moses, New Hampshire chairman, Tilson, Connecticut; Gibson, Vermont; Hersey, Maine; Rogers, Massachusetts; Metcalf, Rhode Island. This committee will prepare a bill or decide what action is best.

Vermont is permitted by the committee not only to join in a general bill, but to introduce separate measures, as the damage to that state is so heavy that it is recognized it stands in a class of its own. Members from Vermont stated its damage exceeded three million for highway damage, alone.

COMMITTEE DIVIDED AT MAGRUDER HEARING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)— The uestion whether Rear Admiral Thomas question whether Rear Admiral Thomas was responsible for extravagance and over-organization and waste in naval administration developed today to be a tinder box at a house naval committee hearing.

In the admiral's presence several committee members engaged in a short but heated airing of their personal opinions on what he had told them.

Magruder, who was deposed as commander of the Philadelphia navy yard after publishing his accusations, had offered to leave the room, but the members did not wait for that and the sea fighter, who was cited for bravery in the Spanish-American war, had to sit still and listen without being able to fire a rocket gun in his own defense.

Acting Chairman Britten, of Illinois, started the warfare by declaring that Magruder in five days had not given the committee a constructive suggestion.

"I do not agee with that," interrupted representative McClintic, democrat, Oklahoma. "You and only one or two other members have had a chance t question him."

Representative Andrew, republican, Massachusetts, agreed with McClintic, declaring he did not think Britten's statement should go out in the press.

WILL TAKE OFF TODAY ON ENDURANCE FLIGHT

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 21—(AP)—Bert Acost, pilot of the "America" on its trans-Atlantic flight, announced tonight that with Emil Burgin he would take off tomorrow, in an attempt to set his second flight duration record.

Flying a Fokker Universal monoplane, Acosta and Burgin plan to take off from Roosevelt field mounted about 9 a. m., hoping to remain aloft, 58 to 60 hours.

The present record of 52 hours and 23 minutes, established by two German flies, Cornelius Edzard and Johann Ristics, supplanted the record of 51 hours, 11 minutes and 25 second set in April 14 last by Acosta and Clarence Chamberlin, pilot of the trans-Atlantic plane "Columbia."

LINDBERGH THE IDEAL OF MEXICAN BOY SCOUTS

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 21—(AP)—Mexican Boy Scouts adopting Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh as their ideal of youth and manhood, have conferred upon him their three highest decorations—Knight of the Order of the Lion, Knight of the Order of the Eagle and Knight of the Order of the Tiger.

The little ceremony at the American embasy, in which these honors were bestowed, pleased Lindbergh to whom the developments of aviation are very dear objects.

CONVERSION OF ITALY'S CURRENCY TO GOLD BASIS HAS BEEN DECIDED UPON

ROME, Dec. 21—(AP)—Conversion of Italy's currency to a gold basis at a ratio of ninteen lire to the dollar has been decided upon. Count Guiseppe Volpi, minister of finance, announced completion of negotiations before the council of ministers this evening.

The negotiations took place in London and were participated in by Benjamin Strong, president of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, Donaldo Stringher, director-general of the Bank of Italy, Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and "a group of Anglo-American bankers, among whom were the oldest and most important correspondents of the Italian treasury."

The council, presided over by Premier Mussolini, decided that the decree putting Italian currency on a gold basis would be published tonight and be immediately applicable. Under the decree one gold lira will be worth 3.60 paper lire.

The decree is the culmination of an objective indicated by Il Duce in his famous speech at Pesaro over a year ago in which he called for "a battle for the revaluation of the lire."

Shortly before this speech the lira stood at 21 to the dollar and 160 to the pound sterling. At that time Mussolini announced the firm intention of the government to "put an end to the abnormal financial situation due to unjustified depreciation of Italian currency brought about by unscrupulous speculators and by political opponents who did not hesitate to damage the country's credit in order to combat Mussolini."

From the day of the speech the lira began to rise, its ascent being so rapid as to cause alarm, especially in the Italian industrial world owing to the increase in wages involved, decreased payments from abroad and the stagnation of exportation.

The government, in order to reassure commercial and industrial centers, was obliged to issue a declaration that the lira would for a long time remain stationary at 18 to the dollar and 90 to the pound. Meanwhile Mussolini did not abandon his idea of continuing his battle for revalorization of the lira.

The decision taken today means that the Italian treasury has succeeded in gathering a sufficient gold reserve to face the situation. This is considered not only a most important step in the financial life of the country but also a political master stroke since it will have an important influence in raising the credit of Italy abroad, not only in the world's money market but in the comity of powers.

BRITAIN PLANS MOVEMENT FOR PEACE IN INDUSTRY

Big Business Men and Employers Are to Confer With Trades Union Leaders Early in the New Year—The Purpose is to Establish a Program of Industrial Cooperation as a Substitute For Prevailing Strife and Warfare—It is Hoped to Create a New Standard of Production and a Better Standard of Living For the Workers—If Object is Attained Militant Unionism Will Become a Thing of the Past.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The proposed conference of British big business men and employers with the trades union leaders early in the new year for the purpose of bringing about "peace in industry" is the main subject of conversation in the lobbies of parliament and in the industrial and commercial circles of the country. The invitation originally extended to the council of the trades union congress for such a conference was accepted yesterday, and interest was immediately aroused particularly among the labor people as to what the capitalists intended to offer the trades unions.

The United States government's official observers of British industrial and economic tendencies consider this get-together movement between employers and employes as one of the most significant developments of the year, one, which if successful, heralds a new era of prosperity in this country.

"America's example of industrial cooperation, with the development of partnership between employers and the workers has had a profound influence in Great Britain," said one of these American officials to the Associated Press correspondent today. "To American employers the low productivity of British workers is one of the most striking aspects of British economic life. One of the reasons for low productivity is deep-seated antagonism between employers and workers. One of the reasons why the trades unions control output is that the workers do not share in the benefits of increased production, as American workers do."

Great Britain's "peace in industry" campaign emerged from the talking stage yesterday when the general council of the trades union congress agreed to the suggestion of Sir Alfred Mon, heading a group of big employers, to take part in a discussion for the purpose of ascertaining whether a program of industrial co-operation could not be formulated and substituted for continuous strife and warfare, which has characterized the relations between British employers and employes for a quarter of a century, culminating in the disastrous general strike of 1926 from which the country is just recovering.

From 1900 to 1925 strikes and lockouts caused Great Britain the loss of 327,000,000 working days; then in 1926 the general strike added another 160,000,000. The year 1927 with the loss of only 1,000,000 constitutes a new low record for the century.

The scope of Sir Alfred Mond's proposals may involve complete reorganization of British industry and an entire new relationship of the trades unions with the employers, with the object of achieving a new standard of production and a better standard of living for the workers.

Thus far the only serious opposition which has developed to the peace in industry movement has come from A. J. Cook, secretary of the miners federation—"Emperor Cook of the general strike"—who, with the failure of his recent unemployed miners' march on London to influence the British government's attitude toward th mining industry is convinced that militant unionism will be hoisting the white flag of unconditional surrender if the trade union leaders pledge peace with the employers.

Mr. Cook maintains that there will be nothing but disappointment for the workers and disillusionment for the public. His view is not shared generally by laborites. The trades union congress has named a strong committee of influential laborites like J. H. Thomas and Ben Turner, to act with the industrialists in considering the most suitable subject for discussion and to arrange for the conference.

A vulnerable point in the scheme is that the employers will meet the laborites only as individuals, not as representatives of responsible employers' organiaztions. One of the laborites' first demands will probably be that the employers formulate an organization to enforce any agreement reached.

The industrial interests whom Sir Alfred Mond has enrolled in his peace movement are the biggest employers in the country. They represent a capital of 1,000,000,000 pounds and cover the whole field of steel, coal, transport, chemicals, engineering, shipping, textiles and milling.

"I regard the acceptance of our invitation by the trades union congress," said Sir Alfred today, "as a most happy and important augury for the welfare of industry and the country during the coming year."

CROSSES AWARDED THE GOOD WILL AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Veterans of the Pan American good will mail air journey received their earned rewards for that 20,000 mile air journey today when distinguished flying crosses and the McKay trophy were presented to the eight survivors of the group of ten army pilots who set out from Texas just a year ago.

At the same time honors were paid to the great Amphibian planes which made the long air trek when the "San Francisco" was committed to the custody of the Smithsonian institution to become a part of its permanent exhibition of historic American aircraft.

All the fliers were present at a luncheon in their honor given by Air Secretary Davison of the war department in the Pan American Union building. Among the guests were diplomats of all the nations whose territory was traversed by the winged messengers of good will. Secretary Kellogg and other cabinet officers also attended what amounted to a celebration of this new epoch in Pan American communications.

"The hazardous naure of this uncharted flight would alone have justified the award," Secretary Davis of the war department said in presenting the flying crosses and the MacKay trophy, an award for furthering aeronautics, to Major Herbert A. Darque and his fellow officers. "The skill, courage and ability shown by these fliers reinforced the judgment of the awarding committee.

"But above all these considerations the flight was of outstanding importance because of the fact that it carried a message of good will from the United States to 21 Latin American countries which returned to us similar expressions of cordiality and amity."

In addition to Major Darque the officers honored today were Captains Arthur B. McDaniel and Ira C. Baker and Lieutenants Ennis C. Whitehead, Charles Mck. Robinson, Muir S. Fairchild, Bernard S. Thompson, and Leonard D. Waddington. The decorations for the two comrades who lost their lives in a crash at Buenos Aires, Captain Woolsey and Lieutenant Benton, go to their widows.

MRS. LINDBERGH HAS ARRIVED AT MEX. BORDER

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh arrived here by air at 5.02 o'clock this afternoon and prepared to cross the international border in her flight to Mexico City to spend Christmas with her son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The big tri-motored monoplane carrying Mrs. Lindbergh as a passenger, covered approximately 715 miles after taking off from Tulsa, Okla., this morning. It was the third day in the air for the mother of the "Lone Eagle" since she left Detroit.

In entering the land which is fetting his son for his non-stop flight from Washington to the Mexican capital and his conquest of the Atlantic ocean, Mrs. Lindbergh will fly down the gulf coast to Tampico, the route taken by Col. Lindbergh. From Tampico the Mexican capital is a flight of several hours inland.

With her arrival at this border town, Mrs. Lindbergh had completed approximately three-fourths of her journey.

TWO NEW COURT ORDERS IN OKLAHOMA CONTROVERSY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Two new court orders tonight lent assistance to the efforts of Gov. Henry S. Johnston to send members of the legislature besieging his administration back to their homes for Christmas.

Apparently convinced that the self-called impeachment session will make no efforts in the immediate future to meet at the capitol, Adjutant General Barrett tonight had withdrawn the last of three units of National Guardsmen called out ten days ago to prevent the house of representatives from meeting in its chamber and receiving impeachment charges.

Both court orders throwing further impediments in the path of the impeachment session were injunctions. A permanent injunction issued by District Judge T. G. Chambers bars the house members from attempting to function further as a legally convened group, from continuing their investigations of state officers, from preparing any more impeachment charges and from filing new charges with the "pretended court of impeachment." The second injunction, a temporary order issued by District Judge Sam Hooker forbids members to draw pay for their activities in the session.

Insurgent house leaders today showed no disposition to violate the injunctions, although they had ignored the temporary order issued by Judge Chambers when they voted and filed impeachment charges against Gov. Johnston, Chief Justice Fred P. Branson of the state supreme court, and Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture.

NO MEXICAN DOCUMENTS SOLD TO THE STATE DEPT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Denial today by the state department of charges that Miguel Avila, procuror of the Mexican documents published in Hearst papers, had ever sold documents to it or to the American embassy in Mexico City so far as is known here added to the maze of conflicting stories confronting the senate's investigation of the papers as the inquiry itself faced further delay.

The state department denial followed statements to the investigating committee yesterday by Robert H. Murray, former New York World correspondent in Mexico City, that he understood Avila had peddled so-called Mexican documents to the American embassy in Mexico. He also testified that Avila had told him he attempted to sell a document "made up" by Joseph W. DeCourcy, former correspondent for the New York Times in Mexico City.

RAIDS BY PROHIBITION AGENTS IN NAUGATUCK

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Dec. 21—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents raided four establishments on Rubber avenue here today and seized samples of beverages in each place alleged to contain more than the legal alcoholic content. One proprietor, Michael Serbonowsky, was arrested by the local police who aided the federal men in the raid and is now at liberty under $500 bonds pending trial in the borough court tomorrow. The other three, Frank Sparrow, Edward Chautteneau and Julius Swartski were notified to appear before the U. S. commissioner in New Haven tomorrow. All were charged with violation of the liquor law.

DANIELSON

AGED ELMVILLE RESIDENT PASSED AWAY IN 94TH YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 21—Death claimed Jeremiah Bourgeois at his home in Elmville this morning. His passing brings an end to a life that had extended over 94 years. He was one of the oldest residents of the town.

Mr. Bourgeois, for years resident in Danielson, on the West Side, was a picturesque character. A native of Canada, he inherited the rugged strength of the old-time Canadians and in his prime was one of the most powerful of men. Indeed, he retained exceptional strength until very late in life and until very recently was so active in getting about and doing what he wanted to do that one found it hard to believe that he was close on a century old.

For a long time Mr. Bourgeois was a mill employe here. He has been retired for a long term of years, and sometime prior to making his home in Elmville had lived in Attawaugan. He is survived by eight children.

A. B. SIMMONS RE-ELECTED HEAD OF KILLINGLY T. D. SOCIETY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 21—One of Killingly's oldest organizations, the Killingly Theft Detecting society, held its annual meeting this afternoon in the offices of the board of assessors in the town hall building to hear annual reports and to elect officers for the ensuing year. This organization, though not active for years, keeps alive and holds at least one meeting a year to transact necessary business, including the election of officers. In days of yore, it took active part in the pursuit of thieves—some times horse thieves—and assisted duly elected officers of the law with its men and money in seeking out criminals and recovering stolen property. It still stands ready to do those things, but greater police protection in these later days hardly ever makes it necessary. Bernard Simmons of Baltoowille was re-elected pres' nt at this afternoon's meeting and the other officers and appointees are much the same for 1928 as during the current year.

The complete list of officers elected today is as follows: President, A. B. Simmons; vice president, Robert Smith; secretary and treasurer, John Z. LaBelle; executive committee, A. Putnam Woodward, Louis S. Barstow, A. W. Aldrich, Charles E. Aver, Martin Fitzsimmons, Robert Smith, Charles Young, Jr., John S. Chase; auditors, A. P. Woodward, Hiram S. Franklin and L. S. Barstow; collectors, A. W. Aldrich, east district, A. P. Woodward, south district, Eugene Rickey, north district; pursuers, A. W. Aldrich, Charles Smith, Charles Young, Jr., Ray Whipple, W. Dyke Gogswell, Charles E. Aver, Fred C. Bellows, John Z. LaBelle, John S. Chase, Louis S. Barstow, Martin Fitzsimmons and Hiram S. Franklin.

It appears to be generally agreed that the great majority of Christmas observances in Danielson this year will be on Christmas day, and not on Monday, the 26th, which will be a holiday. The churches will naturally hold their Christmas services on Sunday, and in the majority of homes the Christmas feasts will be on that day. Under this arrangement Monday becomes a sort of free day, an aftermath of Christmas that may be devoted to such diversions, or lack of them, as may happe to interest a person.

At this time when another grand list of taxable property in the town of Killingly is being completed there arises again the matter of claims for exemption. In numbers of instances these claims come from World war veterans, in others from Spanish war veterans. In numbers of instances these exemptions cannot be allowed, and for the reason that those who claim them have not complied with the regulation requiring that their discharges from the service must be recorded with the town clerk. This has been repeatedly given publicity, but it is found now that there are still those who have not done so. Veterans who have not as yet had their discharges recorded may do so and get their exemption on the 1928 tax list. By doing so they can also get corrections on their tax lists for three years back. It is a matter that should be given early attention, for the assessors having nearly completed their work, and the board of relief will begin its sessions with the opening of February.

As the end of 1927 draws near, those who look back upon it and compare it with scores of like communities in textile New England find that Killingly has been exceptionally fortunate. Its manufacturing concerns have been consistently busy, though there has been no great margin of profit for some of them, and the year has brought the development of Powdrell and Alexander's activities to the point where they are now operating five mills, including those owned for more than half a century by the Attawaugan company. Bank statements covering the year to be made at the end of next week will show very considerable increases in resources, including savings accounts. If Killingly never experiences a worse year than 1927, it will indede be fortunate, so it has a great deal to be joyous about this Christmas season and high hope for a happy New Year.

The current issue of The LaSalette Missionary, a monthly publication of the missionary order of that name, which is in charge of St. James' parish in Danielson, has an article dealing with post-flood conditions in Louisiana, to which state and the parishes thereof some of the members of the order who have served here were later assigned, among them Rev. Victor Faure, M. S., who served four years in the French army during the World war.

At Bayou Chene the LaSalette fathers have a little chapel which is now in course of repair after being badly damaged by the flooding of the Mississippi last spring. In this section families were driven from their homes by the surge of waters, and lost everything. Their only crop this year was sweet potatoes, and they have only enough to keep them alive. The Red Cross is credited with having done splendid work in that territory, and it is forecasted will of necessity carry it on until the spring of 1928.

Misses Margaret McBride and Susie Grimes are en route to Florida. They are to be at the Bellvue hotel, Bellair Heights, during the winter season.

A representative of the Connecticut Humane society who happened to be in town today ordered the immediate killing of a hen with a broken leg that he found in a poultryman's truck among many other hens purchased for transfer to Providence.

Something of the volume of the postal business being done at the local office this week may be indicated by the fact that 70 sacks of first class mail were sent on the motor truck operating on Tuesday between New London and Worcester through Danielson.

Including visitors, nearly 100 people witnessed the conferring of the third and fourth degrees at a meeting of Killingly grange Monday evening. Excellent refreshment swere served by a committee made up of Mrs. Ella Spaulding, chairman, Clinton C. Ellison, Miss Florence Ellison and Alexander Pellerin, furnished music for dancing.

A man who had a "Dog Lost" adv in this paper this morning was kind enough to say that The Bulletin must be a great advertising medium, for the dog came home within fifteen minutes after the papers got into town.

Mrs. Anna Reynolds and daughter, Gertrude, were visitors in Worcester on Tuesday.

Operations at the Connecticut Mills, which have been gradually diminishing throughout the year, will be at a minimum in the near future, the concern now being active in its new plant at Albany-Decatur, Ala.

Today N. P. Gingras, whose place of business was burned out in Dayville Tuesday morning, had partly re-established himself in a business way and was serving his trade under temporary arrangements. The damaged store building has been boarded up.

At the morning service at the Goodyear church last Sunday, Rev. Charles A. Downs took for a text 2 Peter 3:18, and spoke on the topic Rainbow Runts. There was special music by a quartet composed of William Norton, Nancy Whitaker, Mrs. Longbottom and Mrs. Joseph Green.

The tragic fate of Diver Michaels, who labored to get an air line connected to the sunken S-4 off Provincetown, recalls that he boxed here in three different exhibitions in the town hall under Frank Barber's promotion, as "Sailor" Michaels. At the time he was stationed at the submarine base near New London.

WINDHAM VOTES $51,000 FOR STATE TRADE SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21.—Over 200 electors voted appropriations totaling $51,000 at a special town meeting tonight for the establishment of a trade school in this city under state supervision. The appropriations tonight were in connection with an appropriation of $50,000 made at the last general assembly to cover the state's cost of administration of a trade school in Willimantic. It is a singular fact that the appropriations tonight were voted unanimously and virtually by acclamation. The appropriations as presented began with one for $38,000 to purchase the Turner mill, known as the Goyer Co., or some other site meeting the approval of the state board of education. The second was for $10,000 to remodel the building to suit the needs of the school. The third was for $3,000 to defray administration expenses for the fiscal year until such time as the school is officially taken over by the state.

The meeting also voted an appropriation of $2,595 for the purchase of three voting machines with a proviso that the city of Willimantic purchase a like number of machines. The resolutions embodied the giving of authority of the selectmen to declare that such machines, if purchased, be used in all future town elections. The common council of the city administration voted at the last meeting to purchase three machines and the recommendation of the council will come up for approval at a special city meeting in the future. The only objection of the evening was voiced by M. H. Lincoln and was directed against voting machines on the grounds that the town could not afford them. Robert O. Snow spoke favorably on both issues of the evening and was supported on the voting machine appropriation by Amos Fowler. The resolutions were presented by Town Counsel John H. King. First Selectman Ernest T. Chesebro was moderator and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton read the warning.

A. P. ABBE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE EXCHANGE CLUB

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21.—James L. Case, of Norwich, a Rotarian, delivered an excellent address on "The Spirit of Christmas" at the weekly dinner meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held in the Nathan Hale hotel tonight. Election of officers took place this evening with the following elected: President, Albred P. Abbe; vice presidents, Lyndon E. Little, Robert H. Fenton, E. Frank Bugbee; secretary, Arthur Morrill; treasurer; George Fraser; board of governors, Harry L. Garrigus, William P. Jordan, Dixon Van Zandt, P. J. Towmey, George W. Hickey and Attorney Arthur T. Kelly.

At the bi-monthlyl meeting of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., held at the home tonight with Exalted Ruler P. D. Donohue presiding, it was voted to invite the New London lodge to come here on the occasion of the annual visitation of that lodge by District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler John B. Edgarton on the night of Jan. 12. The invitation comes as a result of the fact that the New London home is being remodeled.

A pleasing distribution of gifts was made at the regular meeting of the Woman's club held in the afternoon with Mrs. Charles W. Tryon in charge. A pretty Christmas tree had been placed on the platform and from its base gifts were given. Two costume dances were given by little Miss Sally Foss, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Frank H. Foss. Miss Fern Bronson was accompanist for the dances.

When the 30 employes of the post office, including Postmaster Frank M. Smith, reported for work early this morning, the entire mail-sorting department was covered with the contents of 250 sacks received since the previous night. A four-ton truck was brought into commission this morning to assist the carriers and the regular parcel post truck in making deliveries. Substitute Carriers Arthur Arnold and William Podbersky had charge of deliveries from the special truck, while Parcel Post Carrier Dennis F. Haggerty was assisted by Substitute Carrier Martin Prue.

It was estimated that over 20,000 pieces of first class mail matter were handled this morning by the city carriers on their first delivery trip. The volume of outgoing mail, which was greater a few days ago than the incoming, is now about on an equal basis.

Mrs. Ellen J. Shumway, 76, widow of Milo Shumway, died at her home in Warrenville, this morning. She was born in Chaplin, April 27, 1851, a daughter of Barnum and Aseneth Hunt Clapp. The deceased leaves one daughter, Mrs. Harriet Fuller, of Boston, Mass., and one son, William Booth, of Ohio.

The annual Christmas service will be held with special music and a sermon of the occasion by the pastor, Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. A Christmas pageant written by W. Russell Bowie, will be presented at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon by members of the church school directed by Miss Ethelyn Nichols and Miss Marion Coleman. The White Gift service, which proved such an effective form of Christmas observance last year, will be repeated this year following the pageant.

The Jordan Hardware company have instituted civil suit against William T. and Myra J. Schmeelk, of Hampton, to recover an alleged unpaid bill for merchandise purchased several months ago, of $181.77. Deputy Sheriff Lester H. Bliss has placed an attachment for $400 on the farm owned by Mrs. Schmeelk. The case is returnable in the Windham county superior court in February.

In his offical visitation to Willingford lodge, No. 1365, B. P. O. Elks, Tuesday evening, District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler John B. Edgarton was accompanied by Past Exalted Ruler James F. McGlone of Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, who acted as grand esquire for the ceremonies.

Willimantic is a fine place to shop in and prices are generally lower, according to statements made today by Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Dickie, who left this city some three years ago and are at present residents of Westerly, R. I. They came to Westerly earlier this month from Patchogue, L. I., where Mr. Dickie had been a deputy sheriff of Sussex county. While shopping here today Mr. and Mrs. Dickie called on several friends.

DISQUALIFYING HOOVER

Are those who are raising the question as to the eligibility of Hoover for president hopeful of preventing efforts in his behalf? Are they trying to prevent such efforts because of the belief that they give promise of being successful?

Whatever the motive there's no chance that they will accomplish anything. The fact is that such endeavors are simply directing increased attention to the secretary of commerce, his qualifications and the kind of work he has been doing both before and since he became a cabinet member. The reaction to the attempt to block campaigning for him is aiding Hoover because it is so ridiculous.

According to the provisions of the in the election of Senator Vare whose is not eligible to the office of president until he has reached the age of 35 years and unless he has "been 14 years a resident within the United States." The claim is made that Mr. Hoover hasn't been a resident here for that length of time, and this is based upon the point that he was abroad for a certain time engaged in humanitarian work in Europe. He was the administrator of the relief funds raised for the benefit of the Belgians who had suffered from the German invasion and went to Europe to direct that work. This wasn't the only time that he went to Europe for similar work, but there's no basis for the claim that he changed his citizenship, that he wanted to or tried to become the subject of another country. The fact is that even though he was abroad he maintained his American citizenship and a home in this country. This legal residence showed his intent and it is his intent that must govern under such circumstances.

No one can take seriously any charge that Mr. Hoover is not entitled to be a candidate for president of the United States if he wants to or if his friends insist. He can fully qualify under all the constitutional requirements and it cannot be long before those who are setting up a howl against it must realize that every knock thus administered means a substantial boost. Mr. Hoover can sit tight, smile and profit by the reaction.

PINCHOT'S PLAN

The direct primary was brought forth as the great panacea for all the ills that have developed in the convention system of selecting candidates. It hasn't worked out as was expected. Instead of cutting down the expenditure of money it has opened up an opportunity for even greater expenditures and it has made it apparent to those of small means that unless they can command as large a campaign fund as others they might as well stay out of the fight.

Gifford Pinchot, formerly governor of Pennsylvania, believes we need a law that will limit the amount of money that can be spent in an election for a national officer, such as senator or congressman. He thinks it ought to be limited to about ten cents a voter, and maintains that the existing law is in fact no limitation.

The Pinchot plan would deal with the election, but it would have no effect upon the primary which is a state affair, and in the conduct of a campaign, even if such a limitation as he proposed became effective, it would not prevent the expenditure of all kinds of money for some other candidate on the ticket running for a state office though the whole effect would be to benefit the candidate for the federal office.

Mr. Pinchot's interest in this matter develops from the contest that was waged in Pennsylvania and resulted seat in congress is now being kept vacant. There was, however, no greater factor that operated for the election of Mr. Vare than the candidacy of Mr. Pinchot. He spent a large sum of money himself and by his refusal to support Senator Pepper for reelection so divided the republican party that the election of Vare was made easy. Pinchot now thinks a terrible situation has developed. His own acts did more than anything else to accomplish it and this in spite of the fact that he was warned of just such an outcome. Of course Mr. Pinchot couldn't see it then and from the attitude he continues to take he cannot see it now.

UNITED STATES EMBASSIES

After following for years a policy which prevented this government from acquiring embassy property in foreign capitals, congress changed its mind and reversed itself. It did it at a time when it meant the expenditure of many more dollars than would have been the case had it been done years ago, but it will nevertheless prove a wise move in the long run.

Instead of being driven from home every time the landlord wanted to raise the rent, every time limited quarters became insufficient, every time someone else overbid this government, the purchase of embassy property established for the United States an independence similar to other countries, it made a home for our diplomats and will in the end prove a good investment.

With the chairman of the foreign buildings commission of the house stating that two million dollars will be spent on our embassy in Paris, it means that the good work is going ahead. This commission was authorized to spend $10,000,000 on embassy properties but must spread the expenditures over a period of five years. Whether it will be possible to come anywhere near getting what is needed in the chief foreign capitals will soon be known. It will mean a start nevertheless and from the benefits attached to the new policy there will probably be no hesitation in continuing such a commission in office and providing it with a reasonable amount of funds to accomplish its task.

The ball was set arolling when the late J. P. Morgan presented this government with his London residence as a United States embassy. There had long been a crying need for something of the kind and that start gave recognition to the need of making similar provisions in other capitals. We are falling in line with foreign governments in this respect but it has to be admitted that it is a wise procedure and the surprise is that it was delayed so long. We stood too long in an unpleasant contrast with much smaller countries in regard to embassy properties.

WHERE CONNECTICUT FAILS

Automobile owners know by experience what waiting until the last minute for their 1928 markers means, and they likewise know what inconvenience they are obliged to stand because of the existing plan whereby a large number of the auto owners of the state are discriminated against.

This is not the only state where difficulties are encountered about this time of the year. In New York state a large number of temporary branch offices have been established just for the year end that the auto owners and taxpayers may be accommodated.

Out in Michigan similar difficulty has been encountered in getting registrations, and there have been those who have advertised that they would secure the licenses for a fee. This was prompted by the inconvenience experienced by owners in getting their tags, but the deputy secretary of state shut up such places because he maintained that through no such scheme should others be hindered or delayed in getting attention.

The Connecticut system invites resort to that very practice which the state authorities have frowned upon in Michigan. In Connecticut home accommodations are provided for only part of the cities. Residents elsewhere must either drive to the nearest branch office, send an agent or pay a notary public fee and mail the application to the main office, Connecticut encourages what Michigan denounces. Michigan disapproves of discrimination an unfair advantage and it is time that Connecticut did, through establishing branch offices in every city of the state.

FLYING INSTRUCTIONS

Many conferences are held upon a great variety of subjects with the idea of development and solving problems. Washington has been entertaining the National Air conference. Many of the leading fliers were there and there was a wholesome exchange of views calculated to advance aviation.

There's no getting away from the fact that each succeeding year is going to see more attention paid to flying. It cannot be ignored. There is a steadily increasing demand for its assistance and more and more are taking to the navigation of the air. More and more are thinking about it quite the same as they began to study the automobile as soon as its desirability was established.

According to one of the transatlantic pilots American youth is anxious to fly and understands much of the theory of it, and it is not surprising to find the belief prevailing that there will be plenty of students if well equipped and efficiently conducted flying schools are established.

In various ways we have been forced into greater efforts in behalf of aviation through noting what has been done in European countries. Statistic show a high degree of safety in commercialized aviation and there isn't a city which isn't giving thought to the establishment of landing fields, if in fact they haven't already been provided.

The situation has unquestionably gotten to the point where attention must be directed to sound instruction in flying. It is important to successful flying and in view of the very apparent consequences of the other kind there can be no desire for anything else. Properly equipped, soundly managed and carefully inspected schools will do great things for aviation in this country.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is quite certain now that neither the coal strike nor the oil case will be settled by Christmas.

If wishes amount to anything the man hunt will be quietly and successfully concluded in California.

"Turkeys are plentiful and cheap," says a headline. When and where have we heard those words before?

The man on the corner says: Of course you are respecting all those "Don't open until Christmas!" labels?

Because Rhode Islanders protest against snooping meter readers doesn't necessarily mean that they all have stills in their cellars.

Out in Indiana one grower has raised over 152 bushels of corn to the acre. That's a great goal for most of the corn raisers to aim at.

The suggestion has been made that a large contribution to our street parking space might be made during the holiday rush if the merchants and employes would leave their cars at home and give up the space to shoppers. Is it a practical suggestion for self help, or not?

SOMETHING IN COMMON

About Clarissa Jewell's smart attire there was just a touch of the mannish, the austere. It gave her prerogatives. No one ever "sistered" Clarissa, much less "cutied" her. Sometimes, even in 1927, she was "ma'amed."

She could not have been more than a year or two older than the shy youth who sat in the revolving parlor car next next her that spring day she found herself spinning across Illinois. And yet she felt somehow old enough to be his mother. He read the stories in his magazine consecutively, without skipping. That was very young. Occasionally he glanced at her when he thought she wasn't looking and each time he was wrong. That was younger still.

She noted he had nice eyes. They were gray and a bit dreamy. A boy of ideas, she told herself; at least a boy who would some day have ideas. He looked as if he needed somebody to help him nurse those ideas and make them grow. He looked somehow, a bit helpless, lonely. She wondered whether he had a sweetheart. If so, was she a self-centered creature, if whims would stifle him, or was she gentle and strong and with his best interests closest to her heart?

Clarissa Jewell smiled to herself. For some inexplicable reason she wished she could talk to this young man with the gray eyes. She knew she was poised enough to open a conversation without the slightest suggestion of impropriety. And yet she did not do so. What interest had she in common with this unawakened young man from the country?

Ernest Fenner completed that story about the African game hunter's sweetheart who followed him into the jungle just in time to shoot the mad elephant. But he couldn't have told you the plot. He was thinking too hard about the tall, black-eyed girl with the horn-rimmed spectacles who sat in the next seat. Occasionally he allowed himself to glance at her when he was sure she wasn't looking.

She looked so cool, so competent, so unapproachable. That was the type of girl he secretly admired, but the thought of talking to one upset him.

This girl looked as if she were the sort who would be a real companion, help a fellow in all those perplexities which life, two years out of college, already was beginning to present. Yes, she might even shoot a mad elephant or two for a man if she really cared for him. And the world was just full of figurative mad elephants.

He wondered how much she, too, in spite of her apparent self-confidence, might need help and protection. Did she by any chance have a fiance waiting for her somewhere? He guessed that she was from a large city, that she knew a great deal about life, probably much more than he did. Perhaps—horrid thought—she was blase, perhaps nothing interested her any more. He hoped ardently that she had some enthusiasms.

Ernest Fenner smiled to himself. In spite of his intense shyness he found himself wishing he could talk to this young woman with the black eyes. Should he open a conversation? He did not dare. After all, what interest could they have in common?

As luck would have it, they found themselves opposite each other in the dining car. Both were embarrassed. Clarissa called upon her vaunted poise.

"Please pass the salt," she said, after which there were fifteen minutes more of silence.

Have I said that it was June? Well, that accounts for a window open in the diner. And for a little square bit of paper being blown in which swirled about the car and landed directly on the table occupied by Clarissa Jewell and Ernest Fenner. Their hands touched as they grabbed for it. Of course, Clarissa got it.

"It's a blue 24-cent of 1835, with a picture of President Monroe and no perforations," she exclaimed excitedly, as though here were an occasion where speech was in order to whomsoever happened to be about.

Ernest had become excited, too.

"Has it got the secret watermark?" he asked. She held it up to the window. He leaned over to look.

"There it is," she cried. "A perfect specimen. It's priceless. Here. It's yours." He took the bit of engraved paper.

"We'll have to advertise it," he said. "It must have blown out of somebody's album. Have you—" the shyness faded out of his eyes—"have you been collecting stamps long?"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Official Lawlessness.

Mr. Editor: A weekly journalist watching the daily press writes thus: "I am tempted to write that the most numerous and active criminals in America are the officials sworn to uphold the laws of the several states and the nation that by far the most dangerous criminals we have in America are the officials who in growing number openly disregard or violate the laws.

Let us take for example what is known as the "third degree." It is a notorious fact that the grossest brutalities and tortures are deliberately and systematically applied in the police stations of the United States in order to obtain confessions and that in this respect we have hardly advanced fro mthe dark ages. In its every aspect the third degree is utterly repulsive and contrary to every dictate of justice. When men are tortured for days and days when they are denied sleep for 72 hours and food for longer periods, are refused access to a toilet for days and during all that time are steadily beaten with a rubber hose, the strongest character will break down and confess to anything to stop his agony. Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, once asked an Italian boy in the death house at Sing Sing how he came to confess. Pantano replied: "You have never been grilled by a mob of detectives. They had me in the room 30 hours. There were 21 detectives I think. As fast as one finished another jumped on me. They hammered, hammered, hammered. I got tired and faint. Pretty soon I would have sworn to anything, to assassination just to get a rest. Then I just wilted and 'yessed' everything."

Here we have the complete picture of the essential cowardliness of the system. Twenty-one men against one, attacking him hour after hour without mercy. That such happenings can take place is proof positive of the way the work of a policeman inevitably breaks down his manliness and sense of decency when he is entrusted with unlimited power over the person of another and is given officially to understand that he may go to any length in committing crime in order to detect crime. If he can pound a confession out of a man, it saves endless trouble in bringing about a conviction, it insures that conviction, and it results in a favorable entry upon the detective's service record, for not merely arrests, but convictions count heavily in the policeman's favor. One man who witnessed by accident the way in which three prisoners were treated, writes: "Blow after blow from the rubber hose, blackjacks and nightsticks. The prisoners fall to the floor. The blood pours from their faces. They spit and cough blood. The detectives still in a white rage at them, a young policeman in uniform pokes his head in. "You fellows is easy with them," he says. "Is that so?" roars a detective and kicks a prisoner in the face, pulls him to his feet, props him against the desk, then with the butt end of his revolver, makes a gash in his head. The prisoners go to the hospital. Lest it be thought that the "third degree" is a peculiarly New York custom, it may be well to point out that it has been reported of late years from such divergent places as Seattle, San Francisco, New Orleans, Chicago, Kansas and Pittsburgh. In Seattle one device used was an electrically wired carpet covering the entire floor of the cell. When the current is turned on, sparks fly and the prisoner leaps, screaming in agony into the air. It is not fatal, its effects are not lasting, and it leaves no marks. In Chicago the "third degree" is always endemic. The most striking example of it of late was afforded by the "gold fishing" of two instructors of the Lincoln school in the Frank murder case. Before the two youthful criminals, Leopold and Loeb, were discovered, the police used the rubber hose unmercifully upon these two young teachers of one of the most respected schools in Chicago in order to make them confess. There is no record that these two innocent young men obtained any redress for their barbarous treatment at the hands of the law. But why go on? One could recall that the department of justice in Washington has set the worst kind of example. A body of lawyers of the highest standing reported—and proved—that in this land of liberty the agents of the department of justice arrested great numbers of persons in wholesale raids without warrants or pretence of warrants; many of these were beaten with blackjacks, struck with fists, jailed under abominable conditions, or actually tortured. The "third degree" is no part of the British system of justice. It is always to be condemned as an alien weapon whose use will never be tolerated in Canada—a slap at the United States as direct as it is deserved.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

THE SOLOMON ISLANDS.

The Solomon Islands, where natives are reported to have massacred British officials and a group of native police, have long had the blackest of reputations because of the ferocity of their inhabitants, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The islands were given their present name by their Spanish discoverer because of their supposed richness in gold," says the bulletin. "But the 'gold' turned out to be worthless iron pyrites, and a subsequent French visitor called them 'The Land of Assassins.'

"Civilization and Christianity have never made any marked impress on the Solomon Islanders. British law has been observed to a certain extent because of fear; but little time elapses in any of the island communities without a murder.

"The natives are Melanesians, much blacker than the light colored Polynesians of Samoa and the Marquesas. The typical Solomon Islander has kinky, black hair, but in many cases it has been bleached to a pinkish tan. Many of the men have sinister expressions and they seem to have a veritable instinct to kill. As one visitor phrased their attitude: every stranger is an enemy, and it is of course a virtue to kill enemies.

"There has been no cohesion among the people. In the old days head-hunting was the chief combined occupation and sport of the adult males. Any near-by village was a fair source of heads. If a more ambitious expedition was desired the warriors climbed into their war canoes, visited a neighboring island, and if successful came back with their boats loaded with the heads of men, women and children. These were hung up in the community 'club house' or in the canoe houses.

"British control has about put an end to head-hunting, but the desire to kill remains and crops out in miscellaneous murders. The favorite method of attack has always been to spring upon the victim from behind and finish him off before he knows what is afoot. The first rule of conduct a newly arrived white man learns in the Solomons is never to allow a native to walk behind him. Instances are on record where trusted natives have begged their white benefactors not to walk in front of them while on the trail. The temptation to strike, they assert, is almost irresistible.

"The Solomons, 900 miles northeast of Australia, are among the most remote of the Pacific Islands; yet save for the Ladrones, and perhaps the Marshalls, they were the earliest found by Europeans. They were discovered, strangely, from Peru, where adventurers, thirsting for more gold, heard rumors of a continent close by to the west. The expedition, under Medana, sailed in 1567, and managed like the expedition of Magellan, to cross the vast Pacific without finding any of the many important islands. In the Solomons they had numerous brushes with the natives, and a number of the voyagers were killed.

"After Medana's two ships returned to New Spain, the Solomons were lost for two centuries, being rediscovered by a French expedition in 1767.

"Great Britain established a protectorate over the southern islands of the Solomon group in 1893. In 1899 an agreement between Great Britain and Germany gave the two large northern islands, Bougainville and Buka, to the latter country. Since the World war these former German possessions have been administered by Australia.

"The total area of the Solomon Islands is about 16,000 square miles. The population is approximately 200,000 natives and a mere handful of whites and Asiatics."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The election of Andrew J. Maloney to the presidency of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company adds another to the long list of romances of American industry. Twenty-five years ago, Mr. Maloney was a breaker boy. Today he is the head of one of the largest coal producing companies in America. Born in 1884, he started out at the age of 16 to make his way in the world. After trying several lines of employment, he finally obtained a position with a coal company. His advancement was rapid and soon he came to be recognized as one of the most capable men in the business. One of Mr. Maloney's tasks in his new position will be to seek hitherto untouched markets, a program for which it is believed the fact that anthracite production for the current year is running behind that of 1926 is responsible

YOUR HEALTH

MATERNAL CARE AND MORTALITY

By Fred L. Adair, M. D., Minneapolis, Minn., member Gorgas Memorial.

Maternity carries with it unnecessary risks to the expectant mothers and to mothers during confinement and during the lying-in period. The major causes of death during maternity are infection and conditions, called toxemias, which are due to some obscure form of poisoning associated with pregnancy. Sickness and death from these and other causes cannot be absolutely prevented, but they can be greatly reduced by preventive measures and early detection of these disease conditions.

In order to reduce the occurrence of disease and death in connection with childbearing it is necessary to have prospective mothers seek good advice early, and then to receive proper care all during this period. This means that there must be a general and widespread understanding by them of the importance of seeking this advice, and that properly trained persons must be available to give this care. The education of large masses of people to ideas concerning their own welfare takes time and patience. The education of persons who must be trained to carry on health work in the different communities takes years of intensive work. After these persons have been properly trained and educated, there is the very important problem of distribution so that their services may be easily available to those who require them. These workers who render service expect and are entitled to adequate and proper compensation, either from the persons served or from the community which is benefited. There is no more important service which can be rendered to the individual or to the community than proper maternity care, and the fee paid for this service is often much too small if necessary attention is given.

Two lives are frequently in jeopardy and, while the loss of lives is never spectacular, it is steady, and during a year the loss of maternal and infant lives looms large in vital statistics. In all countries there is a mortality of both mothers and babies which is associated with childbearing. Evidence shows that this mortality in the United States is among the highest in the civilized world. It is stated on good authority that there is in the United States an annual death rate of 20,000 mothers in childbearing, and 100,000 infants under one month of age, and that 100,000 infants are dead-born. Some countries have less than half our mortality rates; few of the civilized countries have higher rates.

It is worth while to make efforts to improve this condition. This can be done by public demand for better care and by larger and better trained personnel to furnish this care. These persons should in some way be properly distributed through sections of the country so that their services would be available to all who need them. The proper establishment of homes and hospitals for the care of these patients; the control of venereal diseases; the proper establishment of institutions for training those who are to furnish maternity care; the education of the laity to ask and expect good care in connection with childbearing; the provision of proper facilities and adequate compensation to make it possible for the doctors, nurses, and midwives to give the best care during pregnancy, confinement, and the lying-in period to both mother and infant are all essential for the reduction of the risks of maternity.

PRIVATE DAY SCHOOL PUPILS PRESENT PANTOMIME

The pupils of the Norwich Private Day school presented an interesting Christmas pantomine Tuesday morning at 10.30 o'clock and entertained with an hour of Christmas carol singing, drills and action songs. The pantomime dealt with the children retiring, their dreams of Santa Claus, of dolls and toys, following the sand man's visit.

The pantomine parts were portrayed by Evelyn Burbeck, Beatrice Eggleston and Nathan Shields as the children; Allen Mitchell as the sandman; Stephen Shields, Santa Claus; Mary E. Pullen, Louise Pullen, Kate Pullen, Janet Morton, Bobbie Eggleston, Catherine Mitchell as the dolls.

The children trimmed and filled the usual number of baskets for the family at the Sheltering Arms with food, nuts and home made candy. After emptying Santa's pack of presents and admiring the Christmas gifts made by the pupils, the enjoyable program came to a close.

JAIL HILL FENCE HAS BEEN REPLACED

The old wooden fence that for 25 years has served as a guard against vehicles plunging over the steep embankment on Jail Hill has been replaced by one constructed of railroad rails. The old fence, which became dilapidated, fell down recently, and the street department at once started to replace it. The upright rails have been set in a concrete base and the cross rails are securely fastened. The work was completed Wednesday under the direction of Street Commissioner John E. Donovan.

HIGHWAY PLANS DO NOT CALL FOR CUTTING OF "THE PINES"

Investigation of the state highway commission's plans for the straightening of the Military highway, just below the Norwich state hospital, made Wednesday afternoon by officers of the Norwich chamber of commerce, reveals the fact that a total of 19 trees are to be removed at the near junction of the Hallville road and the state highway.

The plans show that what is known as "The Pines" will not be touched with the exception of five or six trees on one side of the north end. The remaining 35 or 40 pine trees will remain as they are. The remainder of the 19 trees are along and to the north of the sharp curve which is to be straightened out.

In the opinion of local engineers who studied the layout along with President H. D. Larrabee of the chamber and who also visited the territory in question no alternate proposal seems practical without also removing several trees. Therefore it was conceded that the highway commission had used the greatest possible care in developing its plans.

The forgoing facts were only developed as a result of an informal conference in the local highway commissioner's office and do not represent the action of the chamber of commerce. The report of the committee in this particular case will be presented to the board of directors immediately. The chamber would undoubtedly seriously consider any plans for the wholesale destruction of trees for many reasons. However, in the present instance the opinion seems to favor the highway commission's plans as practical.

TO REPRESENT NORWICH AGENCY AT CONFERENCE

The first of a series of regional meetings of general agents of the Connecticut General Life Insurance company will be held in Boston, December 21, 22 and 23 at the Copley Plaza hotel.

Vice President King is chairman of the business sessions which will be opened with an address by President R. W. Huntington.

The home office will be further represented on the program by Vice President J. M. Laird, Dr. L. G. Sykes, medical director, and G. W. Skilton, comptroller.

The general theme of the conference is "Organization Building" and will be developed by the following general agents: H. E. Barlow of Springfield, Mass.; A. L. Intlehouse of Providence; R. H. Brown of Bridgeport, P. H. Kent of Rutland and O. S. Spencer of New Haven.

GIVEN $50 JUDGMENT IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas has awarded judgment of $50 to Helen White of Old Lyme who brought suit against Harriet A. Rosenfeld, of Old Lyme, for damages of $1,000. The plaintiff claimed the defendant assaulted her April 3, 1926. Judge Waller stated in his decision:

I think the plaintiff has established that she received some personal injury through the negligent act of the defendant. I find that the defendant in attempting to open the door into plaintiff's kitchen, finding that it was obstructed, forced the door open violently causing a baby carriage to be driven against the plaintiff.

It is clear that whatever use the defendant had made of the kitchen was by permission of the plaintiff who was in possession as tenant. Even though defendant may have had a right to use kitchen she was not justified in resorting to force.

While it may be true that the defendant had no intention of causing injury to the plaintiff, still under all the circumstances in evidence I am satisfield that her act in forcing the door open was more than mere negligence and amounted to wanton misconduct on her part.

I think the sum of $50 is fair and just compensation for the comparatively trivial injury received by plaintiff.

MONTAUK POINT CHOSEN FOR STEAMSHIP TERMINAL

An Associated Press despatch under a New York date line of Wednesday says that general advocacy of a plan to erect trans-Atlantic steamship piers at Fort Pond Bay, Montauk Point, L. I., was manifested, at a hearing conducted by Lieut. Col. Robert R. Walston, district engineer, of the war department.

C. L. Bardo, vice president of the organization back of the plan explained that it is proposed to operate a steamship line with ten vessels between Havre, France and the Montauk Point piers on a possible four-day schedule with connections to be made with boat trains provided by the Long Island railroad. After a survey of various ports, the company chose the Long Island site as the most available and is expected to begin construction of piers unless some better location is found.

The hearing was held for the purpose of determining whether the proposed piers would be a boon to navigation and to furnish the war department with data relating to safeguards, such as breakwaters, in the event that construction of the piers proceeds as planed. Rough estimates of such safeguards, Col. Ralston announced, set $3,800,000 as the cost of two large breakwaters which are deemed necessary, and $400,000 for smaller ones. These expenditures ordinarily would be met by the war department.

The case against Fred J. Grandchamp, 18-year-old Montville boy, charged with manslaughter as a result of the motor vehicle crash on Mohegan Hill on the night of Dec. 10 in which William Towart, New York fireman, was killed, was further continued when it came up in justice court before Justice of the Peace J. Y. Miller at Uncasville Monday night. Action in the case was again deferred pending a finding by Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich.

Coroner Desmond has been conducting a thorough investigation into the accident which cost the life of Towart and robbed Keneth LaFlamme, 14-year-old Montville boy, of his eyesight, and which also sent James Towart to the Backus hospital with concussion of the brain and completely demolished both cars. Grandchamp, arrested on a charge of drunken driving, was later arraigned on a manslaughter charge when William Towart expired en route to the hospital. He is at liberty under bonds of $2,000 on which his father, Lewis Grandchamp of Montville, became surety. Attorney Thomas H. Shields of Norwich represented Grandchamp. Justice Miller anounced that he will continue the case from week to week, until Coroner Desmond's finding is received.

ELEVEN CHINA COLLEGES HAVE OPENED THIS FALL

Eleven of the sixteen universities and colleges maintained in China by mission boards and societies in America have reopened their doors this fall and have about their normal number of students. This announcement was made, this week, in New York by Professor B. A. Garside, secretary of the China Union universities, 150 Fifth avenue.

Two of the other five colleges are definitely closed because of activities of the Communist Wing of the Nationalist movement, and three are presumed to be closed because information concerning them cannot be obtained, Professor Garside stated.

St. John's University, Shanghai, and Yale-in-China, Changsha, remain indefinitely closed.

Yale-in-China is the college where Dickson H. Leavens, of Norwich, is treasurer.

NORWICH COUPLE MARRIED FORTY YEARS AGO

On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Fields, of 58 Broadway, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. Remembrances of the event were received in the form of congratulatory cards and a beautiful banjo clock from friends. Mr. Fields remarked that Wednesday was a beautiful day compared to that of their wedding, forty years ago, when there was a blanket of snow, 14 to 16 inches in depth, and a heavy rain was falling.

Mr. and Mrs. Fields were married in Willimantic by Rev. H. B. Jefferson, and have been residents in Norwich since their marriage. The best man at the wedding was Charles Windmiller, of Worcester, Mass., and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Laura Williams, Mr. Field's sister. On Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Fields motored to Willimantic, where they called on friends, Mrs. Edith Herendeen and Mrs. Louis Ayers, who were also present at the wedding.

Mr. Fields was born on the West Side section of the city on April 1, 1865, the son of the late Manuel J. and Mary L. Fields, and has been a resident in Norwich all his life. For the greater part of his life he has been engaged in caring for the court house. He worked with his father, who was superintendent there for many years. Following the death of his father, he became superintendent and since 1915 has efficiently served in that capacity. For 32 years he was connected with the N. S. Gilbert and Son company, previous to his superintendency at the court house.

Mrs. Fields was born in Fayal, Azore Islands, on Nov. 28, 1866, and was the daughter of Thomas G. and Charlotte G. (Sylvia) Aurelio. She came to this country in 1874 with her praents, who are now deceased. Her father was a nephew of the late Jane G. Austin, the authoress, of Boston, Mass., who specialized in Puritanical stories.

Mr. and Mrs. Fields are well and favorably known in this city, where they have a large circle of friends, who wish them many happy returns of the day and continued happiness in their wedded life. They have one daughter, Miss Sadie Fields.

OVER 15000 DRUNKEN DRIVERS CONVICTED THIS YEAR

There has been a big increase in the number of drunken auto drivers in the state the past few years. The number of operators convicted for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor in Connecticut has increased more than three times as fast since 1920 as has the number of registered drivers according to statistics at the state motor vehicle department. No records are available for the convictions on this charge before 1920.

Two hundred and forty-seven drivers were convicted of driving under the influence of liquor in 1920. Up to Nov. 30, this year, more than six times that number, 1,549., have been convicted on that charge, and since Dec. 1 the state police have begun an extensive campaign against these drivers. Because of this campaign, motor vehicle department officials are unable to even approximate the number which will be convicted before the end of the year.

The number of drivers licensed in Connecticut in 1920 was 133,527, as compared to about 309,000 on Nov. 30, 1927.

Convictions for driving while intoxicated have increased steadily for the past seven years, the statistics show. The numbers are as follows: 1920, 133,527 operators, 247 convictions; 1921, 156,467 operators, 419 convictions; 1922, 171,471 operators, 460 convictions; 1923, 213,388 operators, 802 convictions; 1924, 241,686 operators, 1,133 convictions.

In 1925 there were 266,599 operators and 1,334 convictions; 1926, 292,574 operators, 1,413 convictions; to Nov. 30, 1927, about 309,000 operators, 1,549 convictions.

By no means are all the drunken drivers convicted, one state official said Tuesday. "Only a small percentage of them are arrested in the first place," he said, "and often many of those are released because there is not a sufficient amount of evidence produced to convict."

The official described drinking as a greater menace to safety than drunkenness. Even one or two drinks of liquor cause the abnoramility to a certain degree, and the judgment of such a driver is necessarily not good, he said.

LISBON DOG CAUGHT 'COON ON THE RUN

The racoon dog, Gummy, owned by Jack Ely of Lisbon, did the rare but authentic trick one day last week in capturing one ofthese elusive animals "on the run," a feat that has not occurred in these parts in some time, if ever. This 'coon brought Mr. Ely's dog to eight, the largest of which weigher 19½ pounds, and established what is reported to be one of the largest catches of the season in this district.

The above mentioned coon was "nailed" by the dog within four feet of the burrow in a ledge, to which the coon was evidently headed when captured. The catch happend like this: Mr. Ely with a party of friends went hunting for the much desired anima' and within a short time Gummy had struck a "cold" track.

Before long the track became "hotter," with the dog giving the coon a hard chase. Suddenly the dog stopped barking. Thinking something had happened to the dog the hunters walked to where the dog had last barked and there among the ledges was the dog with the coon's hind quarters in his mouth. For some time there was a lively tussle between the dog and coon, but with the aid of the hunters the coon was finally killed.

PAY FOR STATE SENATE MEMBERS $10,200

According to figures which will appear in the annual report of Comptroller Frederick M. Salmon to Governor Trumbull, each of the 319 laws adopted by the 1927 general assembly caused an expenditure by the state of $322.62 up to July 1, and many of the bills for the legislature had not been presented at that time. Such expenditures of the general assembly as had been paid by July 1 amounted to $264,231.71, less than 1 per cent of the $30,678,143.51 spent by the state during the 1926-27 fiscal year.

The state ended its fiscal year with the balance sheet showing assets more than five times as great as liabilities, the assets being $99,116,961.58 and the liabilities $16,348,681.32. At the end of the preceding fiscal year the state's assets totalled $91,649,833.34 and the liabilities were $16,291,100. The report for the year ended June 30 will show land, buildings, highways and equipment, valued at $76,491,954.79, as the largest item in the state's assets. Other assets are: Investments in United States and other bonds, $13,010,020.47; cash, 08,167,183.50 (in treasury $8,089,169.07; in departments, $77,964.42); taxes receivable, $1,442,900.11; sinking fund account, cash in treasury, $4,952.71. Liabilities at the end of the last fiscal year were $57,581.83, drafts and accounts payable, and $16,291,100 funded debt.

SCHAEFER WINS WORLD'S BILLIARD TITLE FROM COCHRAN, 1500 TO 1304

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, son of the "old wizard" of the same name, tonight won the world's 18.2 balkline billiard crown when he defeated the champion, Walker Cochran in a 1,500 point title match, 1,500 to 1,304.

Although he won the title, Schaefer was outplayed by Cochran in the final block, the champion scoring 551 points while the challenger ran out his final 500 to the title.

Trailing by 447 points when Schaefer stepped to the table for the last block, the champion clustered two strings of 97 and 128 in his first two innings. The challenger matched these two runs with clusters of 42 and 161 to hold his lead at the end of the second inning, 1403 to 978.

After three more innings had brought the crowd to a high pitch of excitement with a beautiful cluster of 194, the best run of the match, Schaefer seemed to collapse under the strain at this point and got only six in his next two innings.

Cochran further decreased the challenger's lead in the same two innings with runs of 56 and 51, bringing his total to 1,304 against 1,484 for Schaefer who then went out on an unfinished run of 16.

Schaefer's victory marks the third time he has won the 18.2 balkline crown. He held the title in 1921 and again in 1925.

The inning scores for the last block:

Schaefer:
43 161 52 0 23 4 2 16—300—1,500

Cochran:
97 128 16 7 196 56 51 —551—1,304

High runs: Schaefer: 161; Cochran 196. Averages: Schaefer, 42 6-7; Cochran 78 5-7.

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 21.—The All-Heller Five composed of five brothers, and the only known brother combination of basketball players in New England will open up their schedule of Christmas holiday games, Friday evening, Dec. 23, in Willimantic. At that time, they will meet the fast Co. C. team of the Willimantic unit of the national guard at the State armory court.

Sam Heller, now playing regular forward on the Brown university basketball team will be at left forward, Max Heller, regular forward on the Windham high school team, will be at right forward, Abe or "Red" Heller will cover the center position. He is attending Harvard Law school and is playing on the Harvard Law School team.

The game will start a little later than ordinarily, at 9:00 p. m., in order to give the holiday shoppers an opportunity to witness this stellar attraction. The largest crowd ever to witness a basketball game in Willimantic is expected to be in attendance, for interest in the coming game is at fever heat among the populace of the city.

The five young native sons of Willimantic will step out on the floor Friday night in gala array. They will be neatly uniformed in new bright blue uniforms, with Heller written diagonally across the front of the jersey and the names of each brother written in black letters on the back of the jersey. The Heller brothers certainly present a neat appearance in their new uniforms and they will be watched with considerable interest.

EAST GRID SQUADS PRACTICE IN CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Eastern football stars dug their cleats into western soil today and got down to steady practice for intersectional games to be played in this section within the next two weeks.

The University of Pennsylvania team, 24 strong and accompanied by a party of more than a hundred, arrived at Berkeley for the contest with California, Dec. 31. After finding quarters, Coach Lou Young sent his men through a light afternoon workout to unlimber train-stiffened muscles. All of the men reported in good condition. Beginning tomorrow Coach Young plans rigorous workouts in Memorial stadium at the University of California.

California chalked up a heavy practice in the morning with Coach "Nibs" Price drilling his squad in tactics intended to break up or check the spectacular passing game of the visitors.

In San Francisco, Coach Andy Kerr sent his east team through formations for an hour and a half this morning and described it as the best workout the players have had since their arrival. Kerr stressed heavily on a backfield composed of Joesting, Minnesota; Caldwell, Yale; Presnell, Nebraska, and Amos, Washington & Jefferson, indicating these luminaries would start in the charity game Dec. 26 against the west team.

Coach Orin E. "Babe" Hollingberry of the western squad, put his men through a strenuous drill in the afternoon with Meeker, Washington State, and Kutsch, Iowa, alternating at quarterback; Kaer, Southern California, and Hunt, Texas Aggies, halfbacks, and Wilson, Washington, fullback.

Both Kerr and Hollingberry had their men throwing long passes during the practice with Amos, east quarter, opening the eyes of a few spectators, with 40 and 45 yard tosses.

DELANGER MUST MEET GENARO BEFORE SCHWARTZ

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Frenchy Belanger, the newly crowned National Boxing association's flyweight king, must meet Frankie Genaro, of New York city in a N. B. A. title bout before he can engage in a scrap for the undisputed worlds 110 pound championship with Corporal Izzy Schwartz, holder of the New York athletic commission's title.

This edict was delivered tonight by Thomas E. Donohue, president of the National Boxing association, upon his return from Toronto, Canada, where he viewed the Belanger-Ernie Jarvis title scrap as the guest of the Canadian athletic commission. Donohue declared that both Belanger and Jarvis had agreed, in the event of victory, to meet Genaro.

Donohue declared that he was very much pleased with the willingness shown by Corporal Schwartz to meet Belanger, but that Genaro was a logical contender and that the N. B. A. would not allow Genaro to be ignored. Upon his return to his office here President Donohue found a written challenge from Izzy Schwartz offering to meet Belanger immediately.

Donohue again pointed out that he could not force action in the lightweight division as Sammy Mandell, the present champion, is not required to defend his title until January 15, as he fought Phil McGraw in Detroit last July.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21.—(AP)—In a thrilling game that had the spectators in a constant uproar, the Philadelphia Arrows nosed out the Boston Tigers, 5 to 4, in an overtime Canadian-American Hockey league tilt here tonight.

On four separate occasions the score was deadlocked, each team coming from behind twice. Not more than one goal separated them at any time.

Earl Robinson's shot in 57 seconds of the extra period gave the locals the victory over the league leaders. The Arrows center got two other counters, while Barry made the other two for the winners, Mackey with two, Redding and Oatman scored for the Tigers. JACOBS BUYS INTEREST IN DELANEY FOR $50,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The contract for the management of Jack Delaney, former world's light heavyweight champion, which originally cost Pete Reilly only $900 four years ago, was purchased today by Joe Jacobs of New York, for $50,000.

The deal, announced jointly by Jacobs and Reilly after new contracts had been drawn at the offices of the state athletic commission, also included the transfer of the management of Sammy Vogel, New York lightweight. Jacobs, however, declared Delaney was worth the whole price. Delaney's new contract with Jacobs has two years to run while Vogel's has three.

Delaney, who relinquished the light heavyweight crown several months ago to cast his lot among the heavies, will be pushed forward as a challenger for Gene Tunney's title, Jacobs declared. A match with the winner of the prospective Sharkey-Heeney battle will be sought.

Although Reilly paid only $900 for Delaney's services originally, he paid $15,000 for the fighter's contract little less than three years ago after having released him. Delaney meanwhile had sprung into prominence, knocking out Paul Berlenbach. Under Reilly's management, the French Canadian progressed rapidly, winning the 175-pound title in July 1926, from Berlenbach, knocking out Mike McTigue and twice putting the late Tiger Flowers to sleep.

Reilly announced his retirement from boxing, at least temporarily, to devote his time to other business interests. Jacobs already has a stable of boxers that includes Frankie Genaro, Eddie Wagner, Jack McVey, and Joe Glick.

NEW ENGLAND DOG DERBY ON FEB. 9, 10TH AND 11TH

NORTH CNOWAY, N. H., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Over a new course the will include 25 to 30 miles of open racing on Lake Winnipesaukee, the third annual point to point New England sled dog race will be staged on February 9, 10 and 11, this winter, Harold W. Pendergast, general chairman of the race committee, announced today.

The pick of the Canadian and American mushers who in the past two years have brought the race up to rival the famous international derby at Quebec are again expected to enter. Leonhard Seppella, hero of the famous dash to Nome, Alaska, with diphtheria antitoxin and winner of the New England race last year, has arrived at Poland Springs, Me., and has begun training. Shorty Russick, the diminutive Russian fur trader from the Canadian northwest, who won the first race two years ago, has written that he intends to compete again this year.

Other probable Canadian entries include Emil St. Goddard from Lepas, Man., and the picturesque Dupuis brothers from Quebec. In the American group, Arthur T. Walden, president of the New England Sled Dog club, sponsor of the race, may take enough time from his preparations to accompany Commander Byrd to the south pole, to race again, while Hi Mason, of Tamworth, Walter Channing, of Boston, Phil Malloy, of Berlin, and othrs are expected to take the starting line again.

HORNSBY IS FREED OF GAMBLING DETS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the world champion Cardinals last year and now captain of the New York Giants was freed of all horse race debt claims today in the suit brought by Frank L. Moore, former Cincinnati betting commissioner, for $26,275. A jury in circuit court brought in the decision relieving the ball player of paying the money allegedly lost in horse race bets.

The finding was not unanimous, only ten out of twelve jurors signing the verdict. The verdict completely removes any liability on the part of Hornsby for the accumulation of bets.

The ball player and Mrs. Hornsby, who is ill, had left the room when the verdict was returned.

The verdict in favoring Hornsby took the view that Moore and Hornsby were gambling jointly and that the debts are therefore inadmissable.

The case went to the jury at 2:30 p. m., and a verdict was decided on at 4:10 p. m. Upon learning the finding of the jury Moore said as far as he was concerned the matter was ended.

The Bruins also acquired rights to the services of Eric Pittenger, center of the Fort William Canadian amateur club, finalist with the Toronto Gads in last season's Allan cup series.

PLAINFIELD PROS FIND BOSTON NATIONALS TO BE EASY VICTIMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 21.—Plainfield Pros played fine basketball this evening and experienced little difficulty in defeating the Boston Nationals by the score of 42 to 27 at the Community house. Plainfield started off in whirlwind fashion and before the Hub city quintet found the basket they had piled up a 15 to 0 lead.

The half ended with Plainfield leading 23 to 10. The second half was a repetition of the first and the outcome was never in doubt. The visiting aggregation did not show to any advantage against the home team although the team was picked from some of the best players in Boston and has established a wonderful reputation around the Hub. Anybody that follows basketball can vouch for this by the men who appeared in the lineup. It was just simply one of those nights that is common to most basketball players when it seems impossible for them to get going.

Plainfield played wonderful basketball all the way through. Dissinger made several pretty shots, tapping the ball off the backboard. Brusso, Stavnitsky and Bernot also caged the ball on pretty shots from the floor. Thompson and Waters for the visitors showed the best.

Next Wednesday the Boston Whirlwinds will be the attraction at Plainfield in the second game of the series.

The Plainfield Buddies defeated the Socony team of New London 32 to 18 in the preliminary.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

This may be the shortest day of the year but it ought to be long on good basketball up in Danielson.

The scholastic end of the game takes a rest during the next few weeks as school closes for the holidays. However, the "crucial" battles start in soon after New Year's.

Danielson and Taftville tonight at Danielson. And that's about all that need be said in advance when these two communities get together on the basketball floor.

Danielson will reign favorite for this evening for the simple reason that the Crescents will be opening their season with this game. Otherwise the teams would be fairly evenly matched. It ought to be a real battle between the two flashing forwards, Mondi Normandin of Taftville and Bill Schofield of the up-the-liners.

Stonington high opens her season tonight in playing the Alumni.

None of the four eastern Connecticut high schools are slated to play during the holiday season, this Stonington game tonight being the last activity along this line until January.

The two church leagues did not get off in good fashion but things ought to be straightened out soon. The Senior loop's first game was slow and uninteresting, although not so one-sided while in the first two games of the Junior loop the winners finished quite a ways ahead.

The Brothers of Joseph win in each loop is the feature to date with Moneschal of the Senior section of this club copping the high scoring honors.

The New Britain Tabs have disbanded for the season. Apparently those last two beatings by the Plainfield Pros were too much.

The Y Emps boast one of the few unbeaten records in eastern Connecticut. They have played four games.

Capt. Neild of Chapman Tech is getting away to a good start on the other scholastic scorers of eastern Connecticut.

The Y "Outlaws" will play the Willimantic Red Men Saturday night at the Y gym. It ought to be some wild west affair.

Randy Whaples, who did some very nice officiating in football made his local basketball referee debut the other night in the C. F. C. game and he sure handled that game well.

Danielson and Taftville ought to provide plenty of action tonight at Danielson.

Stavnitsky, Plainfield Pros center and who finds time to campaign with the Meriden entry in the State league is receiving favorable comment from writers around the loop.

The C. F. C. has Battery E of Westerly for Monday, Dec. 26 at the Y. It ought to be full of action.

The C. F. C. had a surprise when it turned out that the Crescents of Noank and not the Nuggets was the team with which they had to grapple Monday. The local management had made arrangements, as he thought, with the Nuggets but when the boys climbed out of their machine here it was found that the Crescents was the opposition. We didn't know they had any of that Doc. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde stuff down there.

The Alpha club is a new addition to the Senior Church league. Mgr. McCrum is busy rounding up quite an aggregation of stars.

It seems that the Y Emps, who started the season so impressively are now divided into two groups and that the team is suffering therefrom.

May You Have a Real New England Christmas

Somehow we of New England can't imagine any other Christmas but our own.

We want our Christmas decorated with snow, garnished with a little finger-biting cold and served up with just a dash of sleigh bells, holly and tinsel. And indoors we want comfort, warmth, and friendly good cheer.

This is just the kind of Christmas that the Edward Chappell Company hopes everyone in Norwich will enjoy.

Long live the real New England Christmas!

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray are sane in the opinion of a board of alienists who have examined the pair convicted of the killing of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband. A report on their sanity has been made to Governor Smith, it was learned tonight. Their single remaining chance of escaping the electric chair to which they were sentenced is through executive clemency.

The decision of the board was reported unanimous for both Gray and Mrs. Snyder.

The board of alienists, composed of three members chosen from officials of state insane institutions, automatically passes upon the sanity of all condemned persons.

Governor Smith declined to discuss the board's report.

POETRY

Fantasy of the Red Man

Where the red man paused, his thirst to slake
By the crystal waters clear;
Where trees overhang the mirror lake
Now only the haunt of deer—

In fancy you see the shining glint,
Where the flaming sunset glows,
Of hunters of old, of copper tint,
And graceful arch of their bows.

Down the vista formed by arching trees
A museum Corot gem—
The leaves, just stirred by the passing breeze—
Form the headdress worn by them.

The colors merge into wraithlike smoke,
And the red man fades from sight,
The gilded forms by the sun bespoke
Glide onward into the night.

As the purpling clouds, like mustangs gay
Bear them through the afterglow
They pass through the gleaming portals of day
But leaving one golden bow.

The golden bow gleams back from the lake,
While a twilight star peers down;
And the red deer comes, his thirst to slake,
Afar from the noisy town.
—Florence A. Houdlette, in The Christian Science Monitor.

A Very Wild Flower

Within a garden once there grew
A flower that seemed the very pattern
Of all propriety; none knew
She was at heart a wandering slattern.

The gardener old, with care and pain,
Had trained her up as she should grow
Nor dreamed amid his labor vain
The rank rebellion lurked below.

A name sufficiently high-sounding
He diligently sought for her,
Until he thought of the "Rebounding Elizabeth" he should prefer.

But when grown up the flower began
To show the tastes within her hidden;
At every chance quite wild she ran,
In spite of being sternly chidden.

They told her beds for flowers were best
But daily greater grew her failings;
Up to the fence she boldly pressed,
And stuck her head between the pailings.

Then to the street she struggled through
Tearing to rags her silk attire,
And all along the road she grew,
Regardless quite of dust and mire.

You'll find her now by country ways,
A tattered tramp, though comely yet,
With rosy cheek and saucy gaze,
And known to all as "Bouncing Bet."
—By Mildred Howells.

The legal age of marriages in India is gradually being raised in the different states, to eliminate marriage of young children.

A Dorchester (N. H.) woman, Mrs. Caroline Sylvain, 95, sang at the double wedding of two of her granddaughters, which was held there.

The growing scarcity of English servants is seen from the following desperate offer from a mistress through the advertising columns of a daily paper: "Wanted: A house parlor maid, experienced, small family. Two other maids, modern house. Three half-days fortnightly and other evenings. Yearly holidays, good food, home, insurance paid, wireless, motor rides, theater tickets. Wages 48 to 55 pound a year."

Erwin Dressel, age 18, is probably the youngest contemporaneous composer to have an opera accepted for production by a large opera house. His opera, entitled "Poor Columbus," will soon be brought out by the Prussian state opera at Cassey. Dressel is orchestra conductor at the municipal theater of Hanover. He first attracted nation-wide attention when, at the age of only 14, he composed the incidental music to Shakespeare's "As You Like It," for the state theater at Berlin.

While driving to Abilene, Kas., Harry Allard, of El Dorado, turned a curve so sharply that his car hurtled across a ditch and through a barbed-wire fence. After the damage had been repaired, Mr. Allard reached in his pocket to get a roll of bills to pay the repairman. The money was gone. He wrote a check for the garageman and drove on. Two days later he returned to El Dorado, driving fast in an effort to reach the spot of the accident before dark. But darkness had overtaken him when he stopped at the scene of the accident. In the light of the second match he struck he found the roll of bills.

How birds fly is now being determined by French scientists attaching minute recording instruments to homing pigeons. Their speed variations, wing strokes and other movements are measured. Man himself may fly without a motor some day, think some commentators, as a result of this study. They say man can exercise more power than should be needed for flying, if that force can be utilized as the birds use it. Three aerodynamic experts recently gave the French Academy of Science a report on experiments with their tiny instruments. It is a mechanism 2 4-5 inches long, 1 1-5 inches wide and 1 1-5 inches high, and weighs two ounces.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGH'S HOLIDAY MAIL ESTABLISHING NEW RECORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 21—Postmaster William T. Crumb has had his entire office force on duty for the last few days and reports Christmas mails, both outgoing and incoming, well in excess of last year's business. Patrons of the office are being accommodated in stamp purchases, at a special window further down the lobby. Tuesday and Wednesday the office averaged close to 200 sacks each day. Never before has the movement of Christmas cards and Christmas sealed greetings, equalled the amount being handled now. Wednesday more than 5,000 pieces of this class were dispatched, with nearly as many received. Mr. Crumb looks for the heaviest incoming mail to run the balance of the week. Monday the 26th, to be observed as Christmas, will see a little of the eleventh hour mail arriving on the morning train, but it is promised that all mail will be assorted for box delivery before the office closes for the day, at 9 a. m.

In response to the suggestion of Mr. Drescher, and acting on a call from the master, the large company arose and with bowed heads and folded arms, stood a minute in silent prayer for those on the S-4. The star at the top of the tree has sixty bulbs, giving a wonderful golden effect. The electrical work was done by the borough electricians, Supt. Earl S. Hiscox and his assistant, George Tormey. The tree was erected by the borough street department, in charge of John McKiernan.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Tommy Tit Pities Terror

A tender heart means kindly deeds
And thought for other people's needs.
—Tommy Tit

Of all the little people in the Old Orchard and the Green Forest none is more generally beloved that Tommy Tit the Chickadee. A lively little fellow is Tommy Tit and a cheery little fellow. Who can hear his cheery little "Dee, dee, Chickadee! See me! See me!" without feeling better for it? There isn't a mean feather in Tommy Tit.

Of course Tommy Tit was one of the first to know what had happened to Terror the Goshawk. You see, this time of year Tommy spends a great part of his time up in the Old Orchard and over in Farmer Brown's dooryard. He and Farmer Brown's Boy are great friends. So Tommy was right on hand when that cage was put out in the dooryard. Sammy Jay and Downy the Woodpecker and Yank Yank the Nuthatch were also near at hand and saw what was happening. They were excited, of course. Yes, indeed, they were very much excited. For a while their tongues fairly flew.

"I'm glad of it," said Sammy Jay

"I'm glad of it," said Sammy Jay. "It serves him right. I hope he'll never, never get out of there. This news is going to make almost every one around here mighty happy."

"That's so," said Yank Yank.

Downy didn't say anything, but he nodded his head rather vigorously.

"Well," said Sammy Jay, turning to Tommy Tit, "what do you think about it?"

Tommy's little black eyes snapped and twinkled and twinkled and snapped. "I think," he said slowly, "I think I'm sorry for Terror."

"What!" screamed Sammy Jay and Downy the Woodpecker and Yank Yank the Nuthatch all together.

Tommy Tit nodded his little black-capped head. Up and down, up and down, he nodded his little blackcapped head. "Yes," said he, "I'm sorry for him. I would be sorry for any one a prisoner, but I would be sorrier for some than for others. I am sorrier for Terror than I would be for some other people I know, because it is so much harder for Terror. He is big and strong and always has known the freedom of the skies. It must be harder for him than it would be for me, for instance."

"But," cried Sammy Jay, "don't you know he is the enemy of all the little people who fly and run?"

Again Tommy nodded his little black-capped head. "Certainly," said he. "But he is their enemy only when he is hungry. Did you ever stop of think that you and I and a lot more of the feathered folk are all the time hunting worms and insects?"

"Well, why shouldn't we?" demanded Downy the Woodpecker.

Tommy chuckled, that merry little chuckle of his. "There is no reason that I know of," said he. "We need them for food. Now, I suppose Terror feels the same way about the rest of us. We mean no more to him than those worms and insects mean to us. Old Mother Nature made him a meat eater and if he doesn't kill his meat he can't get it. So I don't care what you say. I'm sorry for Terror and I'm going over to tell him so."

With this Tommy Tit flew right over and alighted on a corner of the cage of Terror. And, sitting there, he told Terror the very best he could just how he felt about it. If Terror understood it he made no sign.

FOUR MEN IN NEW LONDON COURT FOR DISREGARDING VEHICLE LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—Four young men were in the police court today charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws. Two were disciplined, another was discharged and in the fourth case a continuance was ordered. Frederick Gaskell, 25 Garfield avenue, was originally charged with reckless driving, but today the complaint was amended to failing to grant right of way. He was fined $10 and costs. Gaskell was driving his automobile on Garfield avenue Monday when it collided with a Packard coach owned by Contractor Jeremiah F. Fitzgerald, William street, driven by Frederick Tinker, an employe. The automobiles overturned and both cars were damaged. Tinker sustained slight injuries. Frank Miehls, 20 Home street, and Francis Southard, 75 Harrison street, were charged with driving without a license and loaning a license, respectively. Miehls was fined $10 and costs and the charge against Southard was nolled. Melhis several weeks ago was driving an automobile, but not having a license, he borrowed Southard's license. During his driving his automobile collided with another car. The deception was not discovered until a few days ago when Miehls and Southard were arrested by State Police Officer Peter Busch, of Groton barracks.

The case of Patrick Mullins, Portsmouth, N. H., resident, who was arrested a week ago for his own safety, was disposed of in the police court today by a nolle being ordered, that Mullins could leave the city. Mullins was arrested last week when he went to police headquarters and requested lodging. His actions, because of a profonged drunk, were such that Mullins was locked up. The case was continued several days in court in order that Mullins could become sober.

Earl Gilman, 483 Broad street, was charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The state was not ready to proceed with the case, so a continuance was ordered to the 31st inst. Gilman was arrested last night by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky.

E. W. HOLMAN'S FUNERAL HELD WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—The funeral of Edward W. Holman, of 325 Williams street, where he conducted a teachers' employment agency, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Harry Tourtelotte, John Fitzgerald, John L. Larkin, George Williams, Charles F. Chittenden and Arnold Clemens. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Sailors from the submarine base and United States Coast Guard ran wild in New London last night. During the late hours, seven bluejackets were arrested either by the police or the shore patrol. Most of the sailors were from the submarine base. They were not prosecuted in the police court, but were taken back to the base for discipline. All of the sailors had been drinking freely, but as yesterday was pay day with the coast guards, they were supplied with more funds than the base sailors, with the result that they drank more freely and some of them became troublesome. About midnight, four coast guarders were at the corner of State and Union street and there they created a disturbance. Two members of the shore patrol happened along and in attempting to quell the disorder, the patrol was attacked by the four men. Patrolmen Albert Iverson went to the assistance of the patrol and it became necessary for night sticks to be used for one of the quartette, Albert Alletzhauser, a member of the crew of U. S. S. McCall, was so vicious that he was rendered unconscious by blows on his head. His scalp was laid open and he was otherwise so battered that he was attended at police station by a physician. One of the patrol officers fell to the sidewalk during the scrimmage and sustained a dislocated shoulder. He went to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he was treated, after which he returned to the base. During the battle a chief of the shore patrol and Patrolman Henry Sylvia, arrived and with the other members of the shore patrol and Patrolman Iverson, all of the combatants were taken to police headquarters. This morning all four sailors were taken to the state pier where they will be given a court martial. Alletzhauser has been arrested before for similar conduct when he has been drinking.

Mary S. Elliot, 51, wife of Charles W. Elliot, died yesterday afternoon at her residence, 98 Blackhall street, death ending an illness of several weeks following a shock. Besides her husband, Mrs. Elliot is survived by a daughter.

This morning's mail brought cards bearing Christmas greetings to employes of the municipal building and were from Mayor James A. May.

The detective bureau was unable to-day to obtain any clues to the identity of the crooks who forced an entrance to the locksmith establishment of Charles Raub, 31 Golden street, last night, and stole several revolvers. As a further evidence that the buglary was perpetrated by boys was the revelation that the crooks did not seek to obtain money from the cash register, but gave attention to a register that was in the store for repairs. In an effort to open this register the crooks used a screw driver and further damaged it.

There is no change today in the condition of Roman Jasilin, Filipino, United States Coast Guard, who was shot in the abdomen, probably with suicidal intent yesterday while in the cadet mess hall. At Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where Jasilin is being treated, it was said that the man's condition had not improved.

Master Lester Benson, of 69 Gor-ton street; Mrs. Owen Coffey and infant son, 135 Ashcroft road; Mrs. Leon Geer, Borodell place; Mrs. Harold Sargent, and infant daughter, Waterford; Willis Hunt, Essex; William Flanning, United States Coast Guard academy; Robert Johnson, 81 Colman street, and Gus Hanson, Saybrook, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Michael White, of 6 Union street, is ill at her home as the result of a shock, the attack being the third that Mrs. White has suffered within a year.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary McCarthy, wife of Patrick McCarthy, of 40 Mountain avenue, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. In the solemn requiem mass Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan was celebrant, Rev. Michael Reagan deacon and Rev. George Clark sub-deacon. The bearers were Michael Foley, Michael Reidy, Maurice Garvey, J. A. McDonald, Michael Sullivan and James Murphy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Frances Enos, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Enos, was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the residence of the child's parents, 59 Bayonet street. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. Irene Gables, recently discharg-ed at Home Memorial hospital where she was ill several weeks with pneumonia, is recovering at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hart, Broad street.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stewart, of Garfield avenue, are in Brooklyn, N. Y., where they will spend the holiday with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Gates.

Barbara and Roberta Graham, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Graham, 18 Mercer street, have scarlet fever and are at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Dr. and Mrs. William D. Cronin have returned after having spent several weeks with relatives at Ridgefield Park, N. J.

At the annual meeting of New Lon-don Forest, No. 72, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, held last night, the following officers were elected: Grand Tall Cedar, Earle E. Chapman; senior deputy grand tall cedar, Alfred F. Hodgdon; scribe, Robert H. Byles; treasurer, Harry K. Knowlton; trustee for three years, John G. Arnold. The officers were installed by Supreme Representative Harry A. Sanderson, assisted by Frank Becker, grand tall cedar of Providence Forest. The following officers were appointed by Grand Tall Cedar Chapman: Preceptor, Herbert P. White; guide, S. A. Welt; sentinel, Martin L. Small; chaplain, Herman F. Staab; chief of the royal rangers, Fremont Daniels. The retiring grand tall cedar, Herman F. Staab, was presented a past grand tal cedar's pyramid.

At a meeting of W. W. Perkins Wo-man's Relief Corps last night in Union lodge room, it was voted to place a tablet inscribed with Lincoln's Gettysburg address, in the New London Public library, on Appamatox day, April 19. A committee to carry out the plan was appointed and consists of Mrs. Joseph K. Maynard, Mrs. Ella Tew and Mrs. Mary Fox. The placing of the tablet in the library is at request of National Relief Corps headquarters in Washington. The plan is to have the tablets placed in every public library in every city and town in the United States.

OVER 65,000 LETTERS PASS THROUGH P. O. IN SINGLE DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21.—Yesterday over 65,000 letters alone passed through the New London post office, besides the thousands of Christmas packages that were mailed to every state in the Union and to most of the territories. This unprecedented rush in a way can be attributed to the military activities here.

Since the disaster which overtook the S-4, it seems as though every navy man stationed here has written to home folks and friends telling them the inside story of this tragedy that has shocked a nation. This coupled with last minute Christmas packages and the rush of holiday cards has created a condition that is taxing the energies of Postmaster Walter M. Slocum and his staff.

Preparations are being made for the singing of carols Christmas eve by several hundred school children of New London. Under the direction of Mrs. Percy Geer, teacher of music in the public schools, the group of children selected for the performance is being specially drilled and trained. Particular care will be used to see that every home sheltering the sick will be visited, also the hospitals.

Sick bay servicemen stationed in and about New London were remembered today by the local Junior Red Cross. Packages have been mailed to sick sailors at the Submarine Base hospital and to the soldiers in the post hospital at Fort Wright. These packages contained the things most desired by patients—candy, smokes, books, magazines, et al.

Mrs. Pauline Clark, 127 Willetta ave-nue, was ordered into the police court tomorrow when she was detected this afternon driving an automobile without having a license. Automobile Officer Clarence Martin, detected the violation and holding up the car, summoned Mrs. Clark into court.

The interior of the municipal build-ing, which has been receiving the attention of the painters about a fortnight, is rapidly nearing completion and within another week it is believed that the workmen will have completed their duties. About all that remains to be painted now is the ground floor, which comprises the corridor, two big offices and three small offices.

Mrs. Elias Wentworth, 302 Vauxhall street, reported to the police this evening that she had lost a purse containing a sum of money while on State street, while shopping.

Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh, it is expected, will arrive in New London during the night with Peter Pijeaux, former United States Coast Guard negro, arrested in New York two weeks ago charged with burglary, and at the request of the New London police. Pijeaux had admitted having used a skeleton key on the entrance to the residence of Joseph L. Jackson, 12 Richards street, during the absence of the family and to having stolen apparel valued at $475. He took the stolen goods to New York and was arrested there on request of the New London police.

Joseph Carey, formerly of New Lon-don, now employed at Greenport, is spending a few days renewing acquaintances in this city.

While Christmas shopping has been described by merchants as having been dull the past few days, the weather of today stimulated trade and as a result there were more prospective shoppers on the streets this afternoon than has been the case this month. Most of the shoppers were women, but merchants declare that it is the fair sex that spend the money.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Something decidedly new and different in being shown for vaudeville lovers at the Palace theatre, commencing today. It is an all girl vaudeville show comprising twenty talented young ladies in their various specialties. The acts have been carefully selected from a list of available acts well known on the vaudeville stage. Among the five acts to be shown are Jeanette Alder and orchestra, which comes to the Palace after a successful tour of all the Keith-Albee owned theatres. Miss Alder has a jazz band of twelve pieces said to be the equal of any band act appearing on the stage. In Hayden and Taylor, lovers of good clean comedy should thoroughly enjoy these two comic capers. The Ruby Trio is a blending of song, dance and music with as pretty a stage setting as ever beheld locally. The Golden Girls are the possessors of charming voices producing wonderful harmony and Eileen Harvey performs some miraculous stunts on the tight wire. Taken as a whole the show should prove one of the outstanding events of the year.

The picture to be shown is one featuring Carmel Myers as "The Girl From Rio." There is a real dramatic punch to this story which concerns an Englishman, the Brazilian representative of a big coffee concern, who although engaged to a girl in England, falls madly in love with a Spanish dancer. Miss Myers portrays the role of the Spanish girl to perfection, while Walter Pidgeon plays opposite her as the Englishman.

Breed Theatre.

"The Lily, Fox Films version of David Belasco's noted stage success of the same name, will end a successful engagement at the Breed tehatre tonight. Beautiful Belle Bennett, the star, gives the greatest performance of her career. Ian Keith and Reata Hoyt, a young English girl, head the excellent supporting cast.

Dog lovers of this city will have their last opportunity tonight to witness the popular FBO canine star, Ranger, in his latest production, "Ranger of the North," which is the added feature on the bill.

In this picture Ranger is introduced as a wild dog who becomes the faithful and gallant comrade of a city-bred young man who wins a fortune and the love of a beautiful woman by his heroic action in exploring a haunted mountain which has been the death of many a hardy woodsman.

The next attraction at the Breed theatre will be the widely heralded picture called "The Devil's Saddle," which gained so much notice during its making in the desolate canyons of California. It is a super-western starring Ken Maynard, western hero, and was produced by the Charles R. Rogers company for First National.

Economy Grocery.

The Economy Grocery company is a Connecticut corporation, owned by Connecticut people, operating about 350 stores in the state including four in Willimantic, twelve in Norwich and about seventy in Hartford. The main office is located in East Hartford and includes also a large warehouse, railroad siding and coffee roasting plant.

Strand Theatre.

The patrons of the Strand will have a last opportunity to see Lillian Rich and Pat O'Malley in the Peerless picture Woman's Law tonight. This film has a plot that is new and different from the usual trite story. It tells of two men, suitors for the hand of the same girl, one in love with her and the other one holds incriminating evidence against her father, so she decides to marry the latter to save her father—and a series of dramatic sequences develop that are more than interesting.

The Speed Demon, an epic story of the roaring road, is a comedy-romance that steps on the gast and passes every thrill in sight. Kenneth McDonald is the star an dis supported by an all star cast including Peggy Montgomery, Jack Pierce and Clarke Comstock. A seat beside the driver through the wildest auto race ever screened is what awaits you when you see this thrilling picture.

Broadway Theatre.

Conrad Veidt, noted European screen star, makes his first appearance in the Universal-Jewel picture, "A man's Past," which comes to the Broadway theatre for today Friday and Saturday as the feature attraction.

The noted actor, although celebrated for years on the continent as "The European Barrymore," was little known in the United States until two German productions in which he was starred, "The Three Wax Works," and "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," were released in this country. Overnight he became a sensation and various local producers started bidding for his services. Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures, was in Germany at the time, and succeeded in affixing his name to a long term contract.

"A man's Past," is a screen version of Emerich Foeldes' well known stage play of the same name and was directed by George Melford. Paul Kohner made the adaptation and also supervised production.

The supporting cast is unusually large and embraces such sterling players as Ian Keith, Barbara Bedford, George Siegmann, Arthur Edmund Carew, Corlis Palmer and Charles Puffy.

CONVICTED OF MURDER AND ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Elmer Norman Baker, a member of a prominent Nantucket, Mass., family, accused of having killed a confederate in a holdup, was convicted of murder and attempted robbery here today. The verdict carried a recommendation of life imprisonment.

THAMES RIVER IMPROVEMENT TO BE STARTED EARLY NEXT SUMMER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21—The army board of engineers today informed Congressman Freeman that work on the Thames river would probably begin about the first of July. There was no indication that it could be begun at an early date under the favorable report of last year calling for an appropriation of $350,000 for that purpose.

The $300,000 appropriation for the Thames river improvement was included in the rivers and harbors authorization bill passed by congress and signed last January by President Calvine Coolidge. Under the terms of the bill the Thames channel which has already been developed from Long Island sound as far as Allyn's Point will be dredged to a depth of 18 feet and a width of 200 feet from the latter point to Norwich.

Funds for the maintenance of the present channel have been available for some time and have been expended annually in keeping the channel at proper depth.

CONGRESS HAS ADJOURNED FOR CHRISTMAS RECESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—Under the shadow of the death of one of its most beloved members—Senator Andrieus A. Jones of New Mexico—the seventieth congress adjourned today for its Christmas recess.

Final meetings of the two houses until January 4, were brief, practically all business being suspended as a mark of respect to a member whose period of service covered more than a decade. The senate was in session less than ten minutes and the house for only a little more than half an hour.

As they departed from Capitol hill for a vacation of two weeks, senators and representatives left behind them a record of accomplishment over the fifteen days since convening that had few counterparts in recent years.

The first of the annual appropriation bills, that to make up deficiencies, was on its way to the white house; the $290,000,000 tax reduction bill had rounded the first buoy of the legislative course, as had the measure proposing settlement of the German-American alien property claims, and a resolution to give a congressional medal of honor to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh had become a law.

In addition, the Walsh bill designed to compel testimony of recalcitrant witnesses in the naval oil criminal conspiracy cases, was in President Coolidge's hands and both houses had set forth upon what promises to be a long series of investigations in this pre-presidential campaign session.

11 HOURS IN SINKING BOAT IN ZERO WEATHER

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 21—(AP)—How they battled death for eleven hours, bailing water from their sinking boat with their hats in near zero weather, was described today by two fishermen, rescued by coast guards from West Sister Island, 21 miles out in Lake Erie where they had been marooned since last Thursday.

The fishermen, Louis Francke and W. M. Meyers, of Erie, Mich., still were suffering from exposure when landed here and were taken to a hospital.

They probably owe their lives to George Gampher, 45, lighthousekeeper, who found them last Friday morning unconscious in the small dory in which they had drifted to the island.

The fishermen had put out into the lake to raise their nets. Some distance out, they encountered heavy ice which crunched their fishing boat and broke it in two. Taking to the dory, they tried to row ashore. A gale ripped the oars from their handsand churned up waves that soon began to fill the small craft.

Francke and Meyers bailed with their hats until they became unconscious from the cold. When they awoke they were in the light house on West Sister island and Mrs. Mary Gampher, 64, mother of the keeper, was administering to them.

Gampher fired the red and white flares which were seen for three nights by residents on Locust Point beach.

Heavy ice prevented boats from reaching the island yesterday. Two airplanes flew to the island. One of them circled and returned but the other crashed while attempting to land. George Welis, president of the Standard Aircraft corporation, and Donald Gorwin, co-pilot, were injured. They were cared for at the lighthouse and were brought back on the tugs in which coast guards reached the island today.

REPUBLICAN LIKELY TO SUCCEED SENATOR JONES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21—(AP)—The political balance in the senate, upset once this session by the refusal to seat temporarily, Smith of Illinois, and Vare, of Pennsylvania, is likely to undergo another change because of the death of Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico.

Since the present governor of New Mexico, Richard C. Dillon, is a republican, it is expected that he will appoint one of his own party to succeed Senator Jones. This would give the republicans a majority of one over the democrats in the place of the minority of one they had held since Smith and Vare were commanded to stand aside.

Pending the appointment by the governor, however, each of the major parties will have 46 members in the senate, with the balance of power left in the hands of the lone-farmer-labor Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota.

MRS. LILLIENDAHL AND BEACH IN STATE PRISON

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret T. Lilliendahl and Willis Beach, were transferred to the state prison today where each will serve a ten year sentence for manslaughter in connection with the death of the woman's husband, Dr. A. William Lilliendahl of Vineland, who was shot to death on a lonely road near Hammonton on September 15 last.

Arriving here from May's Landing by automobile this morning, they were recorded at the prison and placed in quarantine for two weeks prior to being placed in their cells.

The widow, who had broken down at the Atlantic county jail when told to prepare for the journey appeared in good spirits on arrival at the prison. She willingly posed for several newspaper photographers and entered the prison clerk's office smiling.

FROST THREATENS THE CITRUS CROP IN FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Thousands of flickering, smoky lights from smudge pots over the citrus and truck growing sections of south and south central Florida tonight gave notice that the growers were making a determined stand against frost.

Richard W. Gray, United States weather bureau metorologist here, today warned the growers that tonight probably would bring killing weather to unprotected crops.

Only one official report of serious damage in the cold snap which last night set a ten-year record of 40 degrees in the city of Miami, was available. The state marketing bureau in Jacksonville said that sout hof Lake Okeechobee, were killed. No damage to citrus was reported from any point.

Freezing temperatures were reported from a number of points on the edge of the Everglades.

CREW RESCUED FROM BURNING MOTOR SCHOONER

HONOLULU, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Rescued from small boats after their vessel had burned beneath their feet, 14 members of the crew of the motor schooner Doris Crane arrived here today on the liner Niagara.

The fire probably was started from an overturned can of gasoline, the rescued men said. Without radio to appeal for help, Captain Harold C. Davison, of Alameda, Calif., and his crew, fought the flames from 8 a. m. Monday until they were forced to abandon the ship at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday.

First appearing in the engineroo.n, the flames leaped beyond the crew's control, enveloping the vessel. In the early morning of yesterday, the crew was driven to sea in two lifeboats. Four hours later they were picked up by the Niagara from Vancouver, B. C., which had been attracted to the rescue of th flaming vessel. The Niagara searched four hours in the darkness of early morning before finding the lifeboats, which had traveled five miles from the wreck.

HICKMAN SAID TO BE HEADED FOR TIJUANA

SANTA ANA, Calif., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Notified that a man said to have been identified as William Edardw Hickman, hunted slayer of Marian Parker, had left Cucamonga, Calif., bound for Tijuana, Mexico, Police tonight threw guards across roads leading out of Santa Ana canyon.

The suspected man was said to have been recognized by G. F. Kaufman, of Cucamonga, who said he knew Hickman when the youth was employed as a messenger in a bank in which the slain girl's father was an official.

Kaufman telephoned the Santa Ana police and also the Los Angeles sheriff that the man though to be Hickman had applied at his house for directions to Tijuana and that he had directed him to follow the road into Santa Ana.

The suspected man was driving a Ford coupe, Kaufman said.

PIANI CHARGED WITH SLAYING YOUNG WIDOW

BURLINGTON, N. J., Dec. 21.—(AP)—A warran charging him with the murder of Mrs. Isabelle James Shedaker, 28-year-old widow, who served on Frederick Piani, inspector at a local pipe factory, today in the St. Francis hospital, Trenton, where he lies with a self-inflicted bullet wound in the jaw.

Piani, who shot Mrs. Shedaker four times last night, after forcing her automobile to stop, and then turned the pistol on himself, probably will recover, hospital authorities said.

Piani has confessed to the slaying, police asserted, and has begged physicians to let him die. He killed the reputedly wealthy woman according to his alleged admission because she had broken up his home and then deserted him.

Thomas B. King, eighty-nine, of Columbia, Mo., is the oldest living alumnus of the University of Missouri and one of its most rabid football fans. He has bought his tickets for all of this season's home games.

STRUGGLE OF SPECULATIVE FORCES RESULTED IN ERRATIC STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Highly erratic price movements took place in today's stock market as a result of the bitter struggle for control between opposing speculative forces. A strong opening was followed around midday by a general sinking spell, with an irregular recovery taking place during the afternoon. For the fifth consecutive day, the average of 20 leading industrial issues closed at a new high record for all time, but the rails lost ground. Total sales crossed the 3,000,000 share mark for the third time this month.

Marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent coincident with the calling of about $25,000,000 in loans, inspired a series of "bear" raids, which resulted in a number of substantial recessions, particularly among some of the Volatile specialities. The stiffening in the rate was generally believed to be due, however, to the seasonal withdrawals of currency in preparation for the holidays and not to any general change in credit conditions, as the rates on other monetary accommodations were unchanged. There is a belief in some quarters, however, that an increase in Federal Reserve rediscount rates is likely early next year, especially if the gold export movement is maintained in heavy volume.

Operators working for higher prices took encouragement from the sharp pick-up in steel operations and the unusually heavy decrease in crude oil production last week. Prompt oversubscription of a tremendous volume of new stock and bond offerings, indicating a strong underlying investment demand, also was regarded as a favorable factor. Some disappointment was caused, though, by the sharp falling off in freight car traffic, and this probably explained the sluggishness of many of the railroad shares.

Despite the sudden drop from 145 to 134 in Greene Cananea, which rallied 6 points from the low, speculative interest in the coppers was maintained at high pitch. New peak prices for the year, or longer, were registered by Anaconda, Calumet & Arizona, Cerro de Pasco, Chile, Kennecott, Magma and Utah, U. S. Steel sank to 146 3-4 on the noon reaction and then spurted to 149 7-8, closing at 148 5-8 for a small net gain. Trading in General Motors common quieted down considerably, the final price of 134 1-8 representing a net loss of 1 1-8.

Paramount Famous Players assumed the leadership of the amusement group, climbing more than 2 points on buying influenced by expectations of an increase in the dividend early next year. Fox Film A sold around the year's high on reports of large current earnings.

Striking gains took place in some of the insurance company shares. Continental Insurance (old stock) soared 31 1-2 points to a new high record at 341, as against a low of 155 earlier in the year. Fidelity Phenix Insurance jumped 20 points to 215 and Rossia rallied 8 points to 187 1-2. National Surety jumped 15 points to 373, but fell back to 367 on realizing. Burroughs Adding Machine, International Harvester, and National Cash Register all advanced 3 points or more to new high records.

Amalgamated Leather broke 5 more points to a new low at 68. Warren Bros. broke 4 1-2 points and net declines of a point or two were quiet common.

Establishment of new high levels for the year by the Swiss and Swedish currencies featured the mixed foreign exchange market. Sterling Cables were slightly easier around $4.88 11-32.

Reactionary price tendencies predominated in the commodity markets. Wheat futures yielded fractionally on increased offerings of the product from the Argentine. Cotton closed 15 to 22 points net lower after a day of backing and filling. Coffee quotations held steady but raw sugar futures were slightly easier.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—(AP)—Irregularity again ruled the curb market today, with most of the important changes toward lower ground. Liquidation probably was in reflection of selling on the big board which followed the advance in call money to 4 1-2 per cent.

Most of the recent favorites were subjected to hasty profit taking, losses of 1 to 3 points or more being sustained by Borden, Fansteel Products, Johns Manville, Lehigh Valley Coal Sales, U. S. Freight and U. S. Gypsum. Maryland Casualty and Atlas Plywood closed with net losses after establishing new highs for the year.

Some of the amusement shares which have been moving upward in a few recent sessions, softened. Fox Theatres "A" and Stanley Co. dropping back a point or more. Schaeffer Pen dropped 11 points following the announcement of a 20-for- split up in the stock. Celotex fell back sharply on reports of declining earnings.

Oils gave a good demonstration of group strength, again led by Gulf Oil, which reached a new high at 115. Mountain Producers also sold at a new top. Quaker Oats jumped 32 to 302, a new top and Industrial Rayon, despite reports of smaller earnings, established a new peak for the third consecutive day.

Public utilities were mixed in tone, Blackstone Valley Gas & Electric issues making the best gains while Empire Power declined to heaviness. New tops were again reached by some of the mining issues, including Newmont and Copper Range.

Stock of the McKeesport Tinplate company, largest tinplate concern in the country, was admitted to the list.

The borough officials have had a room done off on the first floor of the fire station for the steward of the fire company Lawrence Rogers. Mr. Rogers will sleep there and a telephone will be installed. At present, in case of fire, word is telephoned to the central telephone office, the operator calling the foreman of the company. He will go to the fire station and give the alarm on the siren. Under the new system the call will be sent into the fire station, the steward will send the alarm out with the siren, start the engine and run the apparatus out and run to the fire. The new system will mean the saving of several minutes, which means a great deal in getting to a fire. It is hoped by this new system the rates of insurance in the borough will be lowered, as they are very high. It is hoped that citizens will turn in an alarm as soon as a fire is discovered, remembering that the first 5 minutes at a fire is worth more than an hour after the fire has gotten a start.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Strong motored to Manchester Sunday when they were the guests of relatives.

PATRONIZE THESE WELL KNOWN CONCERNS

NORWICH MERCHANTS CAN PROVIDE FINE SERVICE

Whether it is in the automobile tire business, the jewelry trade, contracting, or in any other line of business, Norwich has the firm or the business house which stands ready to give prompt and courteous service.

In rainy or pleasant weather, whether it is hot or cold, hundreds of local business men await the calls of their patrons for service, that kind which they allege cannot be provided by the concern in cities miles away.

In particular this is true of the automobile accessory business. A tire or tube purchased in Norwich, if it gives trouble, can be serviced best by the concern from which the purchase was made. If it's radio trouble it's the local dealer who gets the call for assistance. If it's any type of quick service you need—it's the local dealer who supplies it.

Back up this type of local service by trading at home. The local dealer stands ready to serve you—isn't it fair that you should give him your trade.

You will find this type of service at any of the mercantile houses mentioned on this page and they urge you to give them a chance to prove their assertion.

THE PROVIDENCE BAKERY SAVES TIME FOR WOMEN

With Christmas only a few days away and the shopping not yet done why not turn to the Providence Bakery at 84 Franklin street and let us supply your pastry for the holiday.

Years of service to the people of Norwich and vicinity has placed this bakery high in the esteem of those who wish to free themselves of the burdensome tasks of preparing the many extras that go with the celebrating of Christmas.

Why allow the women to rush around and become too tired to enjoy their Christmas with the reunited family. Years ago perhaps it was necessary for the womenfolk to slave in the kitchen throughout the morning of Christmas, and—sometimes a few days before Christmas—preparing the pies and cakes, the rolls and many other extras that go with the Yuletide feast. In these modern days, when spotlessly clean bakeries, where only materials of the best grade are used, stand ready to assume these burdens, the mothers and wives should not be called upon to assume added burdens. Christmas should be a day of "Peace on earth and good will, by not asking them to perform added tasks on Christmas.

In anticipation of the 1927 idea of Christmas the Providence Bakery will have fruit cakes of the right sort, delicious squash and mince pies, patty shells, poppy seed rolls and fancy pastry of all kinds on hand.

Pay us a call and select your pastry—ready to eat and enjoy—or, if you desire something special, call 2243 today and let us handle a part of your cooking burden for Christmas.

Present your mothers and wives a Christmas gift that they can best appreciate—let us do their pastry cooking for them.

J. F. MARCH WILL FIT YOUR EYES WITH TILLYER LENS

Remarking about the history of eye-glasses J. F. March, optometrist and optician, located in the Disco building, calls attention to the famous Tillyer lenses. The story back of these lenses he relates in the following brief outline of eyeglass history:

Years ago everybody wore flat lenses; now everybody wears toric lenses. Toric lenses were better than flat because they followed the curve of the eye.

Could there be anything better than the toric lenses, anything that, ground to your prescription, will help your eyes to give you easy, fast, clearer vision? There is a scientific creation five years newer than radio.

Tillyer lenses, these are called, named after the scientist who developed them. They do not literally rotate with your eyes when they look up and down and sidewise, but they are mathematically computed to give clearer oblique vision. The difference is definite, noticeable. And so, the next chapter of eyeglass history will saw:

Up-to-date 1927 persons began wearing Tillyer lenses, for Tillyers were better than toric.

Are your eyes up-to-date? Bring them to us next time you pass—they can't come without you—and let us fit you to the modern, best—obtainable, eyeglass-lens.

Optical service means more than the mere supplying and fitting of glasses. Of greatest importance is the examination, which determines the success or failure of an attempt to make your eyes more useful and comfortable.

In order that your glasses fulfill all requirements expected of them, the examination must be accomplished by an experienced optical specialist.

We are located in the Disco building, 257 Main street. Rooms 201-204, Norwich, Conn. Phone 1312.

DAWSON SHOP IS HOME OF HIGHEST GRADE MILLINERY

The Dawson Shop at 12 Cliff street, next to the Salvation Army building, is an exclusive millinery shop.

Here the particular women are given every courtesy and receive the personal attention of an experienced milliner.

The Dawson Shop specializes in hand made hats, for all style tendencies point to the demand for millinery made by hand, rather than for the machine made hats, of which there are so many duplicates. Thus by the policy of this shop our customers are assured of exclusive hats of any design, one thing which above all others has made this shop the Mecca toward which all women who desire the exclusive in hats are drawn.

One very interesting fact about the shop is that it is not expensive, although only the best grade materials are used. There is always a full line of better hats of the latest style on hand at the Dawson Shop and your visit to the shop would more than convince you that quality and moderate price may go hand in hand at such a shop.

THE MOHEGAN RESAURANT HAS FINE XMAS MENU

The Mohegan Restaurant at 271 Main street has always prided itself on its holiday menus and the Christmas menu for 1927 stands out as one of the best ever planned by the management.

In addition to providing a fine array of delicious things to satisfy the holiday appetite, special holiday service will be provided and a homelike atmosphere will prevail. Service of the individual sort is being arranged for and your wants will be carefully looked out for.

The menu prepared, although too lengthy to publish here includes such pleasing things as Shrewsbury Shrimp salad and Blue Point cocktail on half shell, essence of turkey, home made noodles, Royal Painted Vermont turkey and fresh chestnut dressing, roast native duckling, and home made dressing, hot mince pie and hard sauce, the famous Mohegan old fashioned plum pudding, pumpkin pie and cheese, Italian Spumoni and many other items sure to round out a perfect Christmas dinner.

In addition to the special holiday menu this restaurant stands ready to serve your wants at any time, giving special attention to banquets of all kinds, parties and weddings. The Mohegan Blue Plate Special needs no introduction to Norwich people as this has been a feature of service for many years.

When considering the place to eat your Christmas dinner consider comfort and quality, then come to the Mohegan restaurant where both may be found. Let us prove to you that this restaurant does provide delightful food, cooked the right way and served in a manner to suit the taste of even the most particular.

WHEN THINKING OF FLOWERS JUST CALL GEDULDIG

When you require flowers for any occasion, and there are many occasions when flowers serve much better than anything else, just call Geduldig's Greenhouses. Phone 868. Especially at this season of the year, when hearts are joyous at the approach of Christmas, flowers may be the means of conveying the message of love and friendship to relatives and friends. Appropriate at this season is the gift of a plant, a bouquet or a basket of flowers. Unlike many presents these remain to cheer and comfort. For those who are shut-ins a gift that will flower and grace the sick room, bringing warmth and color into the home, there is nothing so appreciated as flowers.

Not only for Christmas but for the birthdays, for the patient, or to honor someone in connection with some particular event, flowers always answer the purpose.

The love of flowers is something which seems to have been born in everyone. No person ever received a floral tribute without a feeling of true appreciation to the giver. Flowers often mean more than words and the giving of flowers is a refined way of expressing sentiments of friendship and love.

Flowers speak for themselves. Their beauty and fragrance, their adorable colors, just seem to say to the recipient "I've come to bring you happiness. To let you know someone is wishing you well." This explains why they are the most lovely gifts for Christmas or any other season of the year.

Geduldig's Greenhouses have for years supplied Norwich and vicinity folk with flowers for every occasion. Whether it be Christmas, Easter, a wedding, a party, a banquet or for any occasion, Geduldig's Greenhouses stand ready to supply yours needs with flowers of quality.

Don't Guess About Your Eyes
Weak, weary eyes cannot help but be dull, tired and strained. How remarkable a difference properly fitted glasses make. A recent testing of the eyes of some fifty thousand college students showed that over a third of them needed glasses, but most of them were not aware of the need. That is why we stress the desirability of an examination.

GREENEVILLE

A month's mind requiem mass was offered for the repose of the soul of the late John Barry in St. Mary's Memorial church Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock with Rev. William A. Keefe the pastor officiating. Many friends and relatives attended the mass. The musical programme of the mass was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, while Miss Josie Hartlo sang during the mass.

Friends of Miss Esther Fahey, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Fahey of North Main street will be pleased to learn she is rapidly improving after undergoing an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Ida Marshall of Prospect street is spending a few days visiting her sister Mrs. Jeremiah Gleason of Perth Amboy, N. J.

Many of the local boys who are attending college are making their appearance home to spend the Christmas recess at the home of their parents.

The H club held their regular meeting in their club rooms on Fourth street Monday evening with all members being present. Regular routine business was transacted with the president Albert Prodell presiding.

Daniel O'Brien of Chicago is spending a few days at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank Harrington of Eighth street.

Howard Ring has returned to his home on Prospect street after spending a few days visiting relatives in New Bedford.

John O'Shea has returned to his home in Jewett City after spending a few days at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Bridget Shea of 499 North Main street.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fontaine and family plan to move soon from McKay street to a house on North A street.

Joseph Hippmar who has been at the Ponemah house for the past few weeks has resigned his position with the No. 5 weaving department of the local mills and has left town.

Santa Claus has been paying regular visits to one of the stores in the Huntress avenue section and his arrival is always accompanied by great crowds of children. The old saint also has been noted riding around the village streets in an automobile, followed by throngs of youngsters.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand H. Lenz of Jamaica, N. Y., are expected in town this week to spend the holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Joubert and family of Bolduc lane.

Raymond Yerrington, a student at the Y. M. C. A. college at Springfield, is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington and family of South Second avenue for the holiday vacation.

Men employed by the state highway department were busy on lower Norwich avenue Tuesday touching up the rough spots with tarvia and gravel.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Lewis of Brockton, Mass., were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earle M. Wood and family of North Third avenue.

The committee recently appointed by the Taftville Rod and Gun club to investigate suitable places for game preserves have had several farms listed with them, it is understood. One of these places has found a great deal of favor with some of the sportsmen and it is likely that unless present plans miscarry, the members will have their own shooting ground in the near future.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Mary Keables, whose death occurred this week at her home on Main street, Norwich, is pleasantly remembered by the older residents on Town street, where she resided for a number of years with other members of her family.

At that time the family included a daughter, Julia, (the late Mrs. William Freeman) and a son, Nathaniel Keables; both died many years ago. Mrs. Keables frequently visited her former neighbors and friends, retaining her interest in that locality. Her death came as a shock to them, as only a short time ago she was a visitor among them.

Because so many young people will be engaged in the stores Friday evening, the meeting of the Methodist Christian Endeavor society, scheduled for that evening, has been postponed until the following Friday evening, December 30th.

When Ever Ready Circle of the Kings Daughters held a religious service at Norwich Almshouse Sunday last, others who assisted in the programme were Miss Margaret Chapin, and Frank E. Sterry. Although it was expected that Miss Bessie Whaley was to accompany for the hymns sung, Miss Chapin substituted voluntarily, also sang.

Sunday morning, prior to the worship at the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, will conduct a Christmas service at Norwich State Hospital. Rev. Mr. Bailey is to be accompanied by Theodore Sterry, violinist, also a pianist who will provide the musical program.

In addition to the decorated Christmas tree, in the show room at the plant of Julian L. Williams, other elaborate decorations have recently been placed there. The two front show windows are trimmed with spruce pine. From the center of the windows is hung a handsome wreath of evergreen and holly berries, with a large red bow. The green in all the windows is sprinkled with tufts of cotton and a crystalline substance to represent snow.

JURY FAILED TO AGREE AFTER BEING OUT NEARLY FIVE HOURS

After being out nearly five hours, the jury in the $15,000 damage suit brought against the borough of Groton by Maurice O'Donnell, Jr., of New London, was discharged Wednesday evening by Judge John Rufus Booth in the superior court as the jurymen could not reach an agreement. At 7:45 o'clock Wednesday evening the jury filed into the court room and notified the court that no agreement could be reached.

The jury took the case about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 5:15 o'clock filed into the court room. Asked by the court clerk if they had reached an agreement, the foreman said "we have not." Judge Booth asked the jury to take the case under further consideration and about 5.20 o'clock they again retired to the jury room. At 6:55 o'clock the jurymen again reported that they could not reach an agreement and were again requested to retire for further consideration.

The morning session and part of the afternoon session were devoted to the arguments by counsel for plaintiff and defendant and the judge's charge to the jury. Mr. O'Donnell brought the suit against the borough of Groton for injuries received on May 21, last, when a boiler exploded at the plant of the water and light department. The borough's defense to the action, it was said, was that the plaintiff, O'Donnell was unskillful in his profession as a welder, and it was due to his negligence that the explosion occurred.

ROTARY CLUB PLAYS SANTA CLAUS TO BOYS

As has been the custom for a number of years the Norwich Rotary club observed the Yuletide season with a special Christmas programme at the meeting held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. A Christmas carol programme under the direction of William G. Park and Henry J. LaFontaine was carried out assisted by a double quartet, Eben Learned, Frank G. Aubrey, F. Russell Smith, Flint Brayton, William G. Park, Frank R. Murdy, James E. Roantree and Henry J. LaFontaine. The club also sang many of the Christmas numbers.

The room was decorated in seasonal evergreens, holly and other Christmas decorations there being two brilliantly lighted Christmas trees at one corner of the room. Under the trees were some 60 packages which, Edwin A. Harris, informed the club members had been left there by Santa Claus who was seeking the assistance of the Rotarians in distributing to needy boys in Norwich. Each Rotarian was given a package with a boy's name on it and was told to deliver it as an ambassador of St. Nicholas. The gifts included sweaters, shoes and other wearing apparel for the youngsters.

With Harold D. Larabee in charge there was a brief history of St. Nicholas given by Judge Nelson J. Alying. St. Nicholas, patron saint of the children, and predominating personality of the Yuletide season, had a remarkable record of good deeds among the poor during his stay on earth. Another Christmas story was read by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell.

At the business session at which Clarence A. Spear presided, Secretary Edward L. Jewett read an invitation from the Norwich Fish and Game association to attend a lecture at the Community house on the evening of Jan. 5th.

Arthur M. Brown speaking for the Women's City Club called attention to the meeting at the office of the highway commissioner in Hartford this (Thursday) morning at 11 o'clock, relative to the straightening of the Military highway at the Pines in Preston. Mr. Brown said that the City club was opposed to the destruction of any of the pines that make this road a beauty spot of eastern Connecticut.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell called attention of the meeting to the fact that present at the meeting was John Alden and Myles Standish, descendants of the two principal characters in the Plymouth romance, made famous by the immortal Longfellow. The two met, shook hands and declared that time had erased any ill feeling, if there ever was any, and that both were able to speak for themselves. Priscilla was not present at the meeting.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

COMFORT CIRCLE GIFTS FOR SHELTERING ARMS TREE

Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters held its meeting Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Edward L. Greene, of Yerrington avenue, Laurel Hill, with an attendance of sixteen. The leader, Mrs. A. T. Utley had charge of the brief business meeting, during which it was reported by Mrs. John A. Phillips, chairman of the work committee that eighteen aprons were completed, daintily tied up and ready to be hung on the Christmas tree at the Sheltering Arms, Saturday evening for the women members of that household. Handkerchiefs are being provided for the men. It was voted to send a basket of fruit to Mrs. Frank Case, a member of the social committee, who continues ill.

Mrs. Greene and the members of the social committee then served a lunch of escalloped oysters, sandwiches, cake, and tea, with candy, making a Christmas party of the remainder of the afternoon.

THREE NORWICH MEN ENLIST IN U. S. NAVY

The quota of 45 enlistments assigned by the navy department for the state of Connecticut was filled Wednesday. No further enlistments will be made until December 30, the beginning of the recruiting month.

The local navy recruiting station, post office building, New London, was assigned the quota of four men. Out of four men enlisted at the station, three men had one or more years of high school training.

The local office established a record for the month of December by having 22 applications for enlistments, several of these men being placed on the waiting list for the January quota.

The navy department has assigned a quota of 32 first enlistments for the month of January, for the state. No quotas are placed on re-enlistments. The city of Norwich supplied three men for the New London quota.

FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND INCREASED BY $50 CHECK

Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department has received from Frank B. Ricketson, agent of the Ponemah mills, a check for $50 to be added to the firemen's pension fund. The check was sent in appreciation of the efficient services of the local firemen in combatting the flames which badly damaged the Ponemah company's barn at Taftville recently.

COURTS MUST SETTLE BUS TAX QUESTION

The question as to whether or not the city and town of Norwich will be able to collect taxes assessed against busses of the Connecticut Co., will have to be settled in the courts.

Since the last session of the general assembly, this question has been hanging fire, and each town where Connecticut busses are located have threatened the Connecticut company with a court process. In an effort to collect the tax alleged to be due them from the Connecticut company. The Connecticut company claim that they do noe owe any taxes, and in an effort to clear up their books have brought state-wide civil actions claiming:

1. A judgment declaring the assessment upon the busses, and the taxes laid thereon to be illegal and void.
2. An injunction restraining the city or town from collecting the tax.
3. Such other and further relief as to justice and equity appertain.

The city and town of Norwich have attempted to collect a tax of $1,742.62 upon seven busses of the Connecticut company, located in this city, and which were assessed for $60,619. When the city and town refused to take court action to collect the taxes, the Connecticut company brought the following action against the town and city, according to papers served by Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton.

Your applicant is a common carrier engaged in the business of transporting persons and property, and lawfully authorized to operate, and operating in many cities and towns within the state, including the city of Norwich, both electric railway street cars and motor busses.

In the year 1922, and every year thereafter, including the year 1927, your applicant, as required by law, reported to the tax commissioner of the state of Connecticut its gross earnings from all sources from operations in this state, both from street railway cars and from motor busses for the preceding calendar year.

Thereafter in each of said years the state board of equalization determined the amount of such gross earnings and thereafter laid a tax of three per cent. upon such earnings and deducted from the amount of such tax the amount of taxes paid by your applicant during the calendar year prior to the laying of said tax, upon the real estate owned by your applicant not used exclusively in the business of such corporation, or required by law. The tax so determined, less such deduction, was in each of said years, including the year 1927, paid by your applicant to the state treasurer on or before July 15, as required by law.

As of Oct. 1, 1926, the assessors of the town of Norwich assessed as the property of the applicant seven motor busses owned and operated by the applicant in the city of Norwich and other neighboring towns, and on said day located in the city of Norwich.

Said assessors assessed for taxation, as taxable property belonging to your applicant said seven motor busses at a valuation of $60,618; being the cost price of said busses, although all of them had been for some time in actual use and operation.

Thereafter a tax was laid by the city of Norwich upon the assessment of $1,742.62, and a bill for said amount was rendered to the applicant, including a statement that the same would be due and payable on the 10th day of October, 1927.

Said tax has not been paid, nor any part thereof.

That by law no tax can be laid by any municipality upon any of the personal property of the applicant, but the tax paid to the state of Connecticut is declared by statute to be in lieu of all other taxes in the state for the year for which such statement is required to be made, upon the rights, franchises, funded and floating debt and property of the corporation in this state, except upon real estate "not used exclusively in the business of such corporation."

The tax assessed and laid as aforesaid is illegal and void, and said property was non-taxable in the city of Norwich.

Both counsel for the city, William H. Shields, Jr., and counsel for the town, H. H. Pettis, are to contest the application brought in the superior court for this county by the Connecticut company, and an effort will be made to collect the taxes due.

Although there was a public act passed at the last session of the general assembly, relative to towns and cities being unable to collect taxes assessed on busses of the Connecticut company, it was said here that there was a good chance of collecting one of the taxes here, as there was some question relative to the property being assessed and taxed before the act was passed.

All of the applications brought by the Connecticut company practically hinge upon the same question, and it is expected that the first tried and decided, will form as the basis for deciding the others.

An effort is being made, it was said, to have the municipalities which are named in the petitions brought by the Connecticut company, to band together and fight the petition in this state.

CATHOLIC COUNCIL BRANCH PROVIDES CHRISTMAS CHEER

The Christmas activities of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Norwich branch, started this week by a visit to the Norwich State hospital. A committee consisting of Miss Mary Hartle, chairman, aided by Mrs. James O'Neil, Mrs. Thomas McVeigh and Mrs. John R. Tarrant brought pleasure to about two hundred patients, the elderly and those confined to bed, in that section of the institution visited. Cakes, fruit, candy and ice cream were served, followed by a pleasant visit with the patients. Miss Hartle and her committee provided much happiness for these shut-ins, most of whom are without relatives or friends.

BOY SCOUTS HAVE RENOVATED 400 TOYS

For three weeks the Boy Scouts of Norwich, under the supervision of Scout Executive Frederick J. Bielefeld have ben at work repairing discarded toys to be distributed to the poor children of Norwich.

The public entered into this spirit of bringing a little joy to poor children and toys began to come to Scout headquarters, first slowly, and eventually they reached such proportion that the headquarters were hardly large enough to hold all the gifts contributed.

Those who visited the Scout headquarters in the last few weeks found it to be a veritable toy hospital. The zeal of the boys in fixing these toys was a revelation to the elders who watched their enthusiasm. The toys when repaired numbered about four hundred, covering all kinds and varieties and were handed to the United Workers for distribution.

A notable feature of this fine work of the boys was to watch their diligence and ability in repairing toys that looked to be in a complete dilapidated condition. The operations made to the most injured toys were really very interesting and masterfully performed.

After going through the Boy Scout toy hospital most of the toys looked like new. The operation consumed a number of cakes of Bon-ami for scouring the toys and several gallons of paint in repairing the old ones. Some toys minus large wheels were supplied with small ones and the remaining large wheels were used for velocipedes. Other notable grafting operations were performed which were witnesses of the ingenuity of the boys.

The happiness of the Boy Scouts in having rendered a good turn can hardly be described. It proves that the heart of the Norwich boy is in the right place and also that the Scout organization always tends to bring out the best and noblest part of the boy's character.

HICKMAN, ALLEGED SLAYER OF MARIAN PARKER, WAS CAPTURED AT ECHO, ORE. ADMITS ABDUCTION, BUT DENIES MURDER

The Youthful Demon Was Captured Yesterday Afternoon—Hickman Broke Down and Declared That He Had No Part in the Killing of the Girl—Accused an Accomplice, Andrew Cramer of Los Angeles, of the Atrocious Crime—Made an Incoherent Confession of the Crime and Events Leading Thereto.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 20—(AP)—Snow in the Snoqualmie Pass in the Cascade Mountains caused William Edward Hickman to turn southward again after reaching Seattle, Chief of Police Tom Gurdane of Pendleton, Ore., who assisted in the capture of the fugitive, said tonight.

The chief said that Hickman offered no resistance when he and Buck Lieuallen, state highway patrolman, halted his car near Echo, 20 miles west of Pendleton. The two officers searched Hickman after he admitted his identity, finding $1,400 and a revolver in his pockets. A second revolver and a sawed-off shotgun were found in his car.

His bravado in appearing at gasoline filling stations and other public places, without immediately creating suspicion, apparently was the chief element in his ability to evade detection in the face of one of the greatest man hunts in history.

Hickman walked into a haberdashery in the downtown district here last night and purchased a pair of black gloves and suit of underwear. He gave a $20 bill payment. George V. Willoughby, proprietor of the store, suspected that his customer was Hickman, but made no effort to detain him.

As soon as the customer had left the store, Willoughby telephoned the police and verified the fact that the serial number on the bill corresponded to one of those obtained as ransom by the kidnaper of the Parker girl.

Squads of police immediately were sent out to comb the city, but the "Fox" eluded them.

Then it was found today that the trail led to the Valley Garage at Kent, a suburb, where a youth driving the green Hudson sedan bearing the license number of the car stolen in Hollywood, passed another $20 bill. A check showed that this bill also was part of the ransom money.

Reports were received by the police that a set of Washington license plates were stolen at Kent, leading to the belief that Hickman had disposed of the tell-tale California license number by which he had been traced.

INCOHERENT STATEMENT OF KIDNAPING AND MURDER

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 22—(AP)—William E. Hickman, 19, tonight told a broken story of the kidnaping of Marian Parker, 12 year old Los Angeles girl, and at the same time endeavored desperately to shift the blame for the mutilation of the girl upon the shoulders of his "partner"—a man he named as "Andrew Cramer."

Hickman's story, told soon after his capture today to Parker Branin, correspondent of The Associated Press, was broken, at times incoherent. He told how he had planned the kidnaping of the girl in order to raise enough money to attend college. The youth said he had not been cruel to her.

"Question—Where is your partner?"

"A.—He said for me to meet him at the Harris hotel in San Francisco on Sunday. But he was not there, so Tuesday morning I saw they had my name so I got real scared then I planned to get away myself. I thought I would get away north because they were searching in San Francisco, as I read about it in the papers and there was nothing I could do. After I saw him in Los Angeles, according to our appointment, I said 'Where is the girl,' and he just kind of grinned and I said 'Where——'

"When the father met me by appointment he spoke and said: 'I want to see my daughter,' and I said 'She is here,' and I think I said she was asleep and I told him to give me the money. I have had trouble with her and then he gave me the money right there and I told him I would drive up there a little way and let her out and I drove out a little way.'

Question: 'What was it cut her that way?'

"This fellow named Andrew Cramer, his part was——I ran away from home and I was in California and had been working in the First National bank and forged checks and got paroled and went back to Kansas City with my mother and I wanted to go back again so I then——so I got this coupe in Kansas City which belonged to Dr.

OLIVER ANDREW CRAMER HAD CRIMINAL RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The sheriff's office revealed tonight that its records listed an Oliver Andrew Cramer as a criminal arrested here several times on various charges of grand larceny and possessing narcotics, robbery and assault with a deadly weapon. His criminal record dated back as far as 1920 and he was last arrested April 27, 1927, for burglary.

The records showed that Cramer was released on bond last April following his arrest on the burglary charge, and that he had fled the bond. He was described as being five feet three and three quarters inches tall, age 23, weight 165, hair brown, and was a drug addict. The man's height and age did not tally with that given by Hickman, but the sheriff's office said that further checkup on the man was being made.

HICKMAN INDICTED FOR KIDNAPING AND MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 22—(AP)—William E. Hickman, held at Pendleton, Ore., tonight was indicted by the county grand jury as the kidnaper and murderer of Marian Parker.

It was a banquet of "invisible guests" at which the participants were present in spirit and not in person, all being represented by letters worded as though the writers were actually assembled at a festive board and paying tribute to Mr. Kirby as the man who has taught society how to carry the spirit of Christmas throughout the year.

The various letters of greeting were assembled in a testimony volume of Hugh Weir and presented to Mr. Kirby as a permanent record of the occasion. The invocation was pronounced by Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. and Judge Henry A. Fuller, Judge F. Wheaton and Mayor Daniel S. Hart of this city read the various letters.

MAN PULLED FROM AUTO AND SEVERELY BEATEN

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 22—(AP)—Reports of a shooting affair in West Water street tonight were denied by police who said that although a man had been pulled from an automobile and given a severe beating by several other men, there was "nothing to give out on it."

That there was some sort of a mix-up in West Water street was attested to by residents of the street but no one seemed to know what it was all about or even that the police had taken a hand in it.

VATICAN SEES WARNING IN DISASTER OF THE S-4

ROME, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The vatican the characterization Romano, applies the characterization "a tragic warning" to the sinking of the United States submarine S-4. It notes that the disaster occurred "at a time when armaments competition is being resumed with tenacity and implacability."

The vatican mouthpiece then launches into a drive against submarine warfare generally, and, in view of the numerous submarine disasters in peace time, includes: "If one has faith one can well meditate that all such tragedies are most potent appeals for justice on the part of divine universal providence, abhorrent of human fratricidal preparation and victims fall in unequalled myrtyrdom, not for a sacrifice consummated in ways of elevation, progress, peace and the fraternity of peoples, but in what despair, what odious conditions, what barbarity!"

TUG FAST ASHORE ON THE HEN AND CHICKENS REEF

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 22—(AP)—Tugs Salutation, Elmer W. Keeler, John Duff, J. T. Sherman, a 125 foot U. S. destroyer and three 75 foot coast guard boats pulling on the tug Setter of the McWilliams Blue Line of New York, which went ashore on Hen and Chickens Reef early this morning, failed to move the craft at high tide this evening. Besides the craft named, the picket boat and the life boat from the Cuttyhunk coast guard station were standing by.

The craft has a bad list to port, and some doubts were expressed tonight as to whether she could be saved or not, as she is high and dry on the reef. However, efforts to save the craft will not be abandoned for a few days, and tonight a telegram was sent to the tugs owners to forward more wrecking apparatus, and a try would be made with a shore gang of wreckers.

Mrs. Lindbergh Has Landed In Mexico City

As She Stepped From Plane, Mrs. Lindbergh Carried Flags of Mex. and the U. S.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The first woman to fly from the United States to Mexico, mother of the first man to fly from New York to Paris and from Washington to Mexico City, had only one moment of fear on a 2,000-mile trip from Detroit.

The moment was when Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh and her famous son landed at Valbuena field in different planes. The fear was not for herself or for her son, but for the eager spectators who rushed toward the down-coming plane to welcome the flyer and his mother. Without the police control deemed necessary when Charles A. Lindbergh himself first arrived last week, 2,000 or more persons gathered to witness the arrival of Mrs. Lindbergh, twice forced her son back into the air after landing, in order to avoid damage to the crowd or to his plane.

Mrs. Lindbergh landed at 3:44 p. m., from Tampico, her last stop. Colonel Lindbergh had gone out in the "Spirit of St. Louis" to meet her and escort her three-motored Ford cabin plane to the field.

The young man left the field about 50 minutes before his mother's arrival but missed her and returned about 5 minutes after she had landed. Only a few police were present. His admirers forced him to circle about the field for nearly an hour before he could get the "Spirit of St. Louis" safely into a hangar. Meantime, his mother was taken to the American embassy in the city in an automobile with Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow.

When Lindbergh first landed the crowd rushed toward him and he promptly took to the air. He circled about for some time and finally landed in a nearby field. Again the crowd streamed toward him, and again he took to the air. Valbuena field had been vacated and he seized the opportunity to land near a hangar and rushed the "Spirit of St. Louis" into safety before the crowd could reach it. He then followed his mother to the embassy in another automobile.

Mrs. Lindbergh stepped from the plane that brought her from Detroit, stopping at several cities, dressed in a maroon-colored travelling dress, a black coat with a fur collar, black hat, shoes, and handbag. She wore an aviation emblem in the buttonhole of her coat lapel and carried Mexican and American flags in her hand. The edging crowd cheered loudly and yelled, "Bravo, Senora Lindbergh."

President Calles was not among the welcomers, nor were any cabinet members, as she is not a guest of the government like her son, but a private visitor of Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow. However, General Alvarez, chief of the presidential staff, was present as personal representatives of the president and was the first person to greet her.

As soon as Mrs. Lindbergh's plane landed, General Alvarez stepped into the cabin and presented her with a great bouquet of poinsettias. He then extended on behalf of the president, a message of warm welcome from the chief executive and the Mexican government.

Mrs. Lindbergh told him that, "the entire United States has been thrilled by evidences of Mexican friendship for our country since my son has been here."

YALE HAS PASSED GOAL IN DRIVE FOR $20,000,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The goal has been passed in Yale University's drive for a $20,000,000 endowment fund, Otto T. Bannard, national chairman for the fund, announced today. The total today had reached $20,210,573, and is still growing, he told the New York Yale committee.

The project to add $20,000,000 to the endowment of Yale University, none of which was to be used for building purposes, outlined by President James Rowland Angell in February, 1926, for a "a finer, not a bigger Yale."

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER HELPED SAVE LIVES

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—A man arrested as an embezzler today turned life saver and asisted two detectives in removing residents from a burning tenement building.

The prisoner, William Byrne, 36 years old, with his captors dashed into the building, roused the residents and assisted in herding them in the street. He then returned to the officers and proceeded to court to face charges of embezzling $8,100 from a Brooklyn firm where he was employed as cashier.

YOUTHFUL MANIAC KILLED WOMAN AND WOUNDED FATHER, MOTHER, SHERIFF

BRUNSWICK, Me., Dec. 22—(AP)—One woman is dead, another critically wounded while a deputy sheriff was hovering between life and death and two men were being treated for wounds and injuries suffered as the outcome of a youthful maniac's mad attacks, escape and capture, effected today.

Raymond Petit, 23, insane cripple with artificial feet who, wielding a rolling pin, beat Mrs. M. A. White, 78, of Topsham, to death, in a lonely farm house today, after shooting his father and mother, in their home, late yesterday, suffered a slight revolver wound, when he was finally taken. He will probably recover.

Barricaded in an upstairs room in the house where he had atacked and killed the unsuspecting and elderly Mrs. White, Petit, a former inmate of a state asylum, surrendered to the national guardsmen, citizens' posse and police deputies after a broadside of bulets had been poured through the door, one of which found its mark, striking him in the breast bone, and glancing off.

After the shooting of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Petit, which came an instant after the father had dashed into the house to save Mrs. Petit from having her head battered with a huge stone hammer, which the mad man held up raised in one hand, choking the mother with the other, the cripple made for the woods, with his shotgun and a supply of loaded shells. The peculiar tracks made by his artificial feet, obtained several years ago when freight car wheels severed his feet, aided the large posse in tracking him through the night.

Unable to overtake him, citizens and sheriff's men were reinforced early today by national guardsmen. Around mid-day Deputy George W. Gerow, of Yarmouth and Alfred J. Le Tarte, a driver of the Brunswick fire department, sighted Petit in a field and ordered him to halt.

The command being refused, Le Tarte fired, the bullet missing its mark. Petit ran to the Tedford house. As the two men followed toward the building with Albion Tedford, the owner, who was unaware of the countrywide search going on, a noise, first believed to have been the report of a shotgun, was heard.

As they entered, Tedford looked toward the kitchen and saw his aged sister, Mrs. White, lying on the floor, dead. A bloody rolling pin bore grim evidence of the attack on the unsuspecting woman, who, like her brother, had not learned that an insane man was at large.

NO LONGER DOUBT THAT ALL THE MEN ON THE S-4 ARE DEAD

Hope Was Definitely Abandoned Yesterday by Admiral Brumby—Decision Was Reached After Signals Sent by the Oscillators of the Falcon Remained Unanswered—Naval Officers Have Decided That the Ill-Fated Submarine Will Not Be Raised Until Next Spring.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 22—(AP)—Hope for the rescue of six men imprisoned in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4, was definitely abandoned today. Admiral Frank H. Brumby, directing the work of salvage, announced that there was no longer doubt that the men were dead. The officers associated with him in the operations shared the admiral's opinion.

The S-4 had been at the bottom of the sea off Provincetown harbor for just 113 hours when it was finally decided that the six men who had fought a gallant battle for life in her torpedo compartment no longer survived. It was not until air lines, attached to the listening device of the torpedo room by a method never before carried out, had been pumping fresh air into the compartment for 13 hours that hope was at last given up. Signals sent by the oscillator of the Falcon remained unanswered, and all was still in the battered hull of the submarine. The rescurers regretfully admitted it was the end.

Throughout the day, however, diver after diver went down to the S-4 to survey the hull and ascertain whether it was too deeply imbedded in mud to permit of raising. The reports briefly indicated that the bow of the wreck was fairly free of the mud for a distance of 18 feet; that midships the ooze reached half way up the hull, and the stern was partially submerged. Conditions, the divers reported, were better than they had expected in view of the soft bottom at the position of the collision.

Six divers, including Commander Ellsberg, were lowered to the S-4 today. The second man to go down, James Ingram, developed a leak in his diving suit and was hauled from the water after being submerged 35 minutes. The only other mishap of the day had Commander Ellsberg as victim. On his first descent at 2 o'clock this afternoon he was forced to the surface after 20 minutes by a leaking air valve. After repairs were made the officer descended once more, remaining this time more than an hour. He was apparently in great pain when he emerged and was hurried to the decompression room for treatment.

While Commander Ellsberg was down, Diver W. J. Carr was lowered with a compressed air hose, and began the work of blowing an opening in the mud under the fore part of the S-4 to determine whether a chain could be passed thrugh.

Diver Tom Eadie, one of those who worked today, examined the stern of the submarine and brought back the news that the horizontal rudder of the S-4 was at 15 degrees indicating that she was rising sharply at the time of her collision with the coast guard Paulding. The vertical rudder was 15 degrees to the left.

Even after Admiral Brumby had announced that all hope had been abandoned of reviving the men in the torpedo room of the S-4, the Falcon continued to force air into the compartment. The returning air was much purer than when the air hose was first applied last night, but continued to carry a reek resembling rancid oil. The only explanation of this offered by naval officers was that the men imprisoned in the S-4 had opened the torpedoes to release the compressed air and that the oil had also escaped.

Divers reported that the torpedo tube shutters of the submarine were closed, indicating that the doomed men had made no attempt to escape in that way.

Tests of the air which returned from the torpedo room immediately after the air was turned on last night showed today that the air contained two per cent of carbon dioxide.

SUNKEN SUB WILL NOT BE RAISED TILL NEXT SPRING

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 22—(AP)—The sunken submarine S-4 which lies in 17 fathoms of water off this harbor will not be raised until next spring. Officers of the fleet of naval vessels assembled here to salvage the vessel let this fact be definitely known tonight.

Rear Admiral Fank H. Brumby, directing salvage operations said the work would go on while weather conditions remained favorable, but said that as soon as normal winter weather set in it would be suspended.

"We are going ahead with this work as fast as we can until the weather halts it or the navy department calls operations off," he said. "Then we will cease until spring and the work that is being done now will not have to be repeated."

The statement was made after a day of activity during which 10 divers descended to the sunken submarine and Commander Edward Ellsberg, in charge of diving operations, almost lost his life when he became bogged in the mud on the ocean floor.

From 11 o'clock in the forenoon when Admiral Brumby announced that there was no longer possibility that life remained in the torpedo room of the S-4, where six men had been imprisoned since last Saturday, the impression grew that rescue efforts had changed to a routine salvage operation, and that this would not be completed in the winter months.

FACTS ESTABLISHED BY SURVEY OF SUNKEN SUB S-4

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Divers who surveyed the sunken submarine S-4 today established these facts:

The vertical rudder is 15 degrees left, showing that the helmsman had attempted to turn sharply out to sea to avoid collision with the destroyer Paulding.

The horizontal rudder is 15 degrees up, indicating that the submarine was coming sharply to the surface when rammed.

The upper torpedo shutters are closed. The lower shutters are apparently closed but are covered by mud.

The vessel had a list of three degrees to starboard. The mud at the bow is one foot deep under the turn of the forefoot. At the conning tower it is fit feet above the keel level. At the stern skag it is about two feet deep.

GANGSTER CAPONE HEAVILY FINED IN JOLIET, ILL.

JOLIET, Ills., Dec. 22—(AP)—"Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago gang chief, gave until it hurt in making two court appearances here today, and when his benevolences had been concluded, the city's coffers were richer by $1,000, the county's by $1,600.

Capone's philanthropies were occasioned by the fact that the gang leader and half a dozen or his henchmen toted pistols within the confines of the city of Joliet and the county of Will, the occasion being Capone's return last week from Los Angeles when he elected to detrain at Joliet and continue his journey to Chicago by motor. Half a dozen of his friends, some of them armed, met him at the station and the Joliet police arrested everybody.

The gang chieftain and six friends first appeared in municipal court frankly admitted they had pistols along last week and the gang leader and four of his companions were fined $200 and costs each. Charges against two others were dismissed. Then all of them trouped over before County Judge Adams where the procedure was repeated except that the fines were $300 and costs each.

Capone peeled one $1,000 bill and six $100 bills off a fat roll and told the county clerk to give the $10.20 change to the Salvation Army Santa Claus down on the corner.

"I hope this will be a lesson to you" admonished the court, "not to carry fire arms."

"Well," grinned Capone, "I won't any more—in Joliet."

HELD IN $1,000 ON CHARGE OF BREACH OF PEACE

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 22—(AP)—After several hours questioning by detectives at police headquarters, where he was brought from Stamford this afternoon, Edward Williams, 26, single and unemployed, was held on a charge of breach of the peace under bail of $1,000 for further investigation. He was turned over to the local police by Stamford authorities, who believed that Williams would bear examination as a suspect in the search for the phantom stabber.

So far as is known, Williams has no criminal record. He told the police that he left Bridgeport last winter, went to New York, where he worked for a while, and several months ago went to Stamford where he said he had been unable to obtain employment.

Williams' description tallies in some respects with some of the descriptions given by the 25 girls who have been victims of the phantom stabber. The police do not believe that he can be connected with the stabbing cases, but he is being held until examination of his record has been completed.

APPARATUS FOR SENDING OF PICTURES BY RADIO

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—How does your face sound over the radio? The answer to this is expected to be the next step in the rapid development of the radio.

Shortly after New Year's there are going to be public tests of an apparatus invented by Austin G. Cooley for sending pictures by radio.

The way it is done, Edgar H. Felix, radio expert associated with the inventor, told the Associated Press today, is to transform light waves from a person or group at the microphone into sound waves, transmit them as such by radio broadcast, and then turn them back into light waves so that they reproduce a picture of the place they started from.

The tests to be made next month will broadcast over station WOR of Newark, N. J., and receiving apparatus has been installed in 20 homes within a radius of 10 miles.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTS TO SALVAGE PONTOON

NEW LONDON, Dec. 22—(AP)—A pontoon which broke adrift from the tug Iuka while being towed from the Brooklyn navy yard to the scene of the S-4 disaster off Provincetown, Mass. has sunk in 18 feet of water off Horton's Point, L. I., the U. S. S. Chewink reported tonight.

The Chewink and other naval craft have been making unsuccessful attempts to salvage the pontoon since it broke away from the Iuka more than three days ago. The Iuka proceeded to the rescue fleet off Provincetown with two other pontoons which it had in tow.

During the rough weather early this week, the lost pontoon was swept on the rocks of Horton's Point, and the constant battering of the waves caused it to fill with water and sink.

There is interest here in the invention of an "automobile Pullman" by Joseph Kroll, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who resided in this city up to a year ago and was proprietor of the Capitol Cash market, having been previously in partnership of the Liberty Cash Market. Mr. Kroll had a device that permits the transforming of the seats of a standard model sedan into comfortable sleeping quarters in one simple operation. He has succeeded in overcoming the complicated mechanism previously used in converting seats into a bed, having eliminated all moving parts and using but a few bolts. The back of the front seat is lowered to the level of the rear seat and storage space is provided in compartments beneath the seats.

Steam, escaping from a radiator in the temporary office of the construction firm of Bartlett and Brainard, near the new school building on Valley street, led a passerby to believe that there was a fire early this morning and Engine Company No. 1 was called out in answer to a bell alarm from Box 17 corner of Windham and Valley streets.

SHOPLIFTERS LET OFF THROUGH KINDNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 22—Hazard Arremony of the firm of Arremoney & Son stated Wednesday night that for a few days jewelry had been disappearing from the store counters. Four girls ranging from thirteen to fifteen were suspected and Deputy Sheriff Dolan was acquainted with the facts. Inside of an hour he came to the store with the stolen articles, including rosary beads, a lavaliere, locket, compact and pencil. "Although the girls are old enough to know what thieving is, Mr Arremoney withheld their names and did not have them arrested, as he said he did not want to hurt their reputations.

Passersby are admiring the electrical display at the entrance to the home of Earle E. Gilbert on East Main St. The evergreen trees bordering the piazza and front of the house and two small trees placed on the sides of the store are lighted with gaily colored lights each night.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON LINKED WITH WATERBURY CASE BY REVOLVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 22.—A revolver that was the means of sending one man to jail—where he remains—was figuring in the checking up of some loose ends of a case involving the killing of a man in what appears to be a rum row at the Stoffe inn on the Bethany road, not distant from Waterbury, yesterday.

The revolver was confiscated in the town court here Monday, December 12, as an incident of an interesting case. On Sunday, December 11, Guiseppe Lombardi, operating a closed car with a Rhode Island registration, found himself and his companion, Isadore Arrick, of New Haven, in something of a mess when the machine turned over coming down Hall's hill. This was during the afternoon and while it was raining smartly.

A telephone message from that vicinity sent state officers from the Danielson barracks over to the wreck, and, meanwhile, people who happened to come along in other machines stopped to see what was going on.

Among those who stopped were Mr. and Mrs. George Pearl, of Hampton, with their two young sons. Watching, as boys will, the Pearl youngsters saw Lombardi rid himself of a pearl-handled revolver and place it on the ground near the rear wheel of the machine that had been driven over by State Officer Donald J. Geddes. That act, when promptly reported to the state officers, resulted in the taking of Lombardi and his companion, Arrick, into custody.

In court the following morning, Lombardi was arraigned on two charges—carrying concealed weapons, which he denied, and driving a car with license plates not assigned to it, this fact being established after his arrest. Lombardi was found guilty on both counts and the fines and costs imposed amounted to $229.82. He went to jail to work out the fines, being unable to pay, and still remains there, though when he went over, it was understood that friends would come forward within a few hours to bring about his release.

Arrick, charged with vagrancy, for lack of something more serious to place against him, was discharged by the court. He was well dressed and had plenty of money with him. He has a criminal record and about a year ago was released after doing a term in the state prison.

All of which brings one to the point of relating that while Arrick was held here, one Alexander Mozzone, a part owner of the Stoffe inn, on the Bethany road, came here to go bonds for Arrick if that proved necessary.

Yesterday, during the early hours of the morning, Michael Andriaccio, 31, of Waterbury, went, with a companion, to the Stoffe inn with the avowed purpose of killing Mozzone. They terrorized inmates of the place who were awake with their threats and with the double-barrelled shotgun and .44 calibre revolver that they had between them and rushed upstairs into Mozzone's room, and that Mozzone opened fire with another shot gun, killing Andriaccio.

There is a tie-in somewhere in the case for the revolver that Lombardi attempted to rid himself of in this town, and interest in the weapon is heightened because, it would appear, numbers it should carry probably have been filed from it.

DANIELSON POSTOFFICE IS HANDLING RECORD BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 22.—The postal force at Danielson office are undergoing a grind that approximates in some considerable degree the grind that besets those who take part in a six-day bicycle race. If any group of workers have put in a more strenuous week than have all the force from Postmaster E. H. Keach, right down through the list, hereabouts, one has failed to hear about it.

It was indicated tonight that the amount of business transacted this week will have, by Saturday night, broken all records for any Christmas week—or other week—in the history of the Danielson office.

A measure of the volume of business may be indicated that 165 sacks of mail arrived here on one train. In all his 21 years as carrier on the star route between Danielson and Brooklyn, Frank Spaulding has never at one time carried such loads of mail as this year has produced.

The office force was fairly swamped with work this morning, but by 11 o'clock all first class mail, including that arriving by truck from points north at 10 a. m., had been distributed. Meanwhile the steady siege of handling parcel post and other mail proceeded.

There were indications this afternoon that the flood of the outgoing mail had reached its peak, but the incoming business was swelling to even greater proportions than in the early days of the week.

The office force is wearied with the long hours and endless toil, but still going strong and efficiently. They may be acclaimed as doing, many times their bit in a Christmas season that apparently abounds in prosperity.

On Sunday and on Monday the office will be closed all day. However, the city carriers will cover their regular routes up to the noon hour on Monday, and on that day also rural carriers will go over regular trips. It is anticipated that practically all Christmas matter will be delivered by noon of Monday. The office lobby will be open as usual on Sunday and also on Monday.

CHIEF McFARLAND REVEALS HIS ANCESTRY AS PURELY SCOTCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 22.—Chief John McFarland shared in the amusement of newspapermen, business men and members of the Chamber of Commerce today when he was asked as to his ancestry, and it all came about because someone over in Sterling has insinuated in a letter sent to the press that the officer is partial to the Irish when it comes to enforcing parking regulations in Danielson. That's the real laugh of Christmas week in this town.

Chief McFarland happens to be a thoroughbred American citizen of pure Scotch ancestry. He is of the type that does his work without fear or favor. Ridiculous as the insinuation may appear, it is in the class of things that do happen. No man gets special favors from Chief McFarland on any racial ground, nor is he ever discriminated against because of ancestry. He is engaged in impartial enforcement of the law, with equal and fair treatment assured everyone. It seems hardly necessary to relate that a "Mc" may come from either Erin or Bonny Scotland, and it is never safe to draw conclusions too hurriedly, as to which.

This week-end will bring a respite from their labors for more than 1,000 operatives in the Powdrell-Alexander mills in Danielson and other communities of the town of Killingly. When the plants close at noon Saturday they are to remain closed through the final week of the year, re-opening on the first Tuesday in January. Meanwhile men charged with the duty of setting up additional looms or making changes of machines from one mill to another of the five operated by the company, will be busy every day making changes that will be in line with getting greater production and a higher degree of efficiency.

Officer Martin Wolfe on night duty at Goodyear has just received his insignia of office as vice president of the Connecticut State Police association, an honor conferred him last August, when the association held its 25th annual meeting in New Haven. The association membership is representative of police departments throughout Connecticut.

Plans are being considered looking toward an organization among the high school athletic teams in this end of the state. Although such an organization will center around Norwich and New London and the schools in these cities and the towns near them, provision is to be made for a northern branch of the organization to include the schools in Putnam, Danielson and Plainfield and perhaps those in Woodstock and North Grosvenordale. For the past five years, since the breakup of the old Quinebaug Valley league, Putnam and the schools nearby have had no league organization.

The following are the outstanding special events of the Y. M. C. A. boys during the past year:

First—State Older Boys conference held at New Haven at which 38 Windham county representatives attended. The conference was significant in four respects. First, it was the opening conference of the season in the nation-wide series of older boys' conferences; second, it was the largest gathering of its kind ever held in Connecticut as seven hundred and seventy-seven boys and adult delegates from one hundred and thirty cities and villages; third, the delegates evidenced an especially strong interest in the theme "Practising World Brotherhood" and a deep concern for making the theme function in their lives; fourth, the conference voted to invite all the other older boys' conferences of the country next year to simultaneously discuss some theme which would be selected by a national representative assembly of boys called together for the purpose.

Second—Special Windham County Y. M. C. A. trip to Brown-New Hampshire game on Saturday, November 19th at Providence. 550 Windham county boys were transported in over a hundred cars, ten towns being represented.

Third—Special educational trip to New London which included a trip to the submarine base.

Fourth—State aquatic meet held in Torrington Saturday, December 10th.

Fifth—Fifteen boys' groups organized at present in the county.

Sixth—Windham county Y. M. C. A. secretary elected camp manager for the coming season at Camp Woodstock.

Seventh—Removal of office from Putnam to Danielson on and after January 1. New location to be in the new Dowe building.

The regular meeting of Wabaquasset Tribe No. 63 will be held at their hall on Frone street on Friday evening, December 23, at 8:30 o'clock. There are several articles to be voted upon and it is the desire of the officers that all members make an extra effort to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Harry Cotton died this morning at her home in Quadic after a short illness of pneumonia. Mr. Cotton has been employed by the Lindeman Motor Sales company. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cotton were former residents of this city.

GUARD AGAINST CHRISTMAS FIRES

We have entered the season of Christmas trees and Christmas decorations. Some of these trees are already lighted each night, more will be over Christmas and for the next week and it is none too soon to bear in mind that none too much care can be used in establishing safeguards against fire.

The trees and the decorations furnish the right kind of kindlings for quick, brisk fires. They are easily ignited under certain conditions and it is the duty of every householder to see that such conditions do not prevail. In these days of electricity the old practice of trying to attach candles to Christmas trees should be completely abandoned. They make their contribution to a pretty picture but they involve a danger that is even more real.

Many a home has been burned out and the Christmas plans completely upset because of fires which occurred as the result of flames coming in contact with Christmas trees, with curtains or with some of the decorations which have been put in position for the holidays. Those lessons stand out vividly. They tell their own stories and it is safe to say that any one who has witnessed such fires fully understand the need of preventive measures.

It is all fine to want to make the home gay and attractive at Christmas time. That is as it should be, and that idea can be followed out under safe as well as under risky methods. If non-inflammable decorations are used, or if decorations that will burn are kept away from open flames, the fire hazards of the Christmas season will be greatly reduced.

The important thing is to see that this is given recognition sufficiently in advance to act as a preventive. Insist upon safety as well as a pretty tree or an attractively decorated home. Nothing is gained and much may be lost by disregarding such a precaution. Do not spoil the Christmas season by ignoring the mistakes which have been made by others.

WAR CLAIMS ADJUSTMENT

Had congress been able to avoid that jam at the close of the 69th congress, it is probable that action would have been taken on the alien property bill. As it was that measure was lost with a great many others.

It was inevitable that it would be revived at the present session and now that it has been done the house has proceeded to affix its approval before recessing for the holidays. This action was no more than what was expected but it goes to show that one branch of congress recognizes the need of ending this retention of property seized in the war and now held by the alien property custodian.

There are those who have maintained that this country ought to retain what it seized, others have felt that the entire amount should be returned at this time. The policy of this government has been not to confiscate the property of private citizens for war purposes.

The bill which has been adopted by the house is in keeping with the American policy, but it is a compromise between the extreme views. Under the provisions of the measure the claims of those Americans against Germany which have been approved by the mixed claims commission not in excess of $100,000 will be paid in full. Those in excess of that amount will eventually be paid in full but on the installment plan. The adjustment of the German claims against this country for ships, patents and radio stations taken during the war will be paid at the rate of 50 per cent. at once and the remainder later, while 50 per cent. of the German property now held by the alien property custodian will be paid at once and the remainder will be held to insure the payment of the entire American claims.

The senate will have a chance to express itself in regard to the terms of this measure, but it is probable that it will get early and favorable attention in that body. By this plan the German owners of the seized property will have a chance to get the early benefit of its return while those entitled to recover damages from Germany will not be obliged to wait for a period of years, which might be the case if no adjustment should be made.

THE NAVAL PROBLEM

Perhaps the time isn't ripe for further talk in regard to the further limitation of armaments, but there have nevertheless been developments which call attention to it.

Viscount Grey is not the British minister of foreign affairs at the present time, and he does not hold any cabinet office. He is not in the same close touch with government affairs that he used to be but there is significance, however, in his statement when he says, "I cannot help thinking there has been a most disastrous mishandling of the whole naval problem between us and the United States."

That is at least the opinion of a prominent British statesman. It cannot fail to carry weight. It refers to the outcome of the recent naval conference when the responsibility for failure to reach an agreement for further limitation between this country, Great Britain and Japan was placed upon the British.

What effect it may have upon influencing endeavors to resume the tripartite conference would be hard to say, but it comes at a time when Great Britain has decided upon a curtailment of its naval programme by delaying the construction of two cruisers which had been authorized.

Right now it is probable that the British are giving considerable attention to the large naval construction plan which has been set forth at Washington. They have a chance to realize that this might have been headed off had the limitation conference resulted favorably. They can appreciate that we do not contemplate building to a point that would overtop the British but it will be naval construction that will keep other countries interested. It is inevitable that they should realize the effect of limitation upon such a programme, for while under the proposed legislation the president would have the authority to halt construction much of it would probably have been made unnecessary under a limitation plan. It is not improbable that this is what Viscount Grey has in mind when making his statement, even though it was intended solely for home consumption.

CALIFORNIA'S RESPONSIBILITY

Much relief will be felt over the arrest of the young man who is alleged to have kidnapped and killed the Los Angeles school in such a fiendish manner. There was little chance that he could long remain out of the net that had been spread for him, but now that he has been caught it will be expected that there will be a prompt and thorough sifting of the facts in the case, an early trial and the imposition of such penalty as is called for following conviction.

No recent case has created such widespread indignation as that one. It seems impossible to believe that a person in his right mind could do such a thing and yet it appears to have been the culmination of a criminal inclination and practice. Determined to reach his goal, according to his statement, he was ready to get money by any means that he could. He looked upon crime as the quickest and surest method and there was apparently no limit to which he would not go.

Clever as were his plans he failed to reckon on the fact that those who persist in criminal activities invariably get caught. Hardened though he may have become through certain successes he got into a situation from which he was unable to extricate himself.

It is well that such a career promises to be checked at this point. It is unfortunate that it could not have been interrupted before reaching the climax but it is to be expected that California will waste no time in handling out the justice that befits the crime. It will not restore the dead girl but it will insure better protection to the public and discourage others who are inspired by such fiendish acts.

THE NAVY YARDS

One of the things which Admiral Magruder has been particularly outspoken about is the number of navy yards in excess of what is needed. He believes that they should be reduced in number, that such reduction would result in a substantial saving which he fixes at $11,000,000 a year and in the reduction one of the most prominent ones should go.

When the admiral rails at the navy department for the maintenance of these yards he fails to appreciate that the maintenance and retention of all the navy yards that exist today may not be in keeping with the ideas of the navy department. They were of course authorized by congress and congress fully understands what it means to try to abandon any one of them. Let an effort be made to do away with any one of the yards and see what a howl goes up from the people in that particular section. They protest and demand and they invariably are successful in blocking plans for abandonment.

But it is also to be noted that while Admiral Magruder is calling for the abandonment of the Brooklyn navy yard he wants the one at Philadelphia retained. In this attitude he takes the very opposite position from that which has been taken by naval authorities quite as prominent if not more so than himself.

It is a case where experts disagree which has been fully apparent from the time the admiral began to make his "revelations" through public print. Because his views differ from those of other admirals doesn't necessarily mean that they ought to be followed. On the other hand if navy yards are maintained at the demand of the public the navy department cannot be charged with extravagance.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now that winter is officially here don't anticipate a combination of spring and summer.

Over in China they have about as little use for the reds as the Mexican authorities have for revolutionists.

Possibly Admiral Magruder can solve the difficulties surrounding the raising of the S-4, but it ought not to be necessary to ask him.

With Yale within a third of a million of its $20,000,000 endowment goal it is no ta rash prediction that it will make it even if the time is short.

The pursuit of happiness varies largely from one generation to another. Think of the coming generation being satisfied with conditions of 30 or 40 years ago.

SAVING SANTA CLAUS

"Cynthia," remarked Cynthia's father, with an air of profundity, "has something on her mind."

"She so often does have," sighed Cynthia's mother.

"She's been staring at us like a young owl ever since dinner," continued Cynthia's father.

"She may have eaten too much dessert," suggested Cynthia's mother; "she never had coconut in custard before. Her tummy may hurt."

"My stumick's all right," announced Cynthia, stolidly, from the corner where she was supposed to be playing with new Christmas dolls.

"Then what is the trouble, pet?" inquired mother, solicitously. "Come sit on mother's lap and tell her all about it."

"Nothin's the matter," answered Cynthia, grimly, then added, "except that Tommie Jim said at Sunday school this morning that Santa Claus never did fill any stocks, and that there never was any really Santa Claus ever at all—he said." Cynthia paused eloquently before uttering the portentous words, "Tommie said that Santa Claus was only the bunk!"

Cynthia's father looked helplessly at Cynthia's mother, and muttered something unintelligible about supposing children had to find out the truth some time.

Cynthia's mother merely smiled and said:

"Tommy Jim is a shockingly ignorant little boy."

"Tommie Jim said he ought to know what he was talking about," retorted Cynthia, "for the pretended Santa Claus that gave us our presents from the Sunday school tree was just his Uncle Fred dressed up with a beard and pillow. And, besides," added Cynthia, cynically, "our chimney is too small for a fat Santa Claus to climb down—even that sk'nny man who cleaned the chimney last summer couldn't get into it, and had to use a long brush—I watched him 'specially."

Cynthia transferred her disturbing gaze from her mother's to her father's face, saying reproachfully.

"Anyway, I heard you ask mother should you put my singing top or my doll's watch in the toe of my stocking, so there!"

Abruptly Cynthia's mother crossed the room and gathered the troubled-eyed 5-year-old into her arms, carried her back beside the fire, and settling comfortably in the big, cushiony chair, said, gently:

"Mother never did tell you that Santa Claus came down our chimney and filled your stocking—you just picked up that story from the other children at kindergarten and I let you go on believing it because I thought you were too young to understand about the really, truly St. Nicholas who lived clear over on the other side of the world ever and ever so many hundreds of years ago."

"Once upon a time, mother?" inquired Cynthia, hopefully. "I like once upon a time."

"Yes, dear," answered mother. "It was once upon a time, in Asia Minor, that a very kind man named Nicholas lived. He used to give away beautiful presents to people who deserved them—especially to children who were good. But he never wanted people to see him when he left the presents, so when people heard he was coming through a village, they used to hang bags outside their front doors in hopes he would drop gifts into them. Sometimes, when they didn't happen to have any bags to hang up, they hung their stockings on the doors."

"Really, mother?" exclaimed a starry-eyed Cynthia.

"Really, dear," replied mother. "And Nicholas was so good and kind that after he was dead he was made a saint, and his feast day celebrated on the Christ baby's birthday because Nicholas had liked children so much when he was alive. St. Nicholas though, was a pretty big name for little children to pronounce, so people shortened it until nowadays most every one says just plain 'Santa Claus!'"

"Then there was really a Santa Claus once, and Santa Claus did really fill stockings with presents," exclaimed Cynthia, joyfully.

"Of course," replied Cynthia's mother. "It was he who started the idea of stuffing stockings with presents for children."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sebastian S. Kresge, who has offered to contribute half a million dollars to the "dry" cause, is one of the multi-millionaires who owe their wealth to the development of that marvel of modern business—the chain store. Mr. Kresge was born in Pennsylvania 60 years ago and in his youth taught school in the winter and worked on a farm in the summer. In time he became a country store clerk and later a traveling salesman. How he turned the job of a "drummer" into a mammoth corporation with stores scattered over a large part of the American continent is one of the romances of American industry. Mr. Kresge attributes his success in life to hard work and thrift, with the courage to try out new ideas. His advice is never to stop trying new things until you think you are too told to learn.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Device To Save Men Trapped on Subs.

Mr. Editor: In regards to a submarine being sunk like the S-4, I have thought of a plan that might work in a case like this one, and would like to ask if it might not work. Have an opening, or openings made on all such boats, that open from the inside of the sub and have them built so a pipe or pipes linked together large enough for a man's body to pass through, could be connected on to such an opening by divers, and then after connected to sub and extended up to the top of water, be pumped out. Then divers could signal to men in sub, after pipe was connected and pumped out, and they could open such openings from inside thereby giving the men imprisoned in the sub a chance to get out.

That Merry Christmas Spirit.

Mr. Editor: That kind friendly Christmas spirit that is seen practically everywhere at present; why can't it be carried the whole year through?

Take the children, for instance, they seem so ready to obey their parents in doing the little things asked of them, and seem to be so kind to their parents and others from whom they expect a gift.

Then again the older brothers of the family, they seem to be quite friendly and considerate toward one another. Also their friends and parents seem to be taken more in confidence at this time of the year than at other times.

Then we cannot overlook the good mother and father of the home. Often times they expect some of the children home or a relative from a distance to spend the holidays, and Christmas usually finds the home full of cheer and happiness; and as a result the love between members of the family grows a little warmer, and the cords of friendship are one more drawn a little tighter.

We even find it on the street, at the store, in the shop, everybody seems to be wearing a smile, and hearty greetings are exchanged. Words of cheer are heard everywhere. Kind words and hospitality seem contagious, and everybody seems to have the spirit to give.

Then on top of this; everybody seems to be wishing his neighbor a happy and prosperous new year, and so it spreads until the very air rings out the good cheer.

Again, we ask, why can't this happy, merry, kindly spirit be carried through the year?

We are told that "kind words shall never die."

Then again, in "holy writ," hospitality and kind words are encouraged for it tells us to "Give and it shall be given to you again;" "The Lord Loveth a Cheerful Giver;" "Be kind to one another, tender hearted forgiving," etc. Eph. 4:32.

Surely these have been "written for our admonition." Let us carry this kind spirit the whole year through.

Yours for a cheerful year,

GEORGE F. FABEL

Do Insurance Companies Insure?

Mr. Editor: Kindly permit me space to state the case of a neighbor.

A man of experience and good standing takes out a liability policy (as he supposes) to cover his losses in the event of emergency or accident. All know the arguments of any insurance agent to a prospect—"Insurance is prompt, it is secret, no part of it has to be wasted in probating, inheritance tax," etc.

My neighbor has a client; an accident occurs; a claim is made for damages. Of course it is the part of all companies to watch out against frauds and fake claims. But in this case the evidence was indisputable, the figure of the claim was merely nominal, there was no motive to over-reach or to exaggerate. Does the boasted protection protect?

Not so. Statement of the claim brought immediate refusal to settle on the part of the company's representative. Furthermore, by permitting an action at law, the question involved became the very worst sort of publicity for any man—fixing on his name the stigma of inefficiency—something which will not be removed for years, if ever. In my hearing it was said today, "Oh, insurance lawyers always (with emphasis on the always) do that! They will fight any claim until the day for a court trial, then compromise!"

If this be true, isn't the man thus injured in his reputation and prestige justified in bringing suit against any such insurance company? And can any company afford to let counsel try cheap tricks at its expense when it is supposed to protect those who have taken out liability policies in good faith?

COMPLICATIONS OF SIMPLE ACUTE INFECTIONS FEVERS

By Earle D. MacKenzie, M. D., Detroit, Mich. Member Gorgas Memorial

Most of us are fairly well acquainted with the serious aspects of diseases, such as typhoid fever, pneumonia, scarlet fever, and other infectious conditions, which are commonly considered the more dangerous; but all too often the simple fevers of infectious origin can be responsible for many complications which may be permanent, or at least of altogether too long standing.

When a person is ill from some infectious source, nature's reaction to this is to produce substances called anti-bodies whose purpose is to overpower the invading organisms and re-establish a normal, healthy state. While this reaction is going on, fever is usually present and it is of the utmost importance that the patient be kept in bed, at complete rest. It is obvious that if one be permitted to be up and about, as he usually is, there is much more chance of disaster.

In our more simple acute infectious fevers, such as sore throats, heavy colds influenza, sinus infections, bronchitis, measles, etc., the tendency on the part of a great many is to make light of them as they are held to be such common occurrences as to be of no consequence. Fortunately the more thinking people are beginning to see the fallacy of such beliefs and to treat them with all due respect. Such manifestations as back ache, aching bones, headache, chilly sensations, and fever indicate that there are actual poisonous factors at work in the system, and the more active the individual is at that time, the more chance of having damage done. Conversely, the less active the individual, the minimum the damage; therefore the rationale of rest in bed. So, as long as the fever persists, the patient should be kept in bed. Complications, such as valvular heart trouble, inflammations of the kidney, rheumatism, pneumonia, neuritis, and other conditions frequently result because the patient wasn't kept in bed long enough. Nor is it sufficient to keep these subjects in bed till the temperature is normal. It is several days after there has been no elevation of temperature. It is much better to be out of work or school from one's routine duties for a few days longer, than to have to return to bed for weeks or months later on. This, I believe, is where most of us are culpable. The patient feels well enough to be up and thinks it is foolish to be held in bounds when there are no symptoms; but I firmly believe that we would see at least 50 per cent. less complications of these simple infections if convalescents could only be persuaded to be patient and stay in bed till all possibilities of risk were dispensed with.

Many a person has become a chronic sufferer because insufficient time was spent in bed at the time of a so-called slight indisposition.

CHRISTMAS GLINTS

It takes four or five years for the smallest Christmas trees to be ready for use.

"Santa Claus," with his presents, belongs properly to the day of St. Nicholas, Dec. 6.

In olden times it was believed that a Sunday Christmas was the forerunner of a prosperous year.

Christmas day has been called "the day of new clothes," from an old French custom of giving those who belonged to the court new cloaks on that day.

Ships appear on the Christmas cards chosen this year by King George, the Prince of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of York.

Turkey first became the Christmas dish in the reign of James I. of England, who could not eat the boar's head usually provided.

The oldest name for Christmas is "The Feast of Lights," a reference to the glory in the heavens when angels sang their song announcing Christ's birth to the shepherds.

The earliest of all Christmas hymns was written by Prudentius, who was born in 348. The English version, "Of the Father's Love Begotten," is still sung in the Church of England.

In the time of Henry VII of England a curious statute was passed which prohibited all of his majesty's subjects except the nobility and the royal family from playing cards during the Christmas holidays.

There has always been difficulty in ascertaining the exact date of Christ's birth. A tradition inherited by the Christians of the second century fixed the day as Jan. 6, and all Christendom observed that date until the fourth century. Then December 25 was chosen, but another century passed before the new date was generally accepted.

NEW LONDON MAY YET GET STEAMSHIP TERMINAL

The city of New London still has a chance of securing the western terminus of the proposed four-day trans-Atlantic line of the American Brown-Boveri Electric Corp. and Fort Pond Bay, the Montauk Point project, has not been definitely selected. This is the information brought back by Waldo E. Clarke, resident engineer of the state pier, who attended the public hearing at New York in regard to the improvement of Fort Pond Bay to meet the needs of a proposed trans-Atlantic steamship terminal at Montauk on Fort Pond Bay which C. L. Bardo, representative of the Borwn-Boveri company said: "I cannot say that I would recommend that Fort Pond Bay be developed for us. There are other ports under consideration and the final selection will be made only after our traffic committee has rendered its final report."

In conflict with Associated Press reports to the effect that New London had been eliminated as a possible port of the proposed four-day line by the selection of Montauk Point, the information brought back by Mr. Clarke greatly revived the hopes of New London to gain the western terminus and in a manner placed New London on a stronger footing than ever in regard to its possibilities.

Get Stenographic Report

At request of Mr. Clarke, Capt. Charles C. Yates, president of the Connecticut Terminal Co., obtained a copy of the official stenographic report of yesterday's hearings and telegraphed in part the statements of Mr. Bardo as made at the hearing.

After few introductory words Mr. Bardo said, "With the exception of the report of the design committee, none of the committees have as yet finished their duties. I can say, however, that the studies have proceeded sufficiently that there is hardly any question but what a line can and will be built. We are not prepared to say yet, and won't be until our traffic committee has completed its investigation, as to any particular terminal that we may ultimately select, because it involves rather a comprehensive study of traffic flow and traffic statistics, which will necessarily take some time."

Previous to getting an official copy of the hearing proceedings Captain Yates interviewed Laurence Wilder, another high official in the Borwn-Boveri concern, who told Captain Yates that the latter could quote him as saying definitely that the location of the western terminus of their four day liner service was still under consideration and still undetermined, just as he had informed Governor Trumbull at the first conference between Governor Trumbull and Connecticut officials with Mr. Bardo and Mr. Wilder after the plans of the company were first announced.

The meeting at New York was called by Lieut. Col. Robert R. Ralston, district engineer for the war department, as the result of an act of congress approved Mar. 3, 1925, in which an examination and survey of Fort Pond Bay, New York, was authorized. The purpose of the meeting was to provide an opportunity for al interested to appear and present facts and arguments relating to the proposed improvement of Fort Pond Bay, considered from the following angles:

(A) Improvement of Fort Pond Bay to meet the needs of commerce and navigation of a local character.

(B) Improvement of Fort Pond Bay to meet the needs of a proposed trans-Atlantic steamship terminal at Montauk on Fort Pond Bay.

All interested parties were invited to be present or to be represented, particularly navigation interests and officials of any county, city, town or local association whose interests may have been affected by the proposed improvement.

THREE DAMAGE ACTIONS MAY GO TO SUPERIOR COURT JURY TODAY

Three actions against Floyd Conklin of Mystic, asking in the aggregate, damages of $15,000, and being tried jointly in the superior court in this city, will probably go to the jury today (Friday). The plaintiffs are Mrs. Jennie Taber of Mystic, and her two daughters, Miss Alice Taber of Mystic, and Mrs. Blanche Barrow of New Haven, all of whom were injured in an automobile accident in which Mr. Conklin's machine was involved. Trial of the case was started Thursday before Judge John R. Booth and the following jury: Henry Gebrath, Frederick A. Gall, Ashley T. Boon, Norwich; Henry Parks, Colchester; Joseph Roo, Griswold; William G. Totten, Elmer N. Pultz, Lebanon; Edward A. Bishop, Bozrah; George A. Miller, Franklin; John Morrison, Sprague; Clarence Fitch, Lisbon; Mason T. Gray, Voluntown.

Mrs. Taber asks damages of $10,000, her daughter, Alice, seeks $3,000 damages and another daughter, Mrs. Blanche Barrows, of New Haven, sues for $2,000. The accident occurred July 11th of this year when a Dodge machine owned and operated by Alice Taber, in which her sister, Mrs. Barrows, and mother, were riding, was alleged to have been struck by an auto owned by Mr. Conklin and operated recklessly and negligently by Charles Carson at Grove and Starr streets, Mystic. Miss Taber, the driver of the Dodge, testified that she had passed the intersection, with the exception of t ehrear end of the car, when it was struck by the Conklin car. All three passengers in the Taber car claim they were seriously injured and that the car was badly damaged. Miss Taber claims that after the accident, her mother was found lying unconscious in the rear of the auto, between the seats with her head in the door. Mrs. Taber was confined to her bed for about six weeks, it was brought out in the testimony.

Miss Taber testified that she is assistant treasurer and secretary of the Climax Tube company of Mystic and of the Lowell Paper Tube corporation of Lowell, Mass. The hearing of testimony was completed during the afternoon and both plaintiff and defendant rested at 3:47 o'clock, after which the arguments were started. Court adjourned at 5 o'clock until 10 o'clock this (Friday) morning.

OVER 100,000 PIECES OF MAIL HANDLED AT P. O.

Over 100,000 pieces of first class mail was received and handled at the Norwich post office during the day and evening, Thursday, by a force of 24 men, including seven extras. This was a gain of 10,000 pieces of mail over the previous day. Between 5,000 and 10,000 letters, which were too bulky to cancel by machine, had to be canceled by hand. It is estimated that 1600 sacks of incoming and outgoing pieces of mail were handled at the office, breaking all records of the amount of mail passing through the hands of the employes in the history of the local office.

Even with this great avalanche of mail the employes are holding their own and as fast as the mail arrives it is sorted for delivery in or outside the city. All packages from out of town received at the postoffice Thursday before the final delivery, were cleaned up and delivered. What now remains in the building in the line of packages arrived after the final delivery Thursday and will go out this (Friday) morning.

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey stated Thursday evening that many people heeded the warning sent out by the postal department in mailing their letters and packages early and as a result a large amount of Christmas mail was handled earlier this year than last year. The pre-Christmas mail has been greater than that in previous years. On Thursday it was necessary to have three windows open to take care of the large amount of mail received and during the day a continuous line was on hand to mail packages.

To emphasize the unusual number of letters that have been received at the postoffice is the fact that during the past four days 150,000 two cent stamps were sold at the windows. This does not include the various other denominations, which were also sold in large numbers. Th's number by far eclipses those sold in previous years.

When the office employes arrived Thursday morning to take up their work where they left off Wednesday night a surprise was in store for them in the large amount of Christmas packages, sacks, etc. So great was the number it was necessary to pile the packages in every available space in the post office, in the hallway and even on the steps outside the building. The platform outside was also covered with packages.

At 9 o'clock Thusday evening the situation was well in hand but only after patient work by the 24 men in charge, including Postmaster Casper K. Bailey and the assistant postmaster. For the past few days these men have worked on an average of 14 hours a day to clear up the Christmas rush mail so that all may get their parcels or letters before Christmas. It is expected that everything will be delivered before Christmas.

Included in the great batch of letters are a number addressed to Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, Washington, D. C. A great number of letters and postal cards are addressed in poor hand writing and can hardly be read by the postal men.

William L. Fletcher, superintendent of mails, is in charge of incoming mail and Chief Mailing Clerk William R. McCord has charge of the outgoing mail. Postmaster Casper K. Bailey is in general charge of the work, assisted by a force of men who are expected to do the almost impossible and are doing this with smiles on their faces, so that all Christmas mail will be delivered to the addressees before Christmas.

MANY AT RECEPTION TO MR. AND MRS. W. A. TOWNE

The former principal of Bulkeley school Walter A. Towne and Mrs. Towne bade farewell to a large number of friends and church associates who gathered at the Second Congregational church, New London, Wednesday night to tender them a reception and wish them well on their journey to British Columbia which they will begin Monday. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor, expressed the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Towne are held by the church members in a short address of appreciation to which Mr. Towne responded eloquently. Rev. Edward M. Chapman offered a farewell prayer.

A musical program arranged by Mrs. L. K. Shipman was given. Roger N. Daboll and Miss Chelsea Johns played piano duets, Miss Beatrice Hatton gave Christmas selections on the piano and Robert McCall entertained with violin compositions. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Arthur H. Shurts and her committee.

The reception was planned by members of the Woman's league and the King's Daughters of the church. The decorations were laurel, Christmas wreaths and poinsettias. Receiving with Rev. and Mrs. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Towne, were Mrs. F. S. Newcomb, Mrs. Richard C. Morris, Colin S. Buell, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert May, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hertell, Mrs. Phineas Miller, Mrs. James L. Speirs, Miss Helen K. Whiton and Mrs. L. K. Shipman.

PRESENT NORMAN J. SHAFFER 15 YEAR SERVICE BUTTON

Norman J. Shaffer of No. 40 Hobart avenue was presented a 15 year service emblem at the annual Christmas party held Thursday in Odd Fellows hall by the S. N. E. Telephone Employes' association. Between 75 to 100 were present. A guest of the evening was A. J. Swatt of the New Haven headquarters.

A bright spot of the program was the Christmas tree, decorated with vari-colored lights and from which Santa Claus, impersonated by Henry A. Lord, distributed the gifts, there being a gift for all. A chalk talk by Mr. Swatt, a cartoonist, drew considerable attention from the audience, who were delighted with a large assortment of drawings, including that of Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

During the program Mr. Schaffer was presented with a 15 year service button, this coming as a complete surprise to him. A fitting presentation speech was made by Mr. Lord, wire chief of the plant department, and in return Mr. Shaffer made appropriate remarks.

Following the delightful program sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee were served. Dancing from 10 to 12 o'clock was enjoyed by those present, the music being furnished by the Roamers orchestra.

The committee in charge comprised Mr. Schaffer, chairman, who was ably assisted by Miss Josephine Murphy, Miss Gladys Williamson, Miss Barbara Odgers and Joseph Driscoll.

LIONS HEAR TALKS ON INDUSTRIAL SURVEY

H. D. Larrabee, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, and John T. Alden, "research expert," in charge of the Norwich industrial survey, gave interesting talks at the luncheon meeting of the Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. There was the usual large attendance. The president, William R. Frisbie, presided and William A. Anderson acted as song leader.

A report on the Lions theatre party to be given at the Palace theatre on Saturday, Dec. 31 for the children of Norwich was given by the committee in charge, and an enthusiastic report was made by Mr. Fink, manager of the theatre, who is planning a fine entertainment. The transportation committee was appointed by the president and comprises Earl Taggart, chairman, C. E. Carpenter, Bert Carson, Rudolph Henschel, Frederick Bielefield and William A. Anderson, who will have charge of transporting the children from the Rock Nook home and the county home to the theatre.

Louis M. Crandall was appointed to take care of the crippled children, who will attend and the Boy Scouts of Norwich will assist the Lions in any way at the party, according to a report from Scout Executive Bielefield.

The speakers were introduced by Mr. Crandall, chairman of the entertainment committee. The first speaker, John T. Alden, told of the importance of research work and said in part:

Very few people are aware of the tremendous amount of research that is being done in the United States and how beneficial it is to merchants and manufacturers by pointing the way to new methods of merchandising and manufacturing. He stressed the great value of the mass of information now available to both merchants and manufacturers in the country and pointed out that in his opinion the reason that there was no violent upheavals in business is mainly due to the federal reserve bank system and to the amount of data on hand for merchants and manufactures to guide them in the conduct of their business.

This is a period of intense competition not only between industries, but among states and countries. He cited now the railroads took passenger business from the stage coaches and in turn they now find the automobile transportation to affect both freight and passenger railway traffic. This makes it necessary for every industry, transportation company and mercantile institution to be on its toes in facing new competition. Mr. Alden also spoke on various important matters affecting Norwich, such as taxes, city and town government and other interesting items.

Mr. Larrabee spoke of the worthwhile opportunities for service to be accomplished in the interest of Norwich through the instrumentality of the chamber of commerce, until Norwich is made the best possible city to live in. Mr. Larrabee said as long as there are problems to be faced, such as equalization of taxes, city and town government, parking, housing and other problems affecting the welfare of Norwich there is ample reason for the maintenance of an active and virile chamber of commerce. He also said if we want the city to advance and grow we must face the questions which affect our community and city by having a large steering body to be intrusted in their accomplishment, and not a single civic organization in the city is as large and as cosmopolitan enough to accomplish such a task except the Norwich chamber of commerce will help to carry out the program as now mapped out which is an accomplishment necessitating several years of arduous and energetic civic service. The speaker received generous applause.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

MANY CHAMBER MEMBERS IN COMMITTEE WORK

Nearly 100 members of the Norwich chamber of commerce are actively engaged in committee work, says a letter sent to the chamber members by President Harold D. Larrabee. The letter is as follows:

As we approach the end of the year it seems fitting that as a chamber of commerce we pause for a moment to consider our exact situation.

We have passed through a year involving a process of reorganization and financial adjustment. Many distinct projects for the good of Norwich have been undertaken and completed. A program of expansion has been in progress. At the present moment nearly one hundred members are actively engaged in committee work.

Th program for 1928 has been carefully worked out and will challenge the interest and active participation of many more members. It will include some major projects such as the industrial survey, retail trade expansion, progress exposition, tax equalization, industrial revolving fund and many other minor projects.

Therefore, it is assumed that every member will do his utmost to support the present program and organization during the coming months to the end that Norwich may progress in its civic, commercial and industrial life during 1928.

With best wishes for a very merry Christmas and a most prosperous New Year, I am cordially,

HAROLD D. LARRABEE
President

PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE IS SUED FOR $700,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Major Frederick McLaughlin, wealthy sportsman and two minor officials of the Chicago "Blackhawks," Professional National Hockey league team, of which McLaughlin is president, today were sued for $700,000 by Edward J. Livingstone, Toronto, Canada, a pioneer hockey promoter, whoch charged conspiracy to eliminate him as a hockey club owner.

Because he is an alien, Livingstone brought suit in federal district court.

William J. Foster and John S. Keough were the others named.

Livingstone contends the defendants, Alvin H. Warren, Jr., president of the American Hockey association; Paul W. Loudon, a director, Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey league, and William F. Grant, secretary-treasurer, conspired to "destroy" his franchise and the property right of players under contract.

Livingstone claims Marvin P. Wentworth, Edward D. Graham, Robert Burns and Ralph F. Taylor, hockey stars, were paid $500 to $1,000 by McLaughlin to break contracts with him.

As a result of the contended conspiracy, the Toronto man charges that he lost his franchise in the American Hockey association and had to abandon a lease on the Chicago coliseum where his team, the Cardinals, played.

MANY COLLEGE ATHLETES HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

The holiday recess has yielded to Norwich her native sons, former defenders of the Red and White of the Academy, who now either have made, are making, or are preparing to make equally as strong their athletic presence felt in the collegiate world. The influx of college students started late last week until now practically 100 per cent of Norwich's list are at their homes to remain for at least two weeks.

There weren't so many Academy graduates who competed in varsity football the past season, only three, to be exact. Dan Polsky, Marty Gilman and Pheno Tombari are these boys.

Polsky was retained for the Brown university regulars this year, his junior year at college but a leg injury greatly hampered his activities. However, he saw considerable service in the early season encounters before he was rendered hors de combat.

Gilman and Tombari performed for the Connecticut Aggie varsity the past season. Marty was at a guard berth in the majority of games and Tombari played both at end and in the backfield. His forward passing was favorably commented upon. Both were lettermen. Gilman, like Polsky, is a junior while Tombari is a sophomore.

George (Ned) Hodge is another Academy graduate who was engaged in college athletics during the fall months. He has been used on the Harvard freshman crew and stands a good chance of winning a regular berth in that boat when spring dawns.

Ray Yerrington, first basketball captain at the Academy, is just endeavoring to begin his college athletic career. He reported for the Springfield College quintet a few weeks ago and is said to be making quite a bit of headway toward a regular berth on this strong team of the college where basketball was invented.

Jim Moore, Fred Schwartz, Ed Gulomb and Jim Williams were members of the Connecticut Aggie freshman eleven this past season, each performing creditably according to reports that came out of the State college. Williams played a halfback, Moore was at end, Schwartz at center and Gulomb at guard.

Red Fidell "made" the freshman team at Brown university but injuries laid him low soon after the season opened. However, he managed to struggle through and played in more than half the games on the schedule.

In all, five members of the 1926 football team at N. P. A. went to college and every one of them made a freshman team, this fall.

During the next half of the school year even greater glory should come to former Academy athletes.

Besides Yerrington, Gilman and Moore are candidates for college fives, for the varsity and freshman quintets, respectively, at Connecticut Aggies.

In baseball there will be Yerrington at Springfield, Hymie Sadinsky at Columbia, Cimikoski at William and Mary, Pheno Tombari at Conn. Aggies and Al Mish at N. Y. U. Tombari was captain of the frosh nine at Storrs last spring.

There may be more not recorded here and if there are, it is to be understood that there is no intention of slighting them by omitting their names.

TEAMS IN WEST PUT IN STIFF PRACTICE SESSIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22—(AP)—Football, lingering on the Pacific coast while winter sports overtook most of the rest of the country, caused half a dozen gridirons to hum with activity today as teams prepared for four intersectional games.

Teams representing the east and west had brief workouts for their charity game in San Francisco, Dec. 26, while south and west aggregations, scheduled for a charity contest in Los Angeles on the same date, also went through their paces.

Universities of Pennsylvania and California rambled through good practices for their December 31 clash at Berkeley, Cal., using Memorial stadium for an hour in the morning and the easterners drilling for two and one-half hours in the afternoon.

Coach "Nibs" Price emphasized offenses tactics with a weight and power backfield, and indicated his battle plan with the statement that he didn't care if Penn crosses the California line so long as California "piles up a bigger score."

The same squad that carried Pennsylvania through a rigorous season, lined up for Coach Lou Young.

NEW HAVEN WINS FAST AND HECTIC GAME

WATERBURY, Dec. 22.— (AP) —In the most sensational basketball game of Connecticut State league season here tonight, the New Haven Atlas club defeated the St. Joseph Tabs, 26 to 25. Tying the score after 10 minutes of play in the second half, the Tabs fought hard for a victory and in the battle for honors, personal fouls came thick and fast, and New Haven lost trdee of their star players, Pite, Lyman and Gordon. With their reserve players all in the game, and two minutes left to play when Gordon was banished for pushing Guenther, Manager Sam Bailey rushed out on the court, minus a uniform, and when he was ordered off the court to don playing apparel, his team was charged with delaying the game. The Atlas club also took out time to give Bailey a chance to return and this second technical violation gave the Tabs two tries from the free throw line. With the score 26 to 24 in favor of the visitors, Dunn made only one of the two tries and the Atlas club managed to prevent the home quinet from tying the score in the remaining minutes.

The Tabs showing Guenther, a Springfield, Mass., boy in the lineup played their best game of the season.

DELANEY WILL MEET HEENEY IN JANUARY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Jack Delaney will meet Tommy Heeney on either January 23 or 27 at Madison Square Garden, under the management of his new pilot, Joe Jacobs, and Tex Rickard will promote the bout, the former light heavyweight champion said here today. The Heeney-Sharkey bout is off, Delaney said.

The Bridgeport boxer, who is groomed to succeed Gene Tunney, emphatically denied that there was any break between Reilly and himself. Although the sudden sale of Delaney's contract came as a surprise to the fistic world, Delaney declared tonight that Reilly and he had discussed the sale for several weeks.

The former king of the 175 pounders denied any knowledge of the rumors current in fistic circles that Pete Reilly, although giving up the management of Delaney's affairs, would still receive a percentage of Jack's earnings.

Delaney declared that it was his understanding that Sharkey actually had an injured hand and would not be able to go through with his scrap with the Australian heavyweight contender.

The handsome Canadian laughed heartily when told Gene Tunney's recent declaration that "Tommy Heeney is a better man than Jack Delaney" and that the Australian was the most logical heavyweight contender.

"I'd like to take a crack at that Tunney boy," he declared in a serious tone. "I'll fight Gene Tunney anywhere and any time and that goes for every heavyweight in the ring today," he added, "and as for Heeney, I wouldn't fight him unless I was sure that I could give him a good lacing."

Delaney will begin his training grind on January 2 or 3, at the Park City gym in Bridgeport and will do his stuff under the watchful eyes of Doc Eddie Casey, who groomed him for his championship fights with Paul Berlenbach.

Promoter Rickard declared he planned to match Delaney against Johnny Risko or Paulino Uzcudun some time next month. As to a possible bout between Delaney and the winner of the Sharkey-Heeney affair, Rickard said such arrangements had not matured.

DELANEY WILL BOX SHARKEY OR HEENEY JAN. 27

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., will meet the winner of the Tom Heeney-Jack Sharkey bout on Jan. 27 in Madison Square Garden, acording to Joe Jacobs, Delaney's new manager, in a statement here tonight.

The Sharkey-Heeney fight is down for Jan. 13 at the Garden and will be staged as scheduled, Jacobs said. Jacobs explained a report from Bridgeport to the effect that Delaney would box Heeney by saying that such was an understanding yesterday when it appeared Sharkey might be unable to keep his contract.

However, Jacobs said he conferred with Promoter Tex Rickard today and was advised the Sharkey-Heeney battle was on as originally set.

YALE WEEKLY COMMENTS OF ARMY-NAVY BREAK

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 22.—(AP)—"The only comfortable way in which American college athletics can proceed is through confidence in one's opponents, self-respect and responsibility at home, and playing only such other institution as have the same ideals" in the opinion of the Yale Alumni Weekly, commenting on the West Point-Annapolis break in football relations.

"Obviously, teams meeting under different eligibility rules are not meeting on equal terms," the Weekly says and advocates schedules which will bring together only teams which represent institutions having similar rules. The Weekly believes that "so much intercollegiate red tape and so many agreements and inter-changes of notes is out of place in college sports" and does not belong to amateur sports.

LALONDE IS FINED $100 AND SUSPENDED

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)— Newsy Lalonde, peppery manager of the Quebec Canadian-American hockey league club has been fined $100 and indefinitely suspended—the stiffest penalty the league constitution allows —President Charles Q. Clapp announced today. Lalonde was charged with assaulting Referee Sonny Foley during the Boston-Quebec game here last Saturday as well as precipitating a fight in the players' quarters after the contest.

C. F. C. vs. Battery E.

Present indications are that a banner crowd will pack the Y gym Monday evening for the holiday battle between the local C. F. C. quitnet and Battery E of Westerly. These clubs are natural rivals and this is one reason for the large amount of interest shown in the coming clash.

Both teams are seriously preparing for this game and it looks like a lot of action all the way. By the way it looks now both teams will be enabled to present their strongest lineups.

The main game will start at 8:30 with a fast preliminary opening at 7:30.

SPORT SLANTS

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Behind the sudden shift in management of the colorful but erratic French-Canadian fighter, Jack Delaney, the "wise ones" of boxing see unmistakable signs that the erstwhile "rapier of the north" will be pointed for one of the "big shots" of 1928.

This "big shot" might be a match with Jack Dempsey, a "natural" between two of the ring's hardest hitters, or it might be an early season title match with Gene Tunney, whose trip to Florida hasn't caused any lapse in discussion of the champion's ballyhoo for two battles next year.

Brilliant one time and mediocre the next, Delaney has been one of the main fistic puzzles. He has been up and down the scale several times but always has remained among the leading drawing cards.

A year ago Delaney was freely selected as the coming heavyweight champion, the man most likely to knock Tunney off the throne. Then he ran head-on into Jimmy Maloney last February, losing the decision and considerable prestige, regardless of the plea that he went into the fight with an injured arm and hand. For 1927, at least, Delaney stock was on the down-grade. Victory over Paulino on a foul and a knockout of Paul Berlenbach at Chicago haven't sent it soaring to any extent.

If Delaney can shake off these tendencies of being an "in and outer" he has an excellent opportunity to again leap to the head of the heavyweight contending list. The door is wide open, with few real rivals crowding the threshold.

Jack Sharkey, with an injured hand, is an uncertain quantity. So is Paulino. Tommy Heeney is rugged enough and a much improved boxer but hardly measures up to Delaney in all-around skill. Johnny Risko is harly more than troublesome. Few alarms and excursions will occur if Phil Scott, the British heavyweight, returns in an effort to extend his streak of remaining vertical in two successive American bouts.

Any time Phil McGraw, the Detroit florist, steps into a ring the punches are bound to fly, quite frequently, as well, some one hits the floor.

No exception is anticipated when McGraw battles Sid Terris tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in the third encounter between these lightweight rivals in four months.

Terris was on the floor about a half dozen times in the two previous bouts but the East Side dancing master got an even break, gaining one decision but losing the other fight on a foul.

It has been a big year for the lightweights, the most entertaining since the hey-day of Benny Leonard's championship career, even though the present title holder, Sammy Mandell, hasn't contributed much action.

Jimmy McLarnin, the hard hitting Pacific coast youngster, has supplied a few fire works by knocking out Kid Kaplan, the ex-featherweight champion, and winning a decision from Billy Wallace of Cleveland.

A match between McLarnin and the winner of tomorrow's McGraw-Terris tilt would be the best means of producing the leading challenger for Mandell's crown. It is likely to take place at the Garden some time in February.

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS DROP FIRST GAME TO DANIELSON TOWN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 22.—The Danielson Town team turned back a strong secondhalf attack put up by the Taftville Crescents and won the opening game of their series at the Town hall here tonight, 27 to 18.

Danielson completely out-tossed the Crescents, who were playing their first game of the year, in the opening half, leading at its conclusion by 15 to 3 margin. After intermission the Taftville bunch suddenly started counting on their shots and several times drew near the Towners. However, that early lead and a stubborn defense gave the home club a well earned victory.

Both teams played nice basketball. Clever passwork was much in evidence throughout the evening, both clubs being responsible about in equal measure for this, although probably a slight edge might be given the winners for their previous experience at this end of the game.

A good-sized crowd turned out and urged the teams on with all kinds of cheers, fancy and otherwise. A lot of interest was shown all the way, even though Danielson held such a big advantage in the early part of the struggle.

Billy Schofield was high scorer for the winners with 14 points. His all-round play was also very good, while Keech, at the other forward, also played a nice game.

Leonard was high scorer for Taftville from a guard berth while the rest of the Crescents showed well for their initial tilt of the season.

Danielson plays the fast travelling Southbridge (Mass.) Five on Christmas night (Monday) at the Town hall while next Thursday the Emmet Guards of Worcester play here. They are recognized as champions of Worcester county.

ACADEMY BRIEFS

Bulkeley has instituted somewhat of the same plan as has been in effect at N. P. A. for a number of years of awarding a prize at the end of each year to the school's best all-round athlete. WESTERLY

CAROLS PLAYED DAILY ON CHIMES AT CHRIST CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 22.—Christmas carols have been played daily at 12:15 by Jack Tobin the past week upon the chimes at Christ Episcopal church and will be played for the remainder of the week. The large Christmas tree on the front lawn of the church was the gift of the Preston farm, on the Westerly-Norwich state road. When illuminated Christmas eve, it will be the center of Christmas carol singing led by Christ Church choir. If the weather proves stormy, the carols will be sung in the church.

The trustees of Wilcox Park held a meeting Wednesday afternoon when consideration was given offers from a prospective purchaser of the building site on High street, between the post office and the Westerly Furniture company. A survey of this property is to be made, it was announced after the meeting. The matter of making the property available for building purposes has been under consideration for some time and active work in the surveying and stubbing out of the land was carried on by surveyors Wednesday and Thursday. The only building now standing on this portion of park property is the old mansion occupied as a club house by the Colonial club. For the past two years there has been considerable talk of erecting a Y. M. C. A. building on the site of the club house, or between that structure and the Westerly Furniture company.

Inquiry was telephoned Westerly Thursday morning from Boston, to the Westerly police and the Rhode Island state police at the Hope Valley barracks, to learn of the hereabouts of the motor bus of the New England Transportation Co., which at 8 a. m. had not arrived in Providence. No word had been received from the New York-Boston east-bound bus leaving New York at 12 midnight, and due in Westerly at 4:30 a. m. No one recalled seeing the bus pass through Westerly.

Thursday the last of the repairs and renovations to the interior of the court house end of the Westerly Town hall building, damaged in the fire of April 30th last, were completed. Electricians finished installation of new electric light fixtures both in the Third District court room on the first floor and the superior court rooms on the floor above. The old ones were damaged by fire and water so that new ones had to be manufactured to match others which remained undamaged. While painters were in the courthouse, advantage was taken and the auditorium walls and ceiling of the Westerly Town hall were gone over and retouched where they had become stained.

Watch Night services will be held at the Broad Street Christian church Saturday night, Dec. 31st in the vestry.

The annual Christmas party was held Thursday evening at 8:30 by some fifty employes of the Westerly Automatic Telephone company, in the reception rooms at the company's headquarters, Main street. Gifts were distributed from an elaborately decorated tree. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed.

The annual observance of the week of prayer in Westerly will be held during the first week of the year when the Protestant churches of the town will unite, according to announcement made by Rev. A. L. Schoning, president of the Westerly Pastors' association. It is planned to hold union services on the evenings of Jan. 3, 5 and 6 in the First Baptist church. Rev. Leis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, has charge of arrangements for the series of union prayer meetings. The Pastors' association is arranging to bring a prominent speaker to Westerly for a union prohibition rally Jan. 15 at the First Baptist church. It is hoped that Senator Norris can be secured to speak.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater.

Jeanette Alder and Orchestra, the headline feature of the All-Girl vaudeville show, now playing at the Palace theater, proved to be a real star attraction at yesterday's performances. Miss Alder is the possessor of a charming personality which, combined with the ten girl musicians who make up the personnel of her company, make this act one of the best vaudeville attractions seen in Norwich in years. On the same program are four other acts of unusual merit including Hayden and Taylor, two stellar comediennes who keep the audience in a continual roar with their comedy antics. The Ruby Trio are entertainers par excellant in their repertoire of singing, dancing and music. Ellien Harvey in daring stunts on the tight wire and The Golden Girls whose harmony is like the name implies, "Golden."

On the screen the feature picture is a story of the Amazon with a pretty Spanish dancer, as played by Carmel Myers in the title role. Supporting Miss Myers is Walter Pidgeon as an English aristocrat who falls madly in love with the dancer, although he has a sweetheart in England. The story is daringly told and summed up in a few words shows the character of a woman whom love had never touched but when the right man came—she gave willingly, not figuring on the inevitable outcome.

Breed Theater.

Ken Maynard, known as the one-man circus or rodeo, who has made daredevil horseback riding a fine art, will exhibit his new feats at the Breed theater today and Saturday, in his latest thriller, "The Devil's Saddle."

A featured rider of Ringling Brothers circus, and previously the champion horseman of a barn-storming rodeo troupe, Maynard graduated to the "movies" when he "out-grew" the apparently ultimate in "under the tent riding."

Maynard is a saddle trickster without any rival, and his sensational riding has contributed as much as anything else in advancing him to movie stardom. With each successive picture, and "The Devil's Saddle" is his sixth starring vehicle, Maynard unfolds a series off spectacular scenes which stand out as the highlight of the production.

Tarzan, the cowboy hero's white wonder horse, is the second party to the thrilling episodes of the Charles R. Rogers production, and supporting members of the cast include Kathleen Collins, Paul Hurst, Earl Metcalfe, Francis Ford, Will Walling and Tom Bay.

Broadway Theater.

An unalloyed treat was afforded the large crowd at the Broadway theater last night when the Universal-Jewel production, "A Man's Past," made its long-heralded appearance.

For sheer interest and story value, we believe that this picture marks the highspot of the current cinema season. The story is excellently told, the players are perfectly cast and the direction leaves nothing to be desired.

The story concerns a noted physician who is sentenced to prison for putting to death one of his patients suffering an incurable disease. He escapes from the prison and is well on the road to rehabilitate himself in new surrounding when he is discovered by a former officer of the prison. The love interest is especially strong in that the officer and the surgeon both love the same girl and it appears that the officer will expose the doctor in order to get him out of the way. He does not, however, which sends the story into an entirely different climax which is both original and thrilling.

Conrad Veidt, long known as "the European Barrymore," makes his American debut in this picture and as the surgeon he lends to the screen one of the finest bits of acting since its inception.

A special Christmas party will be given for the children at the matinee tomorrow starting at 1.30. Santa will be on the stage in person and will distribute candy and souvenirs to the children and in addition will choose ten to whom he will present a beautiful present. A special feature will also be presented in addition to the regular program and there will be the usual news reel and short subjects.

Strand Theatre

That Model from Paris is the story of a plain begoggled office worker, who is suddenly made beautiful by a few deft twists of the hair and a borrowed dress from the firm she is working for. This brings her to the attention of several men about town who take an interest in her. She is engaged to represent a famous French model, who has disappointed a fashionable modiste, and from then on her life is more than interesting. All well known players are in the cast, including Bert Lytell, Eileen Percy, Ward Crane and the lovely Marceline Day.

Whispering Smith is a thunderbolt of mystery, thrills, spills, and wrecks, the greatest railroad melodrama ever filmed. A woman's honor was at stake. He'd crossed the continent for this and more. Death followed him like a shadow. A whirlwind of human emotions, staged in the great west where he-men fought the elements and strong men fought for the women they loved. Can a woman's love be measured or a man's love weighed? The most colorful human document the screen has ever reflected. Enacted by a brilliant cast of exceptional merit and ability including H. B. Warner, Lillian Rich and John Bowers.

CHRISTMAS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"The time draws near the birth of Christ," sang Tennyson, 50 or more years ago, at the approach of a Christmastide. It is thus drawing near again. We've all been thinking about it, off and on, for weeks and weeks.

But,

Have we all, or even most of us, been thinking about it as the anniversary of the Christ-child? Or have we, rather, been canvassing its possibilities for more or less of a donative splurge, a returning of last year's gifts, a subtle appeal for remembrances from new acquaintances?

It would be laughable if it were not so depressing to notice how human nature persists in running everything it tackles into the ground; how it insists upon driving a free horse to death.

Here's Christmas, for instance; the annual festival of the children and for the children, held appropriately on the anniversary of the Babe of Bethlehem. It is, par excellence, the Children's day; the little children's whom He bade their guardians suffer to come to Him. It is the one day to fill them with innocent happiness, to sate them with the "goodies" they crave and the playthings they hanker after.

It is, therefore, distinctively a home day, whereon parents and grandparents and sisters and cousins and aunts may, indeed, gather around the old home fires, but where childhood is, for the time being, king. Little did those who saw the Babe in the manger dream of His future. They did not suspect that those little feet were ever to tread the weary way to Golgotha. Little do we know what is awaiting our children. But the Wise Men came bringing gifts to Him, then. The Wise Men of today also bring gifts to the cradles and the nurseries and the play-rooms.

So far, good,—all good.

But human nature isn't content to stop there, though heaven knows the keeping of one family of small children happy and content for a whole day is task worthy of loving souls and willing hands. No, it leaps to the conclusion that "there can't be too much of a good thing," and if remembering the tots is a good thing, then remembering all their male and female relations and all their friends and acquaintances between the northern and the nether pole must be an even better thing.

Which, also, isn't a feeling to criticise too harshly.

But, again,

Human nature comes to the fore and takes charge, with the result that the season of good will to men is fast becoming a season of worry to men,—and especially to women.

Christmas is in imminent danger of being commercialized. The idea of gifts which are chiefly desirable as tokens of the love behind them, is giving way to the idea of "swapping" presents. How many of you who may read this have been for many days trying to remember whether Mrs. A sent you a Christmas card, last year, or Mrs. B a sofa pillow,—so that you may "return" a proper equivalent? A gift is something given freely and without expectation or thought of payment. But a "Christmas gift" is fast becoming a notification that the sender wants to "square" your last year's remembrance, or hopes you won't forget said sender, next season.

Of course, the makers and purveyors of Christmas gifts have been quick to seize the opportunity for their own profit.

I spent a whole hour, the other evening, reading over all the advertisements of Christmas gifts in a big New York city daily newspaper. There were columns and pages of them. There were "Toylands" innumerable for the tots; there were also offers of fur coats and Oriental rugs and electric refrigerators and diamond pendants and automobiles for the grown-ups. Practically all at prices which made my thin pocket-book feel like a canceled two-cent stamp. And I saw in my mind's eye thousands of men and women struggling into the gift-stocked stores, in a wild hunt for "something" to give to wifey or to hubby or to the various last year's givers whose names were on their shopping lists.

One doesn't blame the dealers for supplying what the public calls for. That is their business. One doesn't blame them for rejoicing in the riot of buying which preludes Christmas day. But one can't help wondering where the fad will end; into what fen and bog of disillusion the wild race will be driven before poor human nature realizes what a dupe it has been.

Some of us old fellows whose beards are gray recall the faraway time when the discovery in our small stockings Christmas morning of an orange, a home-made pop-corn ball, and a half a dozen sticks of red-striped "store candy" turned the day into one of jubilee, to be remembered for interminably long weeks.—Ah, the weeks are shorter, now! And where are the youngsters who would consider one orange a treat, or risk the ridicule of their fellows by being seen openly sucking at a stick of cheap candy?

Yet, in those bye-gone days, we knew how mother had worked long candle-lit evenings knitting those small stockings, and how father had made a special trip through the snow to the distant store to get that orange and those gaudy candy-sticks. We didn't fully appreciate it all, or feel the pathetic sense of unspoken gratitude which, after all these years, brings tears to our failing eyes. Probably all we did was to whoop and squeal for joy and let it go at that. But the old folks knew and we didn't have to say "Thank you" for them to understand.

I'm glad this is 1927 and not 1857. I don't want to give up my electric lights and go back to candles. I don't want to give up my automobile and go back to ox-drawn carts or sleds. I don't want to go back to the pre-toy-store days when, if you wanted to give Johnnie a jumping-jack you had to whittle it yourself, out of a pine stick: or, if you wanted to give Emmie Jane a doll, you had first to construct one from the contents of the rag-bag. In fact, I don't want to go back to any of the inconveniences and limitations and deprivations father and grandfather, mother and grandmother suffered under.

Father and mother hadn't the money to devote to a really gorgeous Christmas, so they put their thought and labor into it.

They hadn't any handy "Toyland" to fill their bundles and empty their purses, so they put their hearts into the day.

Instead of "shopping" for Christmas, they made their own. Instead of spending money on it, they spent love. Instead of giving in order to get, they gave of what they had, freely, joyously, with no thought of any return. They kept no debit and credit account of cards to be returned and gifts to be exchanged, in order to keep even with their acquaintances. They never thought of importing business book-keeping methods into the one great Day of Good Will.

They didn't send a Persian rug to well-to-do Mrs. Jones, because she sent them something equally showy, last year. Rather, they made up a basket from the remains of their generous feast, and sent it by Little Johnnie over the hill to Goodie Pollard, poor soul, who hadn't any possibility of ever making any return. Nor did they have to be persuaded or dragooned into doing this by any organization. They had Christmas in their own hearts; they simply couldn't help trying to impart some of it to those who had less.

In many material things, in numerous material comforts, in scores of material luxuries, we have advanced beyond those old days. But how about our ideas of service, our manifestations of helpfulness, our outgivings of good will?

We give money, more than the old 'uns ever did. Of course we do. We toss a quarter into the Salvation Army's Christmas kettle, we give a dollar to the canvasser for the relief of the poor, we chip in five or ten dollars for the orphan asylum or the old folks' home. Out of our abundance we give, hardly feeling the loss, hardly even remembering over night.

Now, I'll agree that a dollar bill will buy more bread than a "God Bless you;" that the glitter of a $5 gold piece will fetch more coal to an empty bin than the gleam of a kindly eye; that an order for a sack of flour is physically much more filling than the heartiest and roundest and jollies "Merry Christmas" salutations. But what said the Master? "These ought ye to have done, and not leave the other undone."

Christmas is properly enough understood to be a time for spending and being spent; it is, even more, a time for giving and being given. "For the gift without the giver is naught."

I can buy for a few dollars in any department store sets of gaudy colored mitts and mufflers for the small tots.

I can also remember when Mother sat up o' nights, long after everyone else was in bed, slowly and carefully knitting a pair of red mittens and a simply blazing "tippet" for little Johnnie, tucked away in his crib. I'll not lay weight on the superior quality of those mitten and that "tippet," home-knitted, out of yarn home-spun, from the wool of sheep home-grown. But I do ask if there wasn't something else in them, something worth, in the scale of eternal values, vastly more than can be found in any similar gifts, bought at a store and made by unknown machine-tenders in an unknown factory months ago, so as to be ready for the Christmas market?

If, as I suspect, the old idea of Christmas was one of joyful giving that showed good will and tended to give others happiness, while the present popular idea is one of a time for exchanging trifleries and fal-lals on a give-and-take basis,—if there is really basis for that suspicion, then I ask you if the old time Christmas wasn't truer in name and worthier in spirit than ours?

Blessed be Progress,—with a capital P. But true progress hangs on to that which is good, even while reaching for that which is better. It does not supplant the old with the new, simply because the latter is new. It holds its values and makes them stepping-stones on which to climb.

Will you pardon me for closing this talk with a purely personal note? If it appears, as usual, on Friday, Dec. 32, and you happen to read it that day, you will be in a way joining me in,—not the celebration, but the observance of my passage beyond the 77th milestone on life's highway. And if, moved by remembrance of our long, even if at-arms-length, talks together about pretty nearly everything under the sun, you're inclined to telepath me via the mental suggestion line either a good wish or a horse-whipping, I'll try to keep myself in a receptive mood.—You see, I came within two days of being a Christmas gift, myself.

And please take from me, right here and now my own hearty hopes for your own Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. As Tiny Tim said: "God bless us, everyone!"

THE FARMER.

STONINGTON

Four lads of Stonington borough have been taking automobiles used by the employes from the garage of the Atwood Machine company. Tuesday, one owned by Paul Bergel, was taken and in the afternoon one owned by John Tanner was taken. When their owners started for home the machines were found to be badly damaged. A watch was kept by Patrolman Adams, who soon caught one lad and his story involved three others. The owners of the car did not want the lads prosecuted, for their act, which is a serious offense under the motor vehicle laws. The boys' parents agreed to pay all expenses of the damage.

Christmas Shopping

It's strange to me how everyone
Gets in a store at once.
When we went Christmas shopping
You should have seen the bunch
A-pushing and a-crowding
Till I could hardly breathe.
It make me feel like in a woods
Of skirts and human trees,
With cyclones blowing overhead.
And everything my mother said
Was, "Come, we have to hurry!"

The elevator going up
Was crammed full to the door;
The starter man kept yelling loud,
"That's all! Please call your floor!"
A big fat lady pushed me hard—
The thin ones bumped about.
My mother kept me by the arm
And tried to yank me out.
But I was crowded in so tight
I couldn't even see the light,
How could a feller hurry?

We stopped a lot of times for things
My mother had to buy,
But I don't know just what she got,
I couldn't stretch that high.
I saw another little boy
Who had a horn to blow.
But just as I took hold of it
Of course, we had to go.
And everything I'd want to see
My mother always said to me,
"No, dear, we have to hurry!"

My Daddy met us up in "Toys,"
And mother said, "We're late,
But really, dear, we hurried so,
Too bad you had to wait!"
But Daddy laughed, "Hello, there, Son,
Your mother's most worn out.
Old Santa's waiting with his toys,
Come on, let's look about."
He put me on his shoulder tall
And, Oh boy, I could see it all
And didn't have to hurry!

Peace In The Green Forest.

When fear doth end and troubles cease,
Then only is there perfect peace.
—Mrs. Grouse.

Peter Rabbit had hurried lippertylipperty-lip over to the Green Forest, leaving little Mrs. Peter in the Old Briar-patch. It seemed to Peter that he noticed a change in the Green Forest the very moment he entered it. Of course, it must have been his imagination, but Peter declares it wasn't. He says he knew the very moment he entered the Green Forest that something had happened. He was right. It was Mrs. Grouse who told him about it.

"Hello, Mrs. Grouse," exclaimed Peter, as Mrs. Grouse came walking along in what to Peter seemed a very careless manner. "Aren't you taking a dreadful chance?"

Mrs. Grouse stretched up as high as she could to pick two or three buds before replying. "What chance?" said she in the most innocent manner.

"Why, the chance of being caught by Terror the Goshawk," protested Peter, who was himself in a bramble-tangle.

"Im not afraid of Terror the Goshawk," said Mrs. Grouse with a twinkle in her eyes which Peter didn't see.

"Certainly not. Why should we be afraid?" said Mr. Grouse as he joined Mrs. Grouse.

Just then Peter's big cousin, Jumper the Hare, came hopping along. He appeared to have no worries on his mind and didn't even glance into the bramble-patch where Peter was.

It was quite clear to Peter that Jumper wasn't thinking about that bramble-tangle as a possible place of safety. "Now what do you know about that?" muttered Peter. "The last time I was over here nobody dared move for fear of Terror the Goshawk. My cousin Jumper was afraid to poke his head out. And now everybody seems to have forgotten all about Terror."

"What chance?" said she in the most innocent manner.

Aloud, Peter said: "Has anything happened to Terror?"

Mrs. Grouse, Mr. Grouse and Jumper the Hare all began to talk at once. Peter winked and blinked and at first could not make head nor tail of what they were trying to tell him. Then suddenly he understood. "Do you mean," he cried, "that Terror is a prisoner?"

"That is just what we mean," cried Mr. Grouse and Mrs. Grouse and Jumper the Hare. "He is a prisoner over at Farmer Brown's and we have nothing to fear from him." Then they told Peter all that had happened. Peter promptly came out from the bramble-tangle.

"I knew it," said he. "I mean I knew that something had happened. The very air is different over here in the Green Forest."

"Certainly. Of course. To be sure," replied Mrs. Grouse. "It is peaceful. That's what it is—peaceful. My goodness, it seems good to be able to draw a long breath!"

"Huh!" exclaimed Peter. "Have you forgotten Old Man Coyote and Reddy Fox and Towler the Bobcat and Hooty the Owl? They are not prisoners."

"True enough, Peter, true enough," said Mr. Grouse. "But they don't worry me. I've known them ever since I came out of an egg and here I am. It was that fellow coming down from the North that worried me. Now I can eat and sleep in peace. My, it certainly is good!"

And Peter soon found that that feeling was all through the Green Forest. Even little Whitefoot the Wood Mouse, than whom no one has more enemies, seemed to feel that with Terror out of the way there was little to worry about.

HICKMAN, ALLEGED SLAYER, CAPTURED

Mantz, I think was the doctor and I got out here.

"At first I didn't come direct out here. I went to Chicago before I came here and I rented that apartment in Los Angeles at the Bellevue Arms. I think it was on Nov. 23 or just before Thanksgiving and on Thanksgiving I went down to San Diego and when I came back the next day I picked this man and a lady up. He said his name was Andrew Cramer and the lady's name was June Dunning I think it was. I was my myself. I didn't know any one here. I was making my living by holdups and I thought if I could get acquainted with some older man we could work to better advantage and it wouldn't be as much risk and could probably get away with holdups easier.

Held Up Drug Stores

"We just held up drug stores and places like that. That is the reason I had all these guns. That 30-30 belongs to Andrew. He left it there so it didn't make any difference. He worked several places.

"He wanted me to get some chloroform for him and other. I didn't ask him what for. So in one of our holdups, I would get out and he would drive the car. He would sit in the car and I would get the money and whatever we wanted and go out and then he would drive away.

"I really had not intended being a crook, because you will find out soon enough you will get caught, but because I wanted to go back to Kansas City and go to work and save enough money to go to college—Park College, near Kansas City and I thought if I could get enough money to go to the school and by working some during the day, an hour or two every day, in that way I could pay the tuition. I thought if I could save a thousand dollars I thought I could start next September and no matter how I got it I figured I would go straight from then on.

Agreed to Kidnapping

"And this man asked me what I thought of kidnapping someone, and I thought I would not mind doing it. I happened to remember that Mr. Parker had a daughter because in working at the bank this girl came with him. I did not know just what date it was. I was there in the bank several days and I noticed especially and I remember it was his daughter because she was his favorite daughter and he would take her down and buy her lunch and she was around the bank like she was a big man.

"I didn't think of her however, before I thought of Mr. Haves, who is chief teller o fthe First National bank and I think he has a very young child and I thought of that first, and I thought we would be able to get the money from him much easier, easier because he is a chief officer of the bank and handles hundreds of thousands of dollars and while I was in the bank I saw all the money shipments come in and used to go around the vaults and any place in the bank and knew practically everyone in the bank.

"Well, in order to get this little girl, this younger girl, I was afraid it would be harder to handle her. She was a baby and would probably cry. I thought either Mr. Haves or Parker, either one would have sense enough to consider a $1,500 an easy settlement in consideration of their own daughter. I meant no harm to either one, but I thought I would be easier to handle the older girl than a little child. So this man and I both went out and he wanted to see her and get a look at her and I looked in the telephone book to see where Mr. Parker lived. I went to a house to see her when she came from school and I saw her riding around on a bicycle but I didn't know she had a twin sister until Thursday morning.

Story of the Abduction

"I parked by the house early so I could see her leave for school and could see what school she went to, and it popped into my mind that if I went for her at the school, I could get her that way. There was no plan. But I had been thinking about it and it popped in my mind when I saw the girl that morning. I did not plan out the results ahead of that until I saw her that morning and that afternoon—You have read in the papers how it all happened. I went and told the teacher that her father had been in an accident and this other girl came over to see which one of the girls I wanted and I said I wanted the younger one. She looked younger, but it turned out they were twins, but she did not question me in any way.

"They asked what was her first name, so I told them. I didn't think I remembered but I told them I worked at the bank. I didn't give my real name—I forget the name I did give them—and they asked me which girl I wanted and I said the younger one and she said 'Marian?' and I said 'Yes, that is the one that her father was calling for,' and one of the other teachers went and got the girl, and I saw that was the same girl I had seen in front of the house, and I called at the school house that morning, and I think they got on a street car and went to the Mount Vernon school and when I went up in the car I learned that the Franklin school right near a fence and after we came out of the school house, we got into the car and we left and she started asking questions about what had happened and how it happened and who hit him and I made answers to all of her questions.

Ashamed to Look Girl in the Face

"I answered everything and she got in and we then started back and was just having a general conversation and talking about picture shows and merchants and schools and anything that came up in conversation generally with people and we got well and closely acquainted and I really kind of liked her. I could not look her in the face when I told her she was kidnaped as thought nothing had happened. When I told her nothing had really happened to her father she didn't worry or screen or anything.

"She took it calm as could be and I told her she could realize if I got caught what I would have to suffer and I would have to tie her nose and tie her mouth so she couldn't make any noise and she said, 'Please don't do it, I will promise not to make any noise,' so I didn't tie her and we drove around all that afternoon and went to a show that night—even went to a picture show—the Rialto theater in Alhambra, and she didn't do or say anything much and I really didn't intend to do her any harm and here is where this other man's part of it played in. He was to have the hiding place for the girl and to keep her quiet and I was supposed to get the money.

"He only wanted two or three hundred dollars out of the fifteen hundred. He said he didn't want much money anyway. He seemed to like the idea of kidnaping the girl and holding her rather than getting the money.

"Thursday, that night after the show, I met this man and he took the girl in charge. He took her and the next day I saw her, that was Friday evening. Well, I kept writing all these letters and had her to write a letter to her father, making it seem like she was being treated bad and, I don't know, she didn't seem to like this man and didn't want to go with him and wanted to stay with me instead, but I couldn't do a thing like that. We had to go through with the plans.

Miriam Wanted to Go Home

"Anyway, she wanted to go home as soon as possible and I thought if the father was willing to hand over the money and he had it, it was perfectly all right and as soon as I got it over with, the better it would be for me anyway. So I called up her father and he said he had the money and we planned a meeting and that was, we were to meet at a certain street.

"And then, after that, I called up his house from a drugstore between his home and the meeting place. I went up there and sat in the car. I saw him and there were two cars driven closely together and I drove out on the side and followed him to the meeting place.

"They lived on Gramercy street, which is just one block north and these two cars stopped and when I saw them I was absolutely certain they were detectives and they were going to try and trap us and I concluded to take the girl back and turn her over to the man again. I wrote them another letter and this other man suggested that I was getting the time too near, but that would make it much safer and they were making such a big search he was afraid they would find the girl.

"So Saturday when he came to the apartment for this suitcase and when he opened it up and showed me how it was, I was sure surprised. He said, 'The police are already suspicious of the place,' and he said she was crying and he tried to stop her or something like that, and he figured that the safest way would be to go ahead and fix it that way and for me to keep my suitcase in the car and to go to this place and if the police stopped me before I could get rid of it, they might look at the suitcase and never stop to open it and I thought that might be all right. He had already gone ahead and opened it anyway, so in this letter I told the girl's father if I were paid before six o'clock that night that his daughter would still be alive and I didn't find out until after six o'clock when he came up to the apartment.

"Even if I had written this letter after we called, even if she had not been alive, I thought he wanted his daughter, anyway, no matter what condition she was in, that he would rather have

Healed leg entirely

Spokane, Wash., March 21:—"While working in a stone quarry, I slipped and cut my leg and blood poisoning set in. The doctor stopped this, but my leg refused to heal. One day a friend recommended Resinol Ointment and after I had used ten jars of it my leg was entirely healed. This ointment is worth $100 a jar to me, and I will never be without it in my house again."—(Signed) W. P. Bower, Box 593.

HICKMAN, ALLEGED SLAYER, CAPTURED

her and so I went ahead and called him up and planned the meeting place. He was there all right, and as it happened the night before, I was there before he came.

"And if there had not been any detectives he would have gotten her back. And if this fellow had not killed her, it would have come out all right as we had planned, because I am sure she didn't want to die, because when she was with me, she said:

"'I wonder what the school kids will say when I go back to school. They will want to know what I did and everything.'"

"I am terribly sorry she was killed myself, because I sure liked her." (Hickman wept here)

Description of Accomplice

"Give us the description of this fellow that you say killed her."

Hickman—"He was about five feet eight or nine inches tall and had almost black hair and I don't remember the color of his eyes. As far as I remember I think he had been leading an impure life, he had a sore upon his chin, but that might have been from the way he had been eating. The times I saw him when I picked him up, he had on a kind of gray overcoat and he just had the one suit—a kind of tan suit or brown. He had a kind of rough face."

Question—"How old was he?"

"He looked to be not much over 28—but he looked older because I think he had been leading a kind of hard life."

Question—"Where was he staying?"

"He would not tell me that because he was to have his part in the plan and I my part. Crooks sometimes will go back on each other if anyone knew what the other one did and it makes everything safer and less dangerous than if we knew where each other stayed and I don't know where he kept himself."

Question—"He didn't stay in the same apartment with you?"

"No, I was in that apartment all by myself."

"Did this woman have anything to do with it?"

"I never saw her again. Her first name was June, I think her name was Dunning."

"How much did she weigh?"

"About a hundred and twenty-five or thirty pounds, I guess. She was about 25 or 26 years old, I guess. I know they appeared to be a well matched couple."

"You don't know what address they had?"

"No, I never did know. You can see the condition I was in which being a crook anyway when I picked them up, I had been alone quite a time anyway. I had been to a good many places, to Chicago, and I went to New York and Pittsburgh and Philadelphia and Washington, D. C., before I came out to the coast."

"Do you know where you were to meet him or where to call him?"

"No we always planned to meet at places."

"You planned where you would meet again, you didn't have any address for any one of you?"

"No, sir."

"When was the last time you saw him?"

"The last time I saw him was when he brought the suit case up to the apartment and he told me when I got the money—if I got the money—to go up to San Francisco as soon as I could safely get away as the policemen were awfully suspicious here anyway.

"Well, one thing, that did happen Sunday morning, was there was about 300 detectives came up to the apartment and looked over the apartment and started searching it. One of the fellows had the name of the apartment written on a paper and they searched everyplace.

"When they came to my apartment, it is interesting the way I was singing and playing the phonograph. The detectives came in and looked around and did not express any suspicion of me at all.

"I went out in the hallway and talked to seven or eight of the best detectives in Los Angeles. I asked them if there was anything I could do and of course there was nothing I could do and they searched the apartment."

"He had the girl or part of the effects of the girl when he came up to the apartment."

"Yes, sir. I guess he threw the other parts away where they said there were thrown away."

"What parts did he have up there in the suitcase?"

"He just had—she was cut right across the middle of the body and her arms—he had them fixed up and he had her dress put on her, he had her dress and a little sweater thrown on her face and of course, she was dead, but the way he had fixed the mouth it did not look very death-like. He had some little threads fixed through her eyebrows which seemed to hold her eyes open."

"He opened the suitcase so you might see what he had there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where were you when he did that?"

"That was in the apartment."

"What did you sey to him when you saw that?"

"I let out a yell of surprise and wanted to know why he did a thing like that. It was quite a shock to me. he was not supposed to bring her up to the apartment. We were supposed to meet Thursday when I got her and turned her over to him."

"That is the last time you saw her living?"

"No, that was the same day I got her from the school—that is, after we had gone to the show.

"He told me to hold her until tonight so when he did take her it would not be suspicious and no one would see us. We met and he took her. He had a car, a Ford car—I don't remember the license number."

HUMOR OF THE DAY

The Master—"Who was the smallest man in history?"

Backward Bertie—"Please, sir, the Roman soldier who went to sleep on his watch."—Answers, London.

The Father—My boy, think of the future.

Son—I daren't; it's Clara's birthday and I must think of the present.—Boston Post.

"Why is it you never admit that you have been wrong?"

"Because," answered Senator Sorghum, "in politics, as in anything else, there is no use of making a bad matter worse."—Washington Star.

Husband — I see the women are going to wear medieval costumes at the dance next week. What are you going to wear, my dear?

Wife (significantly)—My medieval hat.—Tid-Bits.

First Girl—"He claims to be one of the best dancers in the country."

Second Girl (who has watched him) —"Maybe he is; I think he might be good at barn dances."—Boston Transcript.

Little Freddie—Did Frankie come from heaven, the same as I did?

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "Why do you ask?"

"I suppose he must have landed on his feet," replied Freddie. "That's what makes him so bow-legged."—Los Angeles Times.

Visitor—How do, doctor! I've just dropped in to tell you how greatly I've benefited by your treatment.

Doctor—But—er—I don't hemember you as a patient of mine.

Visitor—I'm not, but my uncle was, and I'm his heir.—Montreal Family Herald.

It is fast becoming a tradition at Hahnemann Medical college, Philadelphia, that there's never a class without a Kistler. William K. Kistler, who is now in his senior year, will make the twenty-first member of his family to take the degree of M. D. at Hahnemann. And on the graduation of William, this tradition will go on with Seth Kistler, a cousin, now in the junior class and another cousin, Paul Kistler, in the freshman class.

When the last town meeting of Athens, Me., was held there was no candidate for the office of fire inspector. A friend jokingly dared Miss Eleanor Williams, graduate of Wheaton college, class of 1925, to run. Miss Williams accepted the dare, was elected, and later learned that office of fire inspector included that of chief of the fire department. And it was not long after that when there was a fire which Chief Williams attended and supervised the work of extinguishing it.

Radio reception is so good in Argentina that the country has become largest importer of American-made radio apparatus. The government supervises the twenty broadcasting stations, whose programs reach virtually every part of the country. Most of the 150,000 radio receivers in use are in Buenos Aires and about half of them are crystal sets, but one, two, five and eight-tube straight regenerative and three-circuit regenerative sets are becoming popular. Germany supplies most of the head sets because of their low price.

NOANK

Dr. A. Williams, checker champion of Mystic, came down to play Allie Crowell, the man who doesn't give up on a checker board, at the Saturday night club rooms, Wednesday evening, so the pride of the west side had 30 fans as his cheering section. Never-give-up Crowell was in fine trim as he had put in some hard practice while waiting for the second match. The room was all dolled up with evergreen and Christmas ribbon. Referee John Ashley tipped them off on the rules and hoped no fouls would be called on either of them. Smiling Williams took the lucky right side and Elm St. Kid Crowell placed his luck on the left side with his cheering gang. At 8 o'clock the game began. Crowell was first to move, but found the old sea captain from up the river playing safe and blocking the moves of the Noank mason, who was fighting hard to win the first match. But the doctor had the jump on the village champion and won by a close margin. But the cheering section for Crowell warned him to watch out for the double move and to block it. Williams' cheering gang was singing "Keep it up Doctor, it won't be long now!" The second match found Crowell putting the hooks right into the pride of Mystic checker fans and he won the second match by a wide margin. Oh, what a noise from the cheering section! It could be heard for a half mile and Night Cop Baker thought there was a big fight on but found out it was a championship checker match at the club rooms. In the final match Crowell was trying to even up the series with his rival and to get another chance at his man in Mystic next week for the championship of the two towns. Referee Ashley called a foul on Crowell for talking over the board and he lost a move; but his rival showed good sportsmanship by not taking it. Noank's best bet was in this fast match. Dr. Williams made a mistake and Crowell took three moves to his one and by sacrificing two men of the Mystic man it left Crowell his man to the good and won the game making the series 4 to one to one. The 150 fans saw the best games in the fishing village since the old sea captains used to play in the store on the north dock when lumber schooners used to come in to the ship yard. After the match a lunch of potato salad with peanut butter sandwiches and cocoa was provided.

Leaving the Packer house dock early Wednesday before the roosters were crowing, the fishing fleet went to Block Island. They found the flat fish running in great schools and saw Christmas money going right into their nets. Coming back at 5 p. m. the boat Baby had 15 barrels, Ada and Sarah 10, Ethel H. 12, and Julia 11, Robe ta 13. The fishing village forwarded 170 barrels of fish by trucks to New York, the biggest shipment of fish in a single day since last August. The fish sellers at Fulton market claimed Noank will be the leading fish center around this section, the way fish from here are coming into the market. A message to Raymond Jones, a truckdriver, to keep up the good work. "Give us fish and we will give you a high price." So all the fishing men can get a new Henry Ford before the robins nest again.

The Fire engine was sent for once more to clean out the drain at the school house, as the water keeps filling up the cellar. For over two hours the engine was working away trying to get the cellar drained. Now the tide is down enough so that Janitor Smith doesn't have to wear rubber boots to tend the heaters. By the way it looks now, a few more days of work will make the cellar all right again. The rocks are in the pipes down 9 feet and bange the tropola.

Howard Brown is in Boston for a few days' visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fitch have gone to Brooklyn, N. Y., to spend the holidays with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fitch.

Noank grammar school closed for vacation. Each grade had exercises in the afternoon. The school orchestra played in grade 3. Short plays were held and the public was invited to see the school children in their Christmas program, which the teachers of each grade worked hard to make a success. Grade 3 had a play, "Dickens's Christmas Carol." The characters were: George Sterrie Weaver; Bob Crachit, Abby Anderson; nephew, Bradford Raubrie; a gentlemen, R. Rajestaint; a ghost, G. Patterson; Spirit of Christmas Past, Elizabeth Anderson; Mrs. Crachit, Emma Spaner; Belinda, Georgianna Hayes; Aunt Martha, Julia Jensen; Mr. Fezziwig, Robert Evarts; Mrs. Fezziwig, Bernice Raubrie; Dick Wilkins, Peterson; Ebenezer, Leo Harris; first merchant, D. Foster; second merchant, Julia Jensen; third merchant, F. Champbell; fourth merchant, Charlette Welch; fifth merchant, Adele Pazzolesi; a girl, Charlotte Welch; Spirit of Christmas Present, Dorothea De Biasi; Spirit of Christmas Yet to come, Etta May Buddington; an invisible spirit, Pauline Wilhelm. Georgianna Hayes recited "That Long Ago Christmas," and Sterrie Weaver recited "Christmas Time."

Angus McLeod, of New Haven, is spending a few days in the village

Why Jones Stayed at Home

Everybody Wondered Why Mr. Jones Stayed at Home So Much—Until They Saw His Home. Mr. Jones' Home was so homelike! Cosy chairs, lamps, mirrors and pictures; lots of them! And Mr. Jones often says, "They're not 'moving pictures,' either; they stay right with us." For wise little Mrs. Jones knows the power in happy, colorful surroundings to make Home a successful rival of the club and theater. And in such a home surely Pictures have first place!

We have a wonderful display of good Pictures which make very acceptable Xmas gifts. Religious subjects, Cries of London, Parrish Pictures, Landscapes, Water Colors, Ship Pictures and Baby Picture

UPWARD MOVEMENT OF PRICES IN THE MARKET CONTINUED YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Heavy profit-taking and occasional bear selling failed to check the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market. Although final prices disclosed some irregularity, the average of 20 leading industrial shares mounted to a new record high for all time for the fifth consecutive day. Trading failed to maintain the terrific pace set earlier in the week, although the day's sales ran above 2 1-2 million shares.

Marking up of the call money renewal rate to 4 1-2 per cent was generally expected in view of the heavy seasonal demands for currency, but it nevertheless had a tendency to restrict speculation for the advance. Brokers' loans also were a cause of worriment in close quarters, the Federal Reserve figures, announced after the close of the market, showing a record-breaking total of $3,644,331,000, an increase of $85,976,000 above the preceding week. No change was made in the 3 1-2 per cent rediscount rate. Unusually heavy bond financing this week is believed to have contributed to the large loan total.

Italy's return to the gold basis aroused widespread satisfaction in banking quarters as a further indication of the economic rehabilitation of Europe. Italian bonds strengthened perceptibly on a very heavy turn-over. In the foreign exchange market, Italian lire broke about 15 points to bring the rate in line with the stabilized price of 19 to the American dollar.

Secretary Jardine's optimistic statement on the agricultural outlook found reflection in the brisk demand for the mail order and other shares which are likely to benefit through farmers' prosperity. Otherwise, the day's business and financial news was rather colorless in character.

Copper shares were again a pillar of strength on buying inspire dby the cheerful trade outlook. New peak prices for the year, or longer, were again established by American Metals, Chile, Cerro de Pasco and Kennecott. Seneca, which announced the reopening of its mines after a long shut-down sold above $3 a share, against a low of $1 earlier in the year. International Nickel soared 5 points to a new high at 89 1-4 and closed near the top.

Paramount Famous Players crossed 115 to a new peak on reports of expanding earnings and an early increase in the dividend. Montgomery-Ward moved up about 4 points to a new top at 121 1-2, or double the year's low price. Lima Locomotive, International Paper and Western Union also were conspicuously strong.

Violent fluctuations took place in the insurance shares. Fidelity & Phenix soared 16 points to a new peak at 380 and then broke to 210. Continental Insurance (old) which soared 30 points yesterday, lost half of that gain today. Rossia closed fractionally higher at 187 after having touched 191 1-2. Weakness was quite pronounced in American Woolen preferred, Kelly-Springfield 5 per cent preferred, and Oil Well Supply.

Rails were quiet and irregular. Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic issues, ordinarily inactive, advanced to new peak prices on buying believed to be for the account of the Canadian Pacific railroad.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Outside of the break in Italian lire, there were no changes of importance in the foreign exchange market. Sterling Cables ruled around $4.88 11-32.

Commodity markets fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits, with trading restricted largely to the usual pre-holiday evening-up of accounts.

New England Industries

Miscellaneous Woodworking.

The miscellaneous woodworking industry covers a wide range of products, from ladders to meat boards and from bungs to clothespins. Census statistics under "wood, turned and carved" and "wooden goods" show, in 1923 there were 179 such establishments in New England, of which 60 were in Maine, 47 in Massachusetts, 19 in Vermont, 21 in New Hampshire, 16 in Connecticut, and six in Rhode Island. Nearly one-fourth of the United States production came from these plants, where 4,711 workers earned $4,338,000, made products valued at $14,493,000.

The average age of plants in this section is 24 years, and the average period of present management is 16 years. Fifteen percent of a representative group of New England manufacturers in this industry reporting in a survey conducted by the United States department of commerce in cooperation with the New England council state that their establishments have started operations within the last six years. Accessibility of raw materials has been the principal reason for location in New England, with nearby markets and favorable labor conditions also important factors. Eleven plants have established one or more branches.

Piece work or other incentive wage methods are applied to 16 percent of all workers, with several concerns paying all their employes on this basis. Labor costs average 35 percent of the value of products. Employment has been quite uniform in recent years, due in part to the efforts of producers to develop supplementary products and to manufacture for stock in dull periods.

Prevention of accidents leads in the phases of manufacturing practices selected for improvement by the establishments reporting, with methods of maintenance, inspection, production control, cost accounting, and standardization also receiving attention. A majority of these producers make New England their principal market, with the result that 53 percent of their total sales are made in this section, the percentage varying in the different states, from 92 percent for Rhode Island to 26 percent for Connecticut. The trend of sales in New England during the last three years has been reported as decreasing by practically the same number of companies that reported increases. Within the same period total sales were reported as increasing by 34 percent of the concerns included in this survey, and as decreasing by 27 percent. Extension of selling territories and development of new products have been credited as causes for increasing sales, and competition from other sections with overproduction have caused decreases.

Brands and trademarks are used by 73 percent of the manufacturers, who in general apply such identification to all their products or to none. The main channels of distribution are direct to the manufacturer-consumer, and through wholesalers or jobbers.

There are now more than a thousand varieties of wheat, and new and finer varieties are constantly being produced.

IN MEMORY

Just beyond the silent river
Over on the other shore
There is resting, happy resting
For the weary evermore.
There the eyes that now are watching
For the morrow's dawning day
Shall be opened to the splendor
Of a bright and glorious day.

OVER 150 CITY STREETS HAVE NEVER BEEN ACCEPTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—It is understood the city council is to go into the accepting of streets that have heretofore been classed as "unaccepted," and that when a survey is made of these streets they will be noted as highways of the city. There are some 150 such streets that have never been accpted as such, though they have been in general use and largely built upon and with all the public utilities established in them. The fact that they never were accepted is due to the oversight of not having them properly presented to the city when they were laid out and deeded, as they should have been. It seems to have been the custom, a couple of generations past, for a land owner to lay out a street as he desired and then to have it named without other ceremony than to have it designated by the council. Then the rule was made that all streets laid out must be surveyed, graded and curbed and be then dedicated to the city for its use. That is understood to be the rule that will govern in the acceptance of the so-called unaccepted streets now. Many of these streets are in poor condition for acceptance; a few of them are not in that condition and over these there will be some question, when the council takes the matter under formal consideration.

There appears to be more electricity used in this city now than ever in the recollection of man. The principal business streets are ablaze with light, but in other sections many merchants have placed colored light for mere advertising.

A series of hearings on the provisions of the zoning ordinance, which it is expected will be adopted by the city council, will be held at an early date. The hearings will be of groups of property owners from separate sections of the city. They will be held in the municipal building in the council chamber, as soon as the provisions of the ordinance are determined upon.

TAFTVILLE

The lights that decorate the Community tree in the Memorial park at the corner of Norwich avenue and South B street are turned on each evening now and make a very beautiful display. The vari-colored electric lamps give a great deal of light and attract much attention, being located on one of the main highways through the town.

Another beautifully illuminated Christmas tree stands on the lawn of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Ricketson on North C street.

The pupils of some of the grades of the Wequonnoc school are to hold a Christmas party today (Friday) at the school. The mothers of the children have been invited to attend. There are to be games and the distribution and exchange of gifts.

NORWICH WOMAN KILLED LAST NIGHT IN AUTO CRASH AT WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 22—Miss Victoria Pineault, 33, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pineault of 76 Boswell avenue, Norwich, Conn., was almost instantly killed here early tonight when the automobile, in which she was riding in company with James Corrigan, 22, of Worcester, and Joseph Langlois, 25, formerly of Norwich, overturned on Shrewsbury street. Miss Pineault and the two young men were employed at the Worcester State hospital and were riding from the hospital into Worcester when the accident happened only a short distance from the institution.

Corrigan is in a critical condition at the Worcester City hospital suffering from a fractured skull, concussion of the brain and other injuries. Langlois was uninjured.

According to witnesses and to a state ment by Mr. Langlois, the accident occurred when Corrigan, who was driving, attempted to pass another car going in the same direction. Corrigan swung out to the left to pass the machine and as he did the wheel on the left of his machine caught in the tracks of the trolley road and broke, his car swerved, overturned three times and then crashed into a pole. Miss Pineault and Corrigan were thrown violently to the road while Langlois was tossed clear.

The police ambulance took all three to the city hospital where it was found that Miss Pineault was past all aid and she died a few minutes after her arrival at the institution. Mr. Corrigan was unconscious and x-ray pictures were taken to ascertain the extent of his injuries and in hopes that an operation may save his life. Langlois was discharged after being treated for minor bruises and cuts. Detectives Kelleher and Dugas investigated the accident.

Word of Miss Pineault's sudden death was received by the family at about 9 o'clock Thursday night and her brother, Alfred Pineault, immediately made preparations to go to Worcester. Miss Pineault had been employed as a nurse at the Worcester State hospital for several years.

She was born in Norwich, Nov. 2, 1894, and was the daughter of Fred and Victoria Pineault. Besides her parents she is survived by four brothers, Francis, of New York, Phillip of New Haven and Alfred and Edward of Norwich.

CONTEMPT CHARGES AGAINST ETHIER ARE WITHDRAWN

As Lionel R. Etheir, of this city, has paid up back alimony of $65 to his divorced wife, Elizabeth Sharvan Ethier, Attorney John H. Barnes stated to Judge John R. Booth in superior court here Thursday morning that the contempt charges brought by his client, Mrs. Ethier, would be withdrawn. In the superior court at New London sometime ago, Judge Allyn L. Brown ordered Ethier to pay Mrs. Ethier the sum of $25 a week, until the back alimony at that time was paid up. This order he disregarded, for last week counsel for Mrs. Ethier brought a new petition into court, claiming that $65 back alimony was due on the last order issued by Judge Brown.

A hearing was set before Judge Booth last Friday morning, and the contempt hearing was postponed until Thursday morning, in order to give Ethier a chance to catch up on his payments, it was understood, and this was done.

Ethier is under a court order to pay his former wife the sum of $5 a week for alimony, for the support of a minor child.

FAMILY WELFARE DEPT. LOSES VALUED WORKER

At the last regular monthly meeting of the Family Welfare department, Miss Sarah A. Armstrong of 11 Town street, tendered her resignation to the committee. This terminates a career of public service, of which Miss Armstrong may feel justly proud. For forty years she taught in the Greeneville public school. She enoyed the reputation of turning out pupils exceptionally well grounded in the required studies of the grade. She also gave to her students nature study lessons, an innovation in those days, teaching them to be interested in natural history and geology. She made for their benefit a quite extensive collection of mineral specimens with which to illustrate her talks. More valuable than the training of their minds, however, was the moral influence of her Christian character in the development in her pupils of those qualities calculated to produce good citizens.

Her varied services to the United Workers will long be remembered with appreciation. For five years she solicited the Greeneville district. For twelve years she taught in the sewing school, winning the affection of the little girls as they learned to ply their needles. And now for thirty years she has been a member of the family welfare department, formerly known as the city mission department, every year assisting in the packing of the Thanksgiving baskets. Her attendance at the monthly meetings has been unexampled. The department feels in her retirement it has lost one of its most devoted members. It is the earnest hope of Miss Armstrong's friends that she may enjoy for many years the recollection of a life so generously spent in loving service.

PHILLIP RITCHER SUED FOR DAMAGES OF $2,000

Suit for $2,000 damages has been brought in the superior court against Phillip Ritcher of Jewett City by Daniel F. Finn, Sr., of Griswold, conservator of Alice Southwick, an incapable person, according to the complaint. Alice Southwick was induced by Ritcher prior to Nov. 14, 1927, to deposit $2,000 in the Norwich Savings society of this city, in the joint name of the defendant, Ritcher and Alice Southwick, payable to either a survivor.

The claim is made that Nov. 14, 1927, Ritcher, without the knowledge of Alice Southwick, and without consideration caused the deposit to be transferred from the joint names of himself and Alice Southwick to his name alone, the balance of the account then being $1,032.34.

It is also claimed that from the time the joint account as originally opened to Nov. 14, 1927, the defendant, Ritcher, drew from the bank various sums from the deposit for which he has never accounted to Alice Southwick or the plaintiff. At all times herein before mentioned it is alleged Alice Southwick was not of sound mind, defendant, Phillip Ritcher, practised a fraud upon her by inducing her to make the bank deposit in the joint names and the amount of the deposit has at all times been the property of Alice Southwick and that Ritcher has no real interest therein.

DONATED POWER AND LABOR FOR TREES

According to the Norwich Gas and Electric department, it is estimated the power used for the illumination of the public Christmas trees in the various sections of the city will amount to 1540 kilowat hours in the 14 days over the holiday season. The cost of the power and labor, donated by the department, in helping to decorate the trees, will come close to $300. The power alone, figured at the resident rate of 10 cents per kilowat hours, is $150. There are more than 900 electric light bulbs of various colors and sizes used to decorate the trees.

The Christmas trees are lighted from twilight until 10 o'clock in the evening and will continue to be illuminated until after New Year day. The trees are located on Laurel Hill Norich Town, Elizabeth street, Hayes lunch cart at the New Haven depot, and in front of the Elks' home on Main street.

SMALL FIRE AT SILVER CO. PLANT

Little damage resulted from a blaze in the hardening room of the International Silver company Thursday morning at 10:45 o'clock. Two lines of hose were laid, a 2 1-2 inch by the factory men and a 1 1-2 inch by Squad A, Engines 5 and 6, and the deputy chief. The blaze, which was caused by an overheated smoke pipe in the room, was also combatted with fire extinguishers by the factory men. A section of the roof was somewhat damaged.

CRAMER, THE MAN HICKMAN IMPLICATES, WAS IN JAIL AT TIME OF DASTARDLY CRIME

Hickman Continues to Shift the Blame For the Killing of Marian Parker—The Youth Readily Admits the Kidnaping and Collection of the Ransom—The Young Demon Has Not Yet Undergone a Real Police Grilling—Gives His Version of the Crime to His Jailmates—Relates a Story of His Deeds of Outlawry.

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23—(AP)—His nerve only slightly shaken after twenty four hours confinement in the city jail here, William Edward Hickman today continued to shift the blame for the killing of Mariah Parker, Los Angeles school girl, on an Andrew Cramer, named as an accomplice in the kidnapping of the child.

The 19 year old youth's protestations, however, were made before he had been confronted with the announcement from Los Angeles that Andrew Oliver Cramer had been located there in the Lincoln Heights jail where he has been a prisoner since last August thus eliminating him from the case.

Hickman readily admitted he abducted the 12 year old girl, conducted negotiations for ransom and collected $1,500 in delivering the child's torso to her father, Perry M. Parker, bank official, but resolutely denied he was the slayer.

"I know that I am not guilty of murder and I am perfectly calm," Hickman declared in his cell.

Nothing further that might lead to the identification of the mysterious Cramer or Cramer's reputed companion, June Dunning, came from the lips of Hickman.

"I don't suppose the public will believe it, but there was another fellow in on this, his name was——." He stammered, paused, then continued, "Andrew Cramer."

"I just met him coming up from San Diego."

Hickman was quizzed by City Attorney C. Z. Randall of Pendleton, who sought to get additional details of description of Cramer.

Cramer, said Hickman, had deep set eyes, heavy eyebrows and was an inveterate smoker, he had a peculiar habit of walking with a slight limp every third or fourth step. He wore a blue shirt with collar attached, pants roller, and wore a black four-in-hand tie. He used cloth gloves.

Hickman expressed the opinion that after delivering the torso of the girl to Hickman at his apartment about six o'clock Saturday night, Cramer fled south. He reiterated a belief expressed yesterday that Cramer had taken towels from Hickman's rooms and placed them with the body in order to throw suspicion on Hickman.

Hickman volunteered the information that he had planned to return Marian alive and uninjured to her parents on Sunday if Parker, the girl's father had not "come through" with the ransom. The slaying of the girl by Cramer was entirely unexpected by Hickman, he said.

"The only reason he had to kill her and dismember the body was in order to get her into a suitcase which he could carry without arousing suspicion," he said.

Hickman described the appearance of the body when Cramer was alleged to have brought it to his apartment.

"I was shocked," he said, "he had put the body so that it fitted in the suitcase. The head was bent slightly to one side. The nose had been pressed down and 'frozen' flat so it was necessary to lift it up." He gave a gruesome description of the contrivance by which the girl's eyelids had been fastened so as to be kept open.

"There is something ghastly about a dead eye," said Hickman. "It is even more penetrating than a live eye."

Asked to explain why he used the expression "I am doing a solo" in some of his letters to Parker if he was acting with a confederate, Hickman indicated that he did not have a definite idea of the meaning of the word. He said he had overheard the word when he—

"There was no need of me using that word. I just thought it was clever like the words 'fox' and 'fate.' These names he signed to ransom letters.

"I know Parker doesn't feel as terrible about this as I do," Hickman muttered.

"Marian was sure a nice little girl," he kept repeating. "She didn't even cry when I told her I was kidnaping her, she just said she didn't think her father had the money but she hoped he would get it. She was a pretty little thing."

Told that his mother had collapsed and that his father had disowned him when informed of his confession, the self-styled "Fox" stolidly repeated "I know that I am not guilty of murder and I am perfectly calm. I didn't kill her, it was Cramer."

"I sent a message to my mother by that minister who was in here," he said.

Hickman sat in his cell with fantastic shadows of the swinging jail lights throwing sinster dark bars across his face today as he talked to reporters.

The story was much the same as that told yesterday but his manner of talking on this gray day after his capture was vitally different.

He didn't toss his head of wavy black hair and laugh as he did yesterday but sat on the edge of his cot rubbing his hands nervously, testing the joint of each finger separately.

He invited questions. But there was only time for one question, for there the story started, slowly at first, then rushing as though he were eager to review the facts and get them out of the way.

He appears to have the story of the kidnaping "down pat." However he has not yet undergone a real police grilling.

When Chief of Police Gurdane broke up the interview and reporters moved down the jail corridor the voice of Hickman still could be heard continuing the tale to his jail mates.

CRAMER HAS BEEN IN PRISON SINCE AUGUST

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Andrew Oliver Cramer, implicated by William E. Hickman as an accomplice in the Marian Parker case, was located today in the Lincoln Heights jail here, where he has been a prisoner since last August, thus eliminating him, police said, from any connection with the crime.

Cramer told detectives that among his acquaintances was a woman known as June Dunning, who also was named by Hickman in his confession to police at Pendleton, Ore.

Cramer's brother, Frank Cramer, is a prisoner at the county jail serving a term for robbery. Andrew was sentenced for bootlegging.

Andrew Cramer said that his brother had "kept company" with Rose Hurst, alias Rose Cramer, whose true name was said to be Rose Dunning and who has a sister June Dunning. Both women operate rooming houses, Cramer said. Police were ordered to bring both women to headquarters for questioning.

"I know Hickman," Andrew Cramer told detectives, "I don't know why he picks on me. Of course it is impossible for me to have been in on that killing. It's too ridiculous to talk about. I've been right here all the time."

The woman the prisoner named as Rose Dunning was said by him to have a police record in San Francisco.

CAPTORS WILL ACCEPT ONLY LEGITIMATE REWARD MONEY

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Tom Gurdane, grizzled chief of Pendleton's police force, who aided in the capture of William Edward Hickman, does not want any reward money except that offered by the city of Los Angeles, banks and other organizations. The rewards total close to $100,000.

"I don't want the money of individuals," he rumbled, "not the money of kids or women. But I see no reason why I should not take that which was offered by the Los Angeles banks and some of the organizations. That is legitimate reward money, legitimately earned."

And Buck Lieuallen, state traffic officer who with Gurdane captured the notorious fugitive, nodded vigorous assent.

Gurdane and Lieuallen typify the old and new of uniformed officialdom. Gurdane has two score years western police and frontier experience behind him. Lieuallen had the war—two years of it—and five years work in the state traffic department.

Both officers will leave in a day or two for Los Angeles invited there by the California city police. They probably will spend a week there and present indications are that they will have two dozen or more offers of theatrical engagements.

HICKMAN BOASTED OF HIS DEEDS OF OUTLAWRY

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 23. —(AP)—William E. Hickman, 19, in his jail cell today revealed a startling story of a career of crime that carried him through many cities before he came to the Pacific coast and became involved in the kidnaping of little Marian Parker, daughter of a Los Angeles banker, who was murdered and her body mutilated.

Hickman boasted of his deeds of outlawry as he told of skipping from city to city. In some of the cities, he said, he got "fine write ups." As he calmly discussed his travels, he remarked.

"My brain must be warped, or I could not have thought I could go through with this."

Robberies in Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis and Columbus, O., were admitted by Hickman.

Following his return to his mother's home in Kansas City last July after being paroled from his conviction for forgery in the bank at Los Angeles where he had been employed, Hickman said he stole an automobile. It was a Chrysler coupe, but not the one that figured in the recent kidnaping.

He took it from an Independence, Mo., man in Kansas City.

"I drove directly to Chicago, where I paid $11 as a week's rent for an apartment at the Paradise Arms, on Washington boulevard," he said. "They will remember me because I gave the name Edward Hickman." He left Chicago and headed toward Toledo, Cincinnati and other cities in that district, but did not stop.

"I did not know just what I wanted to do. After going through Pittsburgh I picked up a member of the Pennsylvania state police. You can check on this, for he rode with me more than 20 miles.

"We arrived at the town where the barracks for the state troops are located, Queensburg. I believe the name was, a town of 10,000 or 15,000 inhabitants. He invited me to eat with him. His name was O'Connell or O'Donnell. He bought me a good steak and before I left he took a road map and spent 15 minutes telling me how to get to Philadelphia. He told me that if I returned that way he would like to show me through the barracks.

"I went to Philadelphia, but I did not like the apartments or the one-way streets, so I went on to Gettysburg. I paid a guide two or three dollars to take me over the battlefield."

He then related how he had visited Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Jersey City, where he ferried to Manhattan. He stayed in New York three days at 324 West 54th, or West 58th street, where a sign saying "furnished rooms" was displayed. He did not like New York and left on the third day.

He doubled back, going through Gettysburg again and into West Virginia. He dodged Pittsburgh and headed for Columbus, where he rented an apartment on Broad street.

"On October 31, I held up three places in less than 30 minutes, and I think I set a record for the town," he said.

"There was a good writeup about me in the papers the next morning. The next night I robbed two places and at one of them I just missed running into the chief of detectives who had not left the place more than two minutes before. It would have been funny if I would have run into him."

He passed through Indianapolis and went to St. Louis, where he said he held up several persons. On night while leaving St. Louis he fired a shot in a drugstore just to convince the proprietor that the gun was really loaded and that he meant business. He returned to Kansas City, where he abandoned the car, leaving the gears locked and throwing the key away.

The car which figured in the Los Angeles kidnaping case was stolen in Kansas City. Hickman then drove out across Kansas, toward California but had a premonition that things would not go well for him there and turned back to St. Louis, he said. From that city he went southwest through Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, and while in El Paso he purchased another gun. He then went north and west through New Mexico, passing Phoenix, Ariz., at night. Gasoline was 30 cents a gallon there and he had Kansas license plates on the car. He remarked that "gasoline cost as much as milk did at home."

HICKMAN INDICTED FOR VIOLATION OF DYER ACT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The federal grand jury today indicted William E. Hickman, captured accused kidnaper-slayer, on a charge of violation of the dyer act, based on transportation interstate of a stolen automobile, the Chrysler coupe he drove from Kansas City.

EXTRADITION PAPERS GRANTED FOR HICKMAN

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Governor C. C. Young this afternoon granted extradition papers for William Edward Hickman, held at Pendleton, Ore., in the Marian Parker kidnaping and murder case. The papers were granted on a grand jury indictment returned before Judge Charles Burnell charging Hickman with the kidnaping and murder. Dwight Longuevan, inspector of police, Los Angeles, was the agent named to return the prisoner.

FIRE IN WAREHOUSE AT MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y.

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Burning of an obsolete warehouse used as a gymnasium and boxing arena by the soldiers at this army air field threatened to destroy the whole cantonment today, but the fire was prevented from spreading to any serious extent.

The warehouse, a ban-like structure, was at the opposite end of the field from the hangars where the army planes are berthed.

While the flames were being fought by the soldiers and the fire departments of four surrounding towns, photographic planes on hand for the departure of Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson on the first leg of her proposed flight to Europe circled overhead taking pictures.

Origin of the fire was not determined at the time. It burst suddenly from the old structure and the wind carried a rain of sparks and brands to the roofs of close packed wooden barracks nearby.

Vare, of Pennsylvania, who has been denied the oath of office as senator because of expenditures in his primary campaign, today filed with the senate privileges and elections committee a formal denial of charges brought by his democratic opponent, William B. Wilson, secretary of labor in the administration of Woodrow Wilson.

Declaring that there were no irregularities in the general election of 1926 as asserted by Wilson in his petition of contest for the senate seat, the Pennsylvania senator-elect said that Gifford Pinchot, as governor of Pennsylvania, "arbitrary, maliciously an illegally" withheld from him a certificate of elections in the usual form.

Divers Have Passed Line Beneath the S-4

Twenty Vessels and 1,090 Officers and Men Now Comprise the Salvage Fleet.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The navy department tonight was informed that divers had compelled a tunnel beneath the sunken submarine S-4 and had passed a line beneath the craft.

The completed tunnel was described in the official message from Provincetown as being 19 feet back of the bow. The message, timed 6:50 p. m., added that work was proceeding on another tunnel 46 feet behind the bow, about the center of the torpedo room.

The weather remains "passable", officials advised the department, and the wind and sea have not risen appreciably, although snow flurries were reported.

TO CONTINUE EFFORTS TO RAISE THE SUB S-4

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., ec. 23.—(AP)—With all hope gone that life exists aboard the sunken submarine S-4, the rescue fleet continued its efforts today to raise the ill-fated craft from its grave 100 feet below the surface of the sea before unfavorable weather forces suspension of salvage operations.

The navy will not discontinue its attempts to raise the submersible "until forced to do so," Admiral Frank H. Brumby, in command of the rescue fleet, declared.

"It must be remembered," Admiral Brumby said, "that off Block Island in December 1925, it as necessary because of weather conditions to cease operations on the S-51 on December 6. These operations were resumed in the spring of 1926 when weather conditions permitted them. We hope to have the diving work about the submarine more advanced than it is now, but in diving operations you are doomed to many disappointments."

Captain Ernest F. King, directing the salvage operations, said that divers were still working late this afternoon, drilling a tunnel through the mud under the bow of the S-4 so that cables might be looped around the sunken craft.

CHIEF OF POLICE SLAIN BY BANK ROBBERS

CISCO, Tex., Dec. 23—(AP)—Rumors of mob violence folowing the death tonight of Chief of Police G. E. Bedford, wounded while pursuing robbers who held up the First National bank here today, caused the removal from the city of Louis E. Davis, accused robber, who also was wounded.

A thousand men meanwhile searched the countryside for four robbers who escaped after using two little girls as a screen against bullets in making their escape.

A large crowd gathered about the hospital in which Davis was under guard and to forestall posible violence he was removed to Eastland in an ambulance.

Western Railroads Protest Wage Award

Have Challenged the Authority of Four Members of the Board of Arbitration.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—(AP)— Western railroads today challenged the authority of four members of a board of arbitration to award wage increases to 55,000 firemen and enginemen by petitioning the United States district court to set aside a recent decision.

Counsel for the fifty five lines, comprising virtually all the leading trunk systems west of Chicago, contend the board had been dissolved on Dec. 5 when it reported to the court here it could not reach an agreement.

When Hazlett P. Burke, chief justice of the Colorado supreme court, summoned the board again to meet in Denver the two railroad members refused to attend, rightfully contending, the petition claims, that the board had automatically ceased to exist on Dec. 5.

On Dec. 17 the two employes' representatives and the two resignated as neutral members agreed on an award of 30 cents a day more for passenger firemen and 35 cents more for all other members of the brotherhood of locomotive firemen and enginemen.

The majority, commenting in their decision on the re-assembly at Denver, said it was authorized to do so by the board of mediation, a permanent body having jurisdiction over railroad wage questions, and the department of justice.

MRS. GRAYSON IS IN FLIGHT FOR HARBOR GRACE

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 23—(AP)—Heading into the north on the first leg of what she hopes will be a trans-Atlantic flight to Croydon, England, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson hopped off a few minutes after five o'clock today for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

It was twilight when her huge amphibian plane "Dawn" was trundled to the foot of the mound where mechanics warmed up her motors, but darkness was falling when the ship came down the runway, gathering speed and lifting her heavy load after about two-fifths of a mile.

Oskar Omdal, the pilot, Brice Goldsborough, who accompanied Mrs. Grayson on a futile attempt to fly across the ocean in October, and Fred Koehler, motor expert, were aboard the plane with Mrs. Grayson.

Just before the take-off Mrs. Grayson said she had taken aboard 500 gallons of gasoline and that the ship weighed 10,000 pounds. She said she is convinced that the winter trans-Atlantic flight is feasible and believes that the greatest hazard, that of ice forming on the wings, has been eliminated by coating the wings with glycerine. This, it is thought, will prevent condensation and freezing of fog on the ship.

Sighted Over Cape Cod

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—The French Cable company's station on Cape Cod, Mass., reported that Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's amphibian plane Dawn, flew over that point about 7:25 p. m.

ANTI-FASCISTS WERE ACQUITTED OF MURDER

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Donato Carillo and Caligaro Greco, anti-Fascists, were tonight acquitted of the murder of Joseph Carisi, a Fascist, last memorial day.

Assistant District Attorney Henderson immediately moved dismissal of another indictment charging the defendants with the murder of Nicholas Amoroso, another fascist who was slain at the time Carisi met his death. The motion was granted.

Carisi and Nicholas Amorso were shot and stabbed to death on May 30 last as they were on their way with a group of friends to take part in the city's official Memorial day parade.

A spy who had joined the anti-Fascist alliance to produce information for the Fascisti league furnished the information on which police arrested Carlio and Greco. They declared they were in their Brooklyn homes at the time of the killings in the Bronx and that the Fascisti league "framed" them because of their political views. Clarence Darrow and Arthur Garfield Hays headed their counsel.

The tug Whalen returned to port without the slightest trace of the Kamloops, after making a search along the north shore of the lake.

Christmas Eve.

Come, young and old, to Christmas Eve,
Together let us be merry!
With everg[illegible] porches wreathe,
And deck [illegible]ts with holly;
The Christma[illegible]ree with candles light,
Let children's hearts be merry;
Through windows frosted silver white
Let gleam the holly berry.
Then sing heigh-ho as the candles glow,
Heigh-ho to the Christmas tree,
Heigh-ho to the holly jolly red,
Heigh-ho to the children's glee.

Hang high and low the mistletoe,
Entwine it in the holly;
Let music play, with trumpets blow,
Old join with young in folly;
Bring in the Yule log from the shed,
It's ready for the firing;
And while it glows and crackles red
Let hearts grow bold, confiding.
Then sing heigh-ho as the trumpets blow,
Heigh-ho to the log's red light;
Heigh-to to the girl who dares to stand
'Neath the mistletoe tonight.

At midnight let the bells peal forth,
Old Christmas carols ringing;
From east and west, from south and north,
Let voices join in singing;
Grieve not because another year
So soon shall end its winding;
Old friends will stick if you are true
Like stars in heaven shining.
Then sing heigh-ho to the Christmas bells,
Heigh-ho to the Christmas cheer,
Heigh-ho to the friendships shining true
That and not with the year.

Christmas Carols Sunday Afternoon, Sung in English, German and Russian, Will Be Broadcast—A Special Program of Carol Singing Has Been Arranged by a Broadcasting Chain For Two Hours Before Midnight Tonight—President and Mrs. Coolidge and Son, John, Are to Join in a Community Christmas Eve Observance.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The joyous spirit of Christmas descended over the national capital tonight, pointing the way for the observance of the holidays in the homes throughout the country.

Most of the members of Washington's official life were hurrying to their family firesides but a good share remained here to spend Christmas and to welcome a new year.

Like a symbol for the festivities which will prevail throughout the nation, a stately spruce tree has been decorated just south of the treasury. With hundreds of colored bulbs it is ready to be lighted by President Coolidge tomorrow evening, thus setting in motion the season's activities which as usual will revolve about the White house.

The public has been invited to participate.

As Christmas day neared, activity increased today at the White house. Five trees were carried in to be decorated under Mrs. Coolidge's personal supervision with electric lights and festive tinsel. At Washington cathedral, where Woodrow Wilson is buried, there will be a program of Christmas carols Sunday afternoon sung in English, German, Russian. They will be broadcast.

Likewise, the radio will carry the voices of the carol singers at the White house tomorrow night and a special program of carol singing has been arranged by a broadcasting chain for two hours before midnight tomorrow.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE FOR COUNTESS DE JANZE

PARIS, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The American born countess De Janze, who was Miss Alice Silverthorne of Chicago, was set free on a suspended sentence and a four dollar fine in the Paris courts today for shooting her English lover, Raymond Vincent De Trafford, of titled family last March at the Garde Du Nord.

In passing judgement of six months in jail, and then suspending the sentence, Judge Fradin told the countess that he was moved by pity and the circumstances under which the shooting occurred—De Trafford's abandonment of her after promising to marry her, she having in the meantime got a divorce from Count De Janze.

The judge was more harsh with De Trafford, who came to testify, although he was not summoned.

"He failed in his duty, and did this from selfish interest," the judge remarked. "If he failed to keep his word it was not because of religious or philosophical scruples, but because he feared his allowance would be cut off."

PEACE OFFICERS SLEW TWO MEXICAN ROBBERS

MIDLAND, Tex., Dec. 23—(AP)—Murder charges were filed tonight against C. C. Baze and Lee Smith, peace officers, alleged to have slain two Mexicans they believed were about to rob a bank at Stanton, Texas, today.

Victor Ramos, who was wounded by the officers, testified at a preliminary hearing that he and his two companions who were slain had been "planted" in front of the bank.

There is a standing reward of $5,000 for dead bank robbers in Texas.

Hilario Nunez and Norberto Diaz were the men slain.

The wounded Mexican said he and his companions met the officers while they were walking on the highway near Stanton, and had been promised employment by them.

The officers told the men to meet them "close to the bank" in Stanton, said Ramos. The three did as they were instructed and a few minutes later the two men came back, Ramos said, and opened fire.

Two of the Mexicans dropped dead and Ramos suffered four flesh wounds and said he was struck on the head with a pistol butt.

EMBEZZLED BANK'S FUNDS OVER PERIOD OF THREE YEARS

CHICAGO, Dec. 23—(AP)—William E. Hayes, 25, and Lehigh Gossman, 23, former clerks in the Security Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles, admitted following their arrest today on charges of embezzlement, that they had taken $50,000 of the bank's funds over a period of three years. They told police they fled Los Angeles Dec. 11 when their peculations were discovered. They waived extradition and will be removed to Los Angeles when officers arrive.

They started to work for the bank in 1925 for $90 a month, police said they related, and shortly afterward met two girls and found their salaries insufficient to keep up their social activities. Y., Dec. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Mathias Nicoll, Jr., state commissioner of health, predicted, in a health talk broadcast tonight by radio station WGY, that new high speed automobiles would increase enormously the danger to life and limb. The prediction was based on advertised speeds of 55 to 65 miles.

"There is only one reason for advertising this feature," Dr. Nicoll said. "That is to sell more cars. Many people are going to purchase a machine largely on account of its speed. Now what does that mean—just so many thousands more death dealing vehicles on our highways."

DANIELSON

DANIELSON EXPECTS VERY HAPPY CHRISTMAS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 24.—Danielson awaits Christmas with joyous anticipation. On the eve of the holiday one finds this community with practically all of its holiday preparations completed and only the last minute details needing attention. The promise is for a particularly happy holiday here. The exceptionionally heavy holiday buying forecasts an abundance of gifts, a widespread distribution of good cheer.

Featuring Christmas eve in Danielson will be the brilliantly lighted tree and exercises for the young people on Davis park, this made possible through the efforts of the American Legion and its auxiliary. Carol singers will go about the borough, too, just before the midnight hour, cheering those who are so fortunate as to hear them with the glad spirit of Christmastide.

In all of the churches of the borough on Sunday—Christmas day—there will be special programs of festival music and sermons dealing with the significance of the event observed.

The Messe de l'Oratorie, will be sung by a choir of St. James' church under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Gareau, organist, at the 5:30 mass Christmas morning. Attorney Harry E. Back, acting as attorney for the Westcott-Wilcox Old People's home of Danielson, has applied to the superior court for this county for a decree ordering and allowing the sale of certain real estate held in the name of the home and which it has no need of, that the money derived may be invested for the home and the revenue applied to the purposes of the home.

It appears from the application that the holdings of the home include 8 acres of land, which are of no special benefit to the institution. There is good reason to believe that this land can be sold at either private sale or public auction and that it will bring a very considerable sum, especially in view of the fact that the state contemplates building a new state highway route through that section, from Main street to Stearns hill, to relieve the congestion of traffic now moving through Reynolds street over the Providence-Hartford trunk line. With the building of the new route the land which the home would sell would become valuable for residential purposes, and undoubtedly would sell quickly.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

MY WINDOWS.

Three windows in my House of Life
Look out three different ways.
One turns with wistful longing
To the Road of Yesterdays;
And watches how the shadows
Of the poplars, slim and tall,
Point mutely at remembered days,
And silence over all.

And one looks out with eager eyes
Upon the Street of Now,
And sees the passers up and down,
And greets them with a bow.
The little street is frankly gay,
With checkered shade and shine,
And busy, too, with bustling joys
That wait on me and mine.

The other window turns away
From Yesterday and Now,
And not a single backward glance
Its vision will allow.
Its gaze leaps out to hills afar;
Its clear eyes, purged from tears,
Up through the deathless pines can trace
The Path of Coming Years.

And sometimes when the sun is down,
And I am all alone,
The little windows beckon me,
For they are quite my own.
And seem to love me, every one.
At each I stand and look,
And read their little stories
Like the chapters of a book.

The first one fills and thrills me through
With happiness and pain:
The next—I'm drenched with starlight,
And then I'm splashed with rain.
But the other window draws me,
And I smile through rainbowed tears,
For I read a happy ending
Down the Path of Coming Years.

AN EASTERN LEGEND.

There's a tender Eastern legend,
In a volume old and rare,
Of the Christ-Child in His garden,
Walking with the children there.

And it tells this strange sweet story
(True or false, ah, who shall say?)
How a bird, with broken pinion,
Dead, within the garden lay.

And the children, childish, cruel,
Lifted it by shattered wing,
Shouting: "Make us merry music!
Sing, you lazy fellow, sing!"

But the Christ-Child bent above it,
Took it in His gentle hand;
Full of pity for the suffering
He alone could understand.

Whispered to it—oh, so softly!
Laid His lips upon its throat;
And the song-life, swift returning,
Sounded out in one glad note.

Then away, on wings unwearied,
Joyously it sang and soared;
And the little children, kneeling,
Call the Christ-Child "Master, Lord."

THE CHRISTMAS PUDDING.

(A Recipe.)

Take some human nature—as you find it,
The commonest variety will do—
Put a little graciousness behind it,
Add a lump of charity—or two.
Squeeze in just a drop of moderation,
Half as much frugality—or less,
Add some very fine consideration,
Strain off all of poverty's distress.
Pour some milk of human kindness in it,
Put in all the happiness you can.
Stir it up with laughter every minute,
Season with good will toward every man.
Set it on the fire of heart's affection,
Leave it till the jolly bubbles rise.
Sprinkle it with kisses—for confection,
Sweeten with a look from loving eyes.
Flavor it with children's merry chatter,
Frost it with the snow of wintry dells,
Place it on a holly-garnished platter
And serve it with the song of Christmas bells.

COMPANIONSHIP.

It isn't that we talk so much,
Sometimes we like to roam.
You do not say a word to me,
I do not talk to you.

I sit beside the reading lamp,
You like your easy chair,
And it is joy enough for me,
To know that you are there.

It isn't that we go so much,
Smetimes we like to roam,
To concert or to theater,
But best of all is home.

Our lives are fitted each to each,
In all our likes we share,
And it is low enough for me,
To know that you are there.

It isn't that you tell to me,
The things I've come to know,
For some things are to deep for words,
And love is surely so.

You only have to touch my hand,
To learn how much I care,
And it is joy enough for me,
To know that you are there.

THE SPIRIT OF GIVING

At Christmas time, O, be thou tender, true;
Thy friends make glad and all thy foes forgive;
With its sweet light begin to live anew,
Ungrudgingly give, and giving, much receive.

Make thy glad life grow large—thy soul expand;
Lest there be one full day within the year
When love shall open wide thy waiting hand
To lessen want and dry some bitter tear.

Give wisely, freely of thy bounty, give
And most of all, do not forget, give love;
Since giving is the truest way to live
And richest treasure laying up above.

Souls there are many—heavy laden, sore,
And eyes that weep, and hearts that often bleed
Share with pale want thy over-flowing bin,
By kindness save some brother from despair.

Show kindness, O my brothers, every-one
Let the true Christ in your own soul be born;
Thus thou canst be God's well beloved son.
And make each dawn a joyous Christmas morn.

ANN TENNA.

THE PRE-CHRISTMAS MANIA

Christmas time will soon be here,
We will send and receive
As Christmas gifts without end
Heaps on heaps of worthless junk,
Trash enough to fill a trunk
Representing many a plunk
That we'll spend.

For about two frenzied weeks
We will shop,
We will buy and buy and buy,
Till we drop.
Never until we have spent
Every last remaining cent
That we'd saved to pay the rent
Will we stop.

Not a moments rest or ease
Will we take,
Gayly trimming Christmas trees,
Till we break.
All day long and half the night,
We will toil by candlelight,
Till we've got 'em fixed just right,
How we'll ache.

When the morning after dawns
We'll be sane,
Empty purses vain regret,
Bitter pain.
We will swear it was a shame
And make vows to quit the game
But—next year we'll do the same Thing again

A SUCCESSFUL MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Another Social Corner meeting in the annals of history and memory. A fine day Dec. 7th and a goodly number present. They came from north, south, east and west, 60 in all. There was a fine dinner served by our lovely hostess and her efficient helpers with many good things to eat and pies galore. We had a fine program for entertainment. Snowflake read the story of early Christmas. We had a miniature Christmas tree with Calamity Jane as Santa Claus, who presented each one with a gift.

Mrs. Richardson by request came and gave us delightful music and songs. The Friendly Voice and Prudence gave a monologue which was quite amusing. Prudence was a fine looking gentleman wearing The Friendly. Voice's grandfathers wedding hat, a tall black beaver. Sam accepted The Friendly Voice's proposal and they went on their way rejoicing. Olga was not as gay as usual, as she was regretting the loss of her beautiful ring. Hope the lucky finder will kindly return it to the owner.

Snowflake is to be our hostess at our next meeting, and hopes the entertainment, the social gathering and all will be even better than our last meeting, which certainly was a success. There is an old adage, "Better late than never." I was waiting for "the other fellow" and when no one wrote, thought I would get busy.

Merry Christmas and best wishes to Social Corner friends.

WURDY BELLE (Club No. 5)

TO MAKE A TOY CIRCUS

Dear Corner Members: Secure the cover of 3 cheese boxes to make the floor of the tent, the largest measures 18 inches and the smaller about 7 inches.

Make a small hole in the center of each cover. Now for the tent pole, which can be made from an old broom handle, should be 12 1-2 inches long, measured from top of handle. Nail this pole in center of covers putting a nail, with large head, up through holes previously made and nail through end of pole where it was sawed off.

Paint inside rims of covers with white paint and outside rim with red paint. After paint is dry, cover the bottom of this tent floor with a thin coat of glue and cover with sawdust.

Take stiffly starched unbleached cotton cloth for a tent; white oil cloth is also good. For sides of tent cut a strip of cloth or oil cloth 3 inches and 8 inches wide. To make top of tent draw a circle measuring 21 inches, draw a line through the center and cut out half of circle; sew the rounding edge to length of strip cut for side of tent, turn and sew again, making a French seam, which should be on outside of tent when finished.

Measure and cut a strip 21 inches long and 3 inches wide for awning, fold in 10 equal parts and round off for scallops. Bind edge of these with red bias binding, or if tent is made of oil cloth, paint the edge with red paint to imitate binding. Sew this strip in front of roof and make a narrow hem down front side of the tent. Run a wire up through the hem and around through the French seam, then down through the other hem at side front.

Bore a small hole in top of tent pole, and stick in this a lolly-pop "handle" for a flag pole and attach a small flag. Tack the top of tent to the top of pole and bottom sides of tent to floor on outside underneath. Now shape the wire to hold tent down in right position and cut off, allowing piece on either end to secure to tent floor. To make cage for the menagerie and booths for side show, use cigar boxes, leaving a piece of the cover on, about 1 1-2 inches wide. Nail this on and paint box red, when dry paint the names of animals they are to hold (on strip of cover left on) with gold or yellow paint. Put excelsior on floor and use meat skewers for bars. The animals for this circus must be quite small to look in proportion with tent and cages. You can make larger tent and animals if the dimensions of this tent are enlarged. Animals made of wood, rubber, celluloid or cloth stuffed are suitable for this circus. If one cannot afford to buy the animals, very satisfactory ones can be made of old felt, pennants of cloth, stuffed with cotton batting. Make leopards and tigers of orange cloth and paint spots and stripes with black paint. Make black French knots for eyes or use black beads and fine yarn for tails and manes for animals. Make elephants of gray felt with floppy ears and fowl's toenails for tusks. For flag poles use round sticks stuck in empty spools which have been painted red. Cut flags from red and yellow felt and attach to poles. Set these flags at side of the tent and menagerie.

Paint a few large empty spools of different sizes and shapes, red and white. Buy a bright colored rubber ball to put in ring and make animals stand on hind feet by resting front feet on spool.

A trapeze can be made with two spools (painted) with tall sticks stuck in them (use skewers if you wish) and a short length of an old spring curtain rod stretched between the sticks.

For equestrians, buy 3 small celluloid dolls, with jointed limbs. A soldier doll makes a good ring master and a mechanical tumbling clown or balky donkey adds a circusy atmosphere.

Now for the side show. Make grotesque figures and freaks the bearded lady, etc. Cut these out of old stocking legs and stuff out in odd shapes. It is surprising with little ingenuity combined with imagination, what one can make for a circus.

This one I saw in a paper. I have added a little but hope some one will make it. I intend to, if not this Christmas, for some birthday present.

ETHELYN.

J. E. T.'S SUGGESTIONS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Here are some new uses for shredded wheat, rice flakes and all samples left at the door unopened.

Take three shredded wheat biscuits soaked in about a cup of warm milk, one-half cup warm water, one egg, one-half cup tiny raisins, pinch salt, few specks of butter on top and bake till light brown.

Use same way only use apple sauce instead of raisins.

After soaking in milk I put shredded wheat in codfish and potatoes for codfish balls. Had some one come in so had to increase the supply so fried this way. I added two tablespoons salt pork grease and then fried them in the pork grease saving crisp slices of pork to eat with my "pig" potatoes as we call the little potatoes.

Save all your ravelings and put them between two pieces of felt cut from top of old felt hats or heavy pants cloth or bed ticking. They make good holders. Sew them across each way, overcast edges or bind.

POEM AND SONG WANTED

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: How true it is that "procrastination is the thief of time"! Here it is near the end of 1927 and I would like to have a letter in the Corner once a month any way. We are having mild weather, no need of going to Florida.

Mother Preston: Your letters remind me of what I've read in Dr. Chase's book. It's good reading just the same.

Aunt Jerusha: You would have had a call from me if the weather had been pleasant. I've met you at Willimantic and Coventry lake.

Calla Lily: I think same as you do, a new broom sweeps clean but the brush will wear off if it's used much. Just wait till Club No. 6 gets into its teens and see who will help.

I wish some one would send in the poem "One by one the sands are flowing". I would also like the words to the old song "Daisy Dean." We have a sister by that name and I'm glad I have met her.

Many thanks to all who have sent me Christmas cards. Hope all will have a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

THE STORY OF BLOODY BROOK

Dear Editor and Friends: I thank those who have been so kind since I have been here. I think the cards from Aries, Kansas Lily and Kochin are very nice.

Well Christmas is near once more. Little grandson said to me "Gamma, let me take your stocking it holds more than mine."

Peggy Alder, Caro, Dece. 1492, Nely Grey, Votami: I wish you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

One sister asked me about Bloody Brook. Yes, you have the right location. It is just below the Wm. Tanner place. There is a sad story about the brook. Grandpa told it to me when a small girl. It was in the days of the first settlers of the place. A man went up the brook a way and cleared up some land, then a heavy forest, and built a log house. He with his wife and three children lived there. There were others below the Gates place. What is now the road was then only a trail and west of the place was another settler. One morning in spring the west settler was going to see his friend to the south. He came to the brook and his horse stopped, nearly throwing off the man, snorted and turned back. The man got off and tied the horse to a sapling by the side of the trail, and went back to see what the horse saw. The water in the brook was a dark red. He was scared. He crossed over and went on foot to his friends and told them. The men took their guns and went back with him to see the awful sight. One of them said let us go up and tell our friend. He will know what it is all means. When they got to the clearing there was nothing but a heap of smoldering ruins. They looked for the folks but could not find them. One man went to the brook. There he found the man and family murdered and the water of the brook looked like blood. A cow was in the brook farther down. They did not know if it was the Indians that seemed to be friendly or some other tribe. Grandpa said his grandfather told him the story when he was a small boy. Grandpa would be 130 if he were living. That is why it was called Bloody Brook. The water has a look like sweetened water.

Providence Rose: Will you be up before New Year's?

I am sending my heart's best wishes to all for a nice Christmas and New Year.

NONESOPRETTY.

CLUB NO. 1'S FINE CHRISTMAS PARTY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: In the first place I want to wish you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Sympathy for the sick and sorrowing.

So much is brought to mind at holiday time, when we see the vacant chairs of those who have passed on. Now a few words to those who did not attend Club No. 1's meeting in the chamber of commerce hall last Wednesday. You don't know what you missed. Effie M. certainly gave us a wonderful programme. I enjoyed every bit of it. Not only Effie M. but all those who assisted in any way deserve a big vote of thanks. Everything went so smoothly. We had a lovely Christmas tree furnished by Effie M.'s husband. He also deserves a vote of thanks.

Sir Hopkins gave us some fine selections on the piano, her husband playing the violin. Closing with the Star Spangled Banner.

Mrs. Charles Beebe played the piano while two ladies sang. (I do not know their names, but I know that all appreciated it).

Christmas gifts were exchanged and as usual we had a lovely dinner.

Merry Christmas TO ALL SOCIAL CORNER MEMBERS

JUST A NUTS BROWN BREAD

Dear Social Corner Readers: I must write a few words as "thank those who helped me at our last meeting. I am sorry I didn't get around that day to thank them but maybe they will forgive me. I have a pair of gloves, a knife, a gold band cup and an embroidered dish towel which were left at the hall. If any one doesn't call for them before I will bring them to the meeting.

Lady Lou: I have the yellow bow. You didn't take it. I will see that it gets there on time.

Dorothy Bradford: Here is my brown bread recipe:

Brown Bread: 2 cups corn meal, 1 cup rye meal, 3 cups sour milk, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 tablespoon soda, salt, and raisons if you like; steam 4 hours.

I am sending the description of the oil cloth doll. As you will see the ruler slips right through the sleeves; the legs hold the pencils. The jacket is cut from table oil cloth measuring 11 inches across the arms and 7 inches in length. The oil cloth is cut double as it is to be same at back as front. Cut slits in front to insert pencils and blanket stitch around. The legs are cut 2 inches wide and 7 inches long. Insert them between layers of jacket. You can blanket stitch in any color but every one seems to prefer the red. The pig tails are made of embroidering floss. One skein makes 3. This serves as a loop to hang it up by. The features are drawn with black enamel paint with red ink for the cheeks. The head is stuffed a little with either cotton or soft rags. I use silketeen for the blanket stitch around the edge. This can easily be wiped off with a damp cloth if they become soiled and cost very little to make them. In order that the stitching around the edge may be even I lengthen the stitch on my sewing machine as long as possible and stitch all around the edge with no threat in the needle. This makes the stitches more uniform with less trouble.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

JUST A NUT.

HELPS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS' MINDS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members of the Corner: This article is not on household helps, or the practical side of our work, but help for a housekeeper's mind is as important as helps for the hands. Therefore I have put down three things which make my housework more agreeable. In our helps we use The Bulletin cooking recipes, its housekeeping helps, its styles and suggestions, and its advertisements, but how many of us get the mental help from the articles printed on its pages?

For instance that bit of philosophy printed at the top of the Social Corner page if pinned in our calendars where we could read it many times before the next one came would help us through many a hard day. Often it seems as if the Social Corner editor writes it especially for me.

Then there is the editorial and a great many times sayings of prominent men. Those famous words of great men if pinned where our eyes can see would thrill us with their strength and beauty even when our hands are busy with the dreaded task of washing dishes. Perhaps this task would not be so distasteful if we occupied our minds with courageous words.

The daily poems should be clipped out and put in the work basket, to be read when we are darning stockings, when our mind would be a blank or filled with petty troubles. Read the articles penned by the "Man Who Talks." His letters are so inspiring. There is so much in the Monday's paper—Woman in Life and in the Kitchen—so many helps. I sometimes think as far as help goes it outweighs the Corner. I would think the Social Corner members could see that, and try to brush up.

Sometime since one sister wrote she didn't like the word "slacker." What would we write for a substitute?

HILLSIDE.

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Readers: Did you ever think how many generations have preserved for us a wealth of quaint old customs and colorful traditions? Whether we realize it or not the spirit and the rites of ancient Yuletides are woven into the magic of our Christmas season.

Good Housekeeping says: "The Christmas tree is older than Christmas. Old-world legends have enshrined the mischievous mistletoe and the holly with its bright sheen and vivid color as the royal Christmas greens. The Yule log rolled in with a cheer and lighted with the fire kept burning from the year before is a fragment from pagan days."

I have always thought these old time customs did not care for elaborate trappings. Their keynote was simplicity. They meant mirth, jollity and happy activity, and I believe here is just the reason children everywhere hail their revival with delight. As the Christmas festival really belongs to them, should they not take a very active part in all the Christmassy preparations? Do not shut them out of one. A ready-made Christmas with quantities of perfected toys, holds little appeal for those children who have experienced the joy of fashioning the holiday decorations and gifts from simple beginnings. How they revel in planning little surprises in the furtive wrapping of gay packages in the air of secrecy and the joyous bustle as Christmas comes nearer. All these will form the most precious threads in the fabric of their Christmas memories in later years.

There is magic in the very thought of Christmas cooking, especially when each one has a share in it. Even the tiniest child should be allowed to take a real part in preparing for the Christmas feast.

Home is a workshop where personalities are in the making as well as meals. Cooking leads itself uniquely to the creative instinct in children. It gives them a sense of responsibility and makes them feel they are of service at a time when this work may easily become a burden to the busy housekeeper.

Let us temper Christmas feasting and make the season a festival of old time picturesque customs. Light our candles and let them flash from every window on Christmas eve. Roll in our Yule log and bring the embers to new life from ancient hearth stones. May it truly be said of all us that "we know how to execute this."

Rosalite: I read your request about how to make a pin ball. Take two caps that cover the milk jars, and cover each with a piece of cotton cloth a little larger than the cap, shirr the outside edge, all around. Then lay the cap inside of this lining, and fasten it with a buttonhole stitch. After covering these with the cloth, cut an outside large enough to almost meet when gathered up in the center or after gathering the edge and putting it up in the center. (I did have a habit of putting sachet in the center but haven't for some time). Now place the two jar caps together after covering and overhand them together. Place the pins in between.

KITTY LOU.

WE ARE JUDGED BY OUR TALK

Dear Editor and Members: How many ponder, at the close of a day, on how much time one wastes? Minutes are precious things, we should not spend them in viperous talk or thought. Thoughts are living things and we are continually sending them out into the great world we can space, there to mingle with other like vibrations and swell the influence either for good or evil according to the substance or degree of vibration which we send. There again our mind is like a radio, somewhat. We respond to different vibrations at different times. Reject the evil thought and presently the mind will not harbor or respond to the evil vibration. Same as if we do not use our hand, in time we would loose the power to use it. A person is judged largely by his or her talk. If we continually talk about the faults in other people, there are listeners about who feel the evil that exists in our own minds, not in the person maligned.

This is just another way of saying: "If you can't say anything good of a person, keep silent."

I started to write this letter because I happened to read the following: "You have not wasted the attention you have shown your mother; the time you have spent working with your father; the flowers you have sent to a sick friend; the time you have spent in worship; the courtesy you have shown friends; the effort sent in training for a specific line of work; the days spent in school."

A very merry Christmas to all

GOOD RECIPES

Dear Sisters: These recipes are good for any time:

Fruit Punch: (For 24). 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 quarts of water, 1 cup lemon juice, grated rind 1 orange, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind, 2 cups of orange juice. Cook sugar and water together for 5 minutes (220 degrees Fahrenheit). Cool and add other ingredients. Ice and serve.

Bride's Salad: 3 tablespoons rice, 2 cups boiling water, if desired, 1-2 cup chopped peanuts, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup orange juice, 1 package cream or Old English cheese, or a circle of sliced oranges. Add washed rice to fast-boiling salted water, and cook 7 minutes, stirring occasionally. Drain and blanch rice with hot water and cook over water until tender in one cup of orange juice. Stir once or twice, but be careful not to break the grains. Cool and add chopped peanuts, if desired, mold attractively and set on a bed of lettuce, garnishing with rings of sliced oranges and cream cheese, serve with fruited French dressing. This salad is delicious.

Uncooked Fudge: 1 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons cream, 1-4 cake bitter chocolate, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 pound confectioners' sugar, white of one egg. Melt chocolate and butter over hot water. Add to beaten white of egg, sugar and cream, add vanilla. Beat thoroughly again, smooth out on buttered pan, cut in squares.

Uncooked Fondant for Peppermints and Chocolate Mints: 1 egg white, 2 tablespoons cold water, sifted confectioners sugar, beat the egg, add cold water and confectioners' sugar enough to make a firm paste, add 1-4 teaspoon essence of peppermint, 1 ounce of bitter chocolate, melted. Roll the candy into small balls, then flatten them down.

Chocolate Marshmallow Cake: 3 squares unsweetened chocolate cooked with 1-3 cup milk, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, all cooked together until smooth. Cream 1-2 cup of butter, 1 cup of sugar, add slightly beaten yolks of 2 eggs and 2-3 cup of milk, 2 cups of flour sifted with 2 teaspoons of baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Then stir in the chocolate mixture and mix well. Bake in layer tins in a quick oven. When cool spread with marshmallow icing between layers and on top of the cake.

GUESS WHO.

SOME FINE CHICKEN DISHES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: When the surplus cockerels, roosters and old hens are killed off, the good cook is especially interested in recipes that add variety to the old-fashioned conventional ones of roasts, fries and fricassees. It is generally understood that an old fowl should be steamed, or cooked a long time, allowing it to simmer, rather than to boil hard. When it is so large that a portion of it is left to be served for a second meal, try some of the following methods:

Breakfast Pie: Put a layer of mashed potatoes in bottom of baking dish, dot with butter and sprinkle with salt and white pepper. Add a little of the breast meat of chicken, or the white meat of any other fowl. Over this put covering of mashed potatoes, butter sparingly and bake until top is lightly browned.

Queen's Chicken: Remove the cooked meat from the bones, cut in small pieces, and serve in a sauce made as follows: Dissolve two tablespoons flour in two cups sweet milk, add two tablespoons butter. Cook until sauce thickens, then mix in one hard-boiled egg chopped fine, two tablespoons green peppers chopped fine, one teaspoon grated onion, and half teaspoon salt. Five minutes before serving stir in the chicken.

Sunday Evening Feast: To three cups cold boiled rice add two tablespoons fine cut chives, two tablespoons chopped parsley, four tablespoons green pepper cut fine, one teaspoon curry powder, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon lemon juice, one teaspoon butter, one hard-boiled egg chopped fine, and six olives pitted and chopped, make a nest of the rice and in it put two cups chicken meat. Set in refrigerator until wanted, and just before serving garnish top with parsley or watercress and very thin slices of lemon.

Corn With Chicken: Put one can of corn, half cup flour, one teaspoon butter, one beaten egg, half teaspoon salt and half as much pepper in a double boiler and cook, adding a little sweet milk if it seems too thick. Lastly, add two cups chicken fat, if you have it, serve while hot.

Royal Chicken: Cut the white meat of chicken in small pieces, put in a saucepan and add half as much green peppers cooked in butter and salt to taste, then add sufficient sweet cream to make of the consistency of cream potatoes. Heat at the rate of three times, cook for five minutes, and serve in individual dishes.

Chicken Puffs: To two cups chopped chicken add two beaten eggs, half cup mashed potatoes, half cup cracker crumbs, half teaspoon salt, half as much pepper, one small onion grated and a little minced parsley. Drop in buttered gem pans and bake until nicely browned. Serve at once.

English Chicken Pie: Pare six medium-sized potatoes, cut in small pieces, cook until tender, but not broken, then add two cups chicken meat and half cup fresh pork cooked and cut in small pieces. Cover with a crust made as follows: Sift three teaspoons baking powder with two cups flour, add two tablespoons shortening and half teaspoon salt. Rub thoroughly together and mix with one small cup milk. Put on floured board and press out with the hands to size required to cover chicken pie. Bake 20 minutes and serve hot.

How true the topic of our last Saturday Social Corner was, I do want to send in these few lines on "Work," that I have read:

Let me but do my work from day to day,
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring market place or tranquil room,
Let me but feel it in my heart to say,
When vagarant wishes beckon me astray,
"This is my work, my blessing, not my doom;
Of all who live I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way."
Then shall I see it not too great nor small,
To suit my spirit and to prove my power;
Then shall I cheerful greet the laboring hours,
And cheerful turn when the long shadows fall
At eventide to play and love and rest,
Because I know, for me, my work is best.

VAN DYKE.

Wishing you all a most glad and happy Christmas is the wish from

MOTHER PRESTON.

GREETINGS FROM BOX 82, SANFORD, FLORIDA

Dear Editor and Friends of the Social Corner: As it has been a long time since I met any of you will visit with my pen.

Arrived here by train Dec. 3. It was quite cool for a few days and then we had a week of regular summer weather. Had the doors and windows open and went out without having to stop for wraps. Sunday it came off cooler again and winter clothes were comfortable to wear to church. When we arrived there the janitor had heat in the radiators.

I cannot say this year that we did not have a stormy day as Monday was a rainy day with temperature at 50 all day.

We are very comfortable with a good fire to sit by and we know that this cold spell will soon pass and the delightful weather will come again.

The poinsettias are very large and showy this year and there are many other shrubs and plants in blossom. People have their plants, such as petunia, marigold, stocks, calendula, etc., all set in the ground started for spring flowering.

Just in this section the citrus fruits do not seem very plentiful. Many of the trees had June blossoms and oranges from them are still green so will be quite late. What oranges we have had were very good flavor.

The farmers are as busy as ever with their various crops. They have been handicapped this year by a very dry season.

Some of you may remember my sweet potato patch I mentioned when we were at Nely Gray's home. They made a wonderful growth. Some of the vines were as much as a rod long and did look so thrifty. But alack! and alas! Some one was hungry and went into my "tater" patch and when I went to get my share there was but a peck left for me. Was glad to have the pleasure of seeing so many and some of them were quite large, would weigh close to a pound should judge, but have no scales to verify the facts of the case.

Some of my cuttings of shrubs which I put into the ground last winter lived in spite of the dry weather and shall put in some more this year.

As I write am running over in my mind all the different people I know in the north who will read this letter and I send each of you the best wishes of the season and hope you will be blessed with good health and happiness through the coming year.

As I close the sun is shining and it will soon be warm and summery once more and then shall be but tending my flowers.

No more this time from

AT CHRISTMAS TIME.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Once more Christmas is almost here and most of us have been unusually busy of late. I am sorry that for salespeople in our stores and post office employes this joyous season brings so much of extra work. I remember what it meant to me when for three years I was a saleswoman in a department store. During my first Christmas rush, working from 8 a. m. to 9 or 10 p. m. I lost five pounds of needed flesh and I have never regained them although quite a goodly number of years have passed since then. I hope that in the near future this last minute rush may be largely done away with.

Already there is an air of secrecy and expectation especially among the children. Sad indeed is it that any child should be overlooked at Christmas time. We forget many things as the years roll along, but who of us will ever forget Santa Claus' visits in the days when life was new?

Humble gifts may be the best we can offer but most of us are too poor to give something of cheer and plenty of good will.

So may our corner members be filled with the true spirit of Christmas.

EVELINE BURR.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Those who were not present at the Christmas meeting of Club No. 1, Dec. 14, missed a real treat. It was a bright day and about 100 sisters were present. Looking around the hall we saw sisters from Mansfield, Norwich, Franklin, Hartford and other places. It reminded us of Sir Harry Lauder's famous war song describing the boys in the army:

"They came from the north and south,
the east and west,
Each one doing his very, very best."

Each sister comes to these meetings expecting a happy time. Social Corner has a mission of good cheer.

Effie M. was hostess with able assistants. A good dinner was served at noon. There was an interesting programme of music on the piano and violin, recitations and readings. Would like to hear it again. There was a very pretty Christmas tree and presents for all. A mysterious box was offered as a present to the one who could guess what was in it. All kinds of things were suggested until a sister said: "A plant." She won it, a dear little coleus in a plant jar. To arrange such an interesting meeting requires a great deal of work and the members of Club No. 1 thank Effie M. for all she did to make the Christmas meeting a success.

Twice Twenty: Thank you. Did not know anyone was interested. We always like your letters. We agree with you that "scab" is a very harsh word and no one has a right to interfere with another in earning a living. Zanny is not the only one who likes liver. Your way of cooking it is good. There are many recipes for cooking it. Liver loaf is nice. The wise ones tell us now that liver is full of minerals and vitamines necessary to the blood and especially good for convalescents after operations or for anaemia. Liver should be cooked at low temperature, heat toughens it.

Wishing all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

START NEW YEAR RIGHT.

Dear Editor and Sisters: I thought I must write a few lines. I didn't want to go over Christmas without wishing all a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year. The old year is most gone again, the new one will begin soon and let us hope there will be many Social Corner picnics the coming year. Let us start the year right by trying to help one another as much as we can and pass by their faults as much as possible because you know we all are liable to fail in a good many things. Start the year with a smile and a kind word which goes a long, long way. Count your many blessings, name them one by one as Christmas is most here.

I am going to send in some recipes that have been tested as no doubt there will be many home gatherings and some will be quite large so I am going rather on a large scale. I will tell you how I managed about my cooking. First I will tell you how I made four layer cakes at the same time.

Layer Cake: Take a large milk pan to stir it in, four cups sugar, one-quarter pound of butter, creamed together, one-half spoon of salt, four small cups of milk, eight eggs, beaten well, tablespoon of vanilla and eight cups of flour with eight teaspoons of baking powder sifted with the flour. Beat for five minutes. Divide this mixture in half. To make the dark part I put in some nutmeg, about one-half teaspoon, cinnamon the same, and cake coloring to make it pink. Divide it in four layer cake pans and the light part the same. I just made two layers for each loaf. Bake about 15 or 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

My other recipe is for a large tapioca pudding. I take the same milk pan again, soak one package of tapioca and part of one more in three quarts of milk over night. In the morning beat six eggs well, add a good teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of nutmeg, three cups sugar, one cup raisins. Stir this with the tapioca and put in one quart or so more of milk. Bake in a slow oven for two hours or so and see if you don't have as nice a pudding as you ever ate.

Best wishes to all.

GREETINGS FROM PHIL-A-NEED.

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: Well here I am once more and, like Twice Twenty, felt I could not let Christmas go by without sending a greeting to you all, for this is the time we ought to be happy if we can for it is the birthday of our Lord and King. So to all the shutins I hope Santa Claus is good and when 1928 dawns you will all be feeling much better and able to be out, and may the New Year be the best ever for us one and all. Wishing you a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

PHIL-A-NEED. (Club No. 4.)

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner Members: Once more the holiday season is with us and I'm wishing the very best of everything to each and every member of our big Social Corner family.

To say, merry Christmas to those who have recently lost dear ones would seem tactless and out of place and to them I wish a peaceful Christmas.

As we look back on the year 1927 and take inventory, we find some disappointments also some successful ventures—the bitter and the sweet.

Because of the shadows, we more fully appreciate the sunshine, when it comes to us.

It may be a little late, but I wish to thank all those who remembered me on my birthday with cards and gifts. Your thought of me is much appreciated.

Because of the storm and having a hard cold at the time, I was unable to meet with Club 6 on December 13. From some who attended, I hear that as usual, everything went fine. Of course, everybody is as busy as can be. I have no big dinner to prepare as we are invited out for Christmas.

THE PEACE OF THE WORLD

This is the season of the year when there is much talk about peace. It would be well if there were more of that spirit and talk throughout the entire year. It doesn't always prevent war but the tendency is very strong in that direction. The educational value of such efforts is not to be regarded lightly. The good effects will grow through persistent endeavors and the sending home of the great facts.

It is maintained by Viscount Cecil of Great Britain that the making of rules for civilized war get us nowhere, but that safety lies only in "the peace mind." That can be assured through the bringing of increased thought and effort in behalf of peace instead of trying to take the rough edges off of war it is better to abolish it. That is a long step ahead, but it is certainly desirable and by continued and concerted action it can be made possible.

Efforts have been made to surround war with rules but they quickly become scraps of paper once war is started. War breaks down all such pacts and it becomes a case of doing anything to win. A nation isn't going to let a promise stand in the way of its own success. With its back to the wall it is going to resort to all the horrors and ruthlessness that have been so many times repeated. It is an old saying that all is fair in war. No nation is going to contribute to its own annihilation by refraining from doing what will prevent it, even though that very thing is prohibited in the rule book of civilized war. There have been numerous illustrations of this and the one effective way of eliminating it is through peace.

Peace on earth, good will to men comes in for particular attention at this season of the year. This Christmas message lends itself to those who are striving to put it into operation. It is no easy task but it is perfectly obvious that a sane and sensible adjustment of disputes is far preferable to all the horrors of war. That being granted there is every reason for diligently striving for a world, the nations of which are at peace and intend to remain so. It may seem far away like a dream but it is a desirable goal.

NEED PREVENTIVE MEASURES

Many are the suggestions which have been advanced for meeting the emergency created by the sinking of the S-4. People have voiced their views, put them down on paper and sent or carried them to the navy department. Many of these ideas have been set forth without regard for the technical problems involved or the fact that the submarine weighing 1,000 tons lies under 100 feet of water.

Nevertheless it is well that such interest is being manifested and such attempts are being made to render assistance under such trying circumstances. There appears to have been an unfortunate arrangement in regard to the giving out of news concerning the operations off Provincetown. This resulted in quantities of gossip being set forth and many statements being made which were not so. By statements which have been made by the navy department it appears that for the most part all the suggestions which have been advanced have been under study by the department although the idea of putting them into operation but they have been found impractical. In other words, when those who understand the entire situation bring to bear the many conditions which have to be met in a case like that of the S-4 they see where they would not work. This was determined following the loss of the S-51 although the experience in raising that sub is certain to be of the utmost value in the work being done on the S-4.

It doesn't appear, however, aside from the oscillators which submarines carry that there is any real safeguard against the repetition of just such an accident as that off Provincetown, for when a sub is rising the vessel on the surface has no means of knowing it. That this situation will result in the establishment of vessels to stand on guard while underwater boats are engaged in submerging tests, or some other equally effective means be adopted, seems called for. Had the Paulding received any adequate warning of the presence of the submarine there would have been no such accident. The avoidance of such conditions as prevailed at that time is needed in the future.

DEPORTATION HANDICAPS

Various difficulties are known to exist in connection with the deportation of aliens. Secretary Davis of the labor department directs attention to one of them when he advocates legislation that would suspend immigration from those countries which try to handicap this country in the sending back of aliens.

It is the practice here when deportation has been found advisable to send the aliens back to the country from whence they came by obtaining passports for them and paying their return fare. It can be understood that there are many instances when the other country would be better satisfied to have their subjects remain away since they do not wish to shoulder the obligation in connection with them. They even raise the question that they have become expatriated. It is to be realized of course that deportations do not concern those who have become citizens of this country. They are those who have been found to be undesirable, who came in under misrepresentations or who have developed a dependency which subjects them to the provisions of the deportation law.

Such aliens should go back to the country to which they belong. There's enough red tape involved without having other countries try to dodge the reception of their subjects by delaying the forwarding of passports or by using other methods of stalling proceedings.

The existing quota arrangement has greatly reduced the number of aliens coming to this country to reside. It has done this to such an extent that all sorts of schemes have been employed to escape it and thus avoid the delay. Many more wanted to come this year than could be admitted and it can be appreciated that if the bars should be put up higher for those countries which endeavor to escape receiving their subjects under deportation it would react upon their own people and seriously check the immigration flow.

If such a law existed it might not be necessary to employ it, but it would have the effect of informing other countries what is involved in delaying deportations.

SALVAGING THE S-4

The decision to continue operations on the S-4 looking to the salvage of the vessels must be regarded as the proper one at this time. How far it will be possible to get, or continue, there's no telling. Progress must depend to a large extent upon the weather. If by a combination of good weather and good fortune it is possible to get the submarine up it will be a wonderful accomplishment considering the serious handicaps which are being encountered at this time of year.

While little is known by the general public about the difficulties involved in such operations, sentiment it is believed will strongly support the decision which has been reached. To abandon the efforts without being forced into it by storm or weather conditions would create an unfavorable sentiment. This will be all the more true because of the lack of understanding on the part of the people who are anxious to see the submarine brought to the surface again even though it is realized that there can be no vestige of life aboard.

By the investigations which are underway, or that may be started, it is certain that much misunderstanding that has been created will be cleared up. But the situation is one that requires it. It is a situation that invariably follows such a disaster regardless of where the responsibility lies, but the feeling that all possible had not been done, however wrong that idea may be, would be greatly increased were the work on the S-4 abandoned when something at least might be done in connection with its recovery. It is to be realized, however, that it is a matter of salvage rather than rescue that is now at stake, and that such salvage operations under December conditions are not inviting. Nevertheless the idea of sticking at it till driven away is to be commended.

WHERE TROUBLE LIES

When comparisons are made between the reduction in train casualties from 43 in 1913 to 28 in 1926 for every million locomotive miles and the increase in the grade crossing fatalities, with four hurt on crossings for each 10,000 autos, it is apparent that there is a big problem involved in connection with railroad safety records. But it doesn't appear that the trouble lies with the railroads.

Crossing accidents have been increasing while other railroad accidents and fatalities have been decreasing. This seems to show conclusively that where the railroads are in control of the situation there is a marked improvement. When it gets to the point where safety depends upon the users of the highways as well as upon the railroads it is a different matter. The trouble lies in the fact that there is not that effort in behalf of safety being put forth by the users of the highways at grade crossings that there is in railroad operation.

In most of the crossing accidents the facts reveal that they might easily have been prevented. Crossing casualties are for the most part due to the highway users because they are not sufficiently solicitous for the welfare of themselves and those with them. Until there is an appreciation of the need of greater safety efforts by the auto drivers this increase can be anticipated. Nevertheless this grade crossing record can and should be greatly reduced through the proper cooperation of those who drive autos, and who are warned in various ways against the very traps in which they place themselves. Carelessness is at the bottom of most of the crossing accidents and fatalities. In the elimination of that lies one of the cheapest and most effective remedies.

EDITORIAL NOTES

'Twill be the night before Christmas.

The man on the corner says: Have you forgotten what mistletoe looks like?

It doesn't look as if there would be any peace prizes placed in China for 1927 efforts.

Are you being true to those clever stickers on the packages which say "Letter B till Christmas?"

The youngest class of auto drivers hasn't figured in as many accidents as some expected they would, although the number is enough. However, give them a chance.

It took China a long time to give the Russian communists a tryout, but now that the test is over and the Chinese have turned against the soviets those in Canton are doing it with a vengeance.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

We are quite familiar with the expression that "coming events cast their shadow before." It is likewise true that many of them, those of the most importance, also leave behind them a trail of light. Now it is beyond doubt the consensus of all intelligent opinion that the supreme event of human history was the coming of the Messiah. In this world of ours, both the tangible and the intangible, we are impressed with the proximity of opposites. To illustrate from the field of nature. The Himalayas, the highest of the world's mountain ranges, lie nearest to the Indian ocean, the deepest of all the known waters of the globe. Mammoth wealth is not found in one place, and the direst poverty somewhere else. Neither is found in small country places, but in the metropolitan cities. It is in New York, Chicago, London, Paris and the like where the millionaire and the pauper jostle one another on the street. The luxury of Fifth avenue is not far from the squalor of the East Side.

Does not this fact hold equally good in the world's religious history? If measured by its spiritual importance to the world, no event shines with greater luster than the coming of the world's Redeemer. Was not that event immediately preceded by the longest period of physical, mental and moral darkness in all the history of mankind? From the time when Malichi ends the Old Testament and Matthew begins the New is nearly 400 years of the dreariest era in the history of mankind. Josephus has given a graphic account of this dismal mental and moral Sahara. Isaiah was not wrong in saying that the people "were walking in darkness and dwelling in the land of the shadow of death." The physical forces of the then known world were exhausted by constant warfare. It was an era of universally enforced peace.

Is it not true that the things that are the longest in coming are usually the very things that stay the longest after they come? It is generally accepted by geologists that this earth was millions of years in coming to its perfected state—when fitted for the existence of animal life. It is also their belief that it will be equally long in relapsing into its original chaos. When Columbus made his wonderful voyages of discovery, there were trees growing in California, and they are still standing to the admiration of all tourists. This at least is the teaching of botany. There are insects that come into life in the morning, reach maturity before sunset and die the next day. Several thousand years seemed necessary to prepare mankind for the coming of its Lord, and that is a very long time. It is now nearly 2,000 years since he came and there is much yet to be done.

In the world's long pre-Christmas period, in what sense can it be said that "the people walked in darkness and dwelt in the land of the shadow of death?" First, this long period was dark because they had only thus far received a partial revelation of Jehovah. The One who was soon to appear on earth was to be the Light of the World, the highest honor that could be given to mortal man. As yet He had not come, his coming had only been hinted at, merely predicted. The Jehovah of the Jews was an infinitely finer conception of the Almighty than any other nation possessed. There was no nation of antiquity comparable to the Jews for carrying out God's historic plan of human redemption. It is hardly fair to compare the Jewish code of morals with the higher Christian. But they shine resplendent when put alongside of those of any contemporaneous nation. Theirs was the worship of the one true God, while others was the idolatry of paganism.

Secondly, brute force was the only means known for settling personal and national differences. That is a very conspicuous reason why for so long a period, "the people walked in darkness, and dwelt in the land of the shadow of death." During this long and dreary pre-Christmas night they had not seen "a great light," neither upon them "had the light shined." If one party of belligerants had suggested to another that they settle their disagreements by arbitration rather than be resorting to arms it would have been looked upon as a confession of weakness, or downright cowardice, and would probably have been answered by more than the usual cruel savagery. In an age when brute force sat upon the throne nobody thought of settlement other then by bloodshed. It is enough to make us moderns hide our faces in shame that we have not more fully learned the great fundamental lesson of the Prince of peace "that we love one another."

Thirdly, in this pre-Christmas period, even the "chosen people" had no broad and intelligent outlook upon mankind as a unit. Because they had been chosen by Jehovah to be the channel through which the record of God's historic work in human redemption should be made known to the world at large, instead of being humble and feeling their unworthiness for such distinguished honor, they became proud, puffed up, and cynical. They began to think in terms of the "inferiority complex" as far as outside nations were concerned. It is a very serious condition for either an individual or a nation to be so possessed with the idea that it is superhuman. "The Jews would have no dealings with the Samaritans"—why not? We will pardon the ancient people of Israel for having such high notions, but is there a shred of reason why any modern people should regard themselves as 100 per centers?

Fourthly, another reason why they did not emerge into the full light of revelation sooner than they did was because they had no science to explain the various phenomena of nature. From the time they exchanged their Egyptian Bondage for permanent settlement in the Promised Land, knowledge of coming events was revealed to then just in proportion to their intellectual ability to grasp them an' the moral purpose to make the most of them. We ought to remember that the Old Testament was never designed as a text-book of science. It was not until the minds of men had dared to use the liberty that came with the reception of the gospel that the light led them into fields never dreamed of during the Old Testament dispensation. It was this daring that urged men to look into unknown fields that brought our modern astronomy to light. The older ideas of the great elemental forces made men fearful, and there is nothing that so retards the progress of a man or a nation as fear, unless it is sin itself. The truth makes men free.

Now these are the main reasons why in this long pre-Christmas season "nations walked in darkness and in the land of the shadow of death." But we must remember that during this long period the light was slowly unfolding. It was a long distance from "the woman that shall bruise the serpent's head" to the sublime words of Isaiah, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace!" The great theme that shall be proclaimed in the churches of all denominations, and in all the habitable places of the world will be that of Immanuel, the Lord with us. No merely national theme can call forth such a chorus of praise. It is the greatest theme.

The Supreme Need of America: A Christmas Sermon.

By Richard B. Wilson, Editor, Manufacturers Record.

THE supreme need of this country is a nation-wide revival of the old-time, genuine prayer-meeting religion.

A religion that makes men realize that the same Divine authority that tells us that there is a Heaven also tells us there is a Hell. If we accept the belief in a Heaven, we must accept from the same authority the belief in a Hell—

A religion that makes men realize that every act of evil is recorded on their conscience and that, though it may sleep for a while, it can never die—

A religion that makes an employer understand that if he is unfair to his employes and pays them less than fair wages measured by his ability and their efficiency and zeal, he is a robber—a robber of his employes and a robber of himself of honor—

A religion that makes an employe know that if he does not give full and efficient service to the extent of his ability, he, too, is a robber—a robber of his employer's time and a robber of his own character—

A religion that makes a farmer who packs bad fruit at the bottom, to deceive the buyer by the good fruit on the top, realize that he is a thief just as much as the one who robs a hen roost at night, and is thereby destroying his own character—

A religion that makes a man who robs a railroad of its fare or freight bill know that he not only robs the road, but that he also robs himself of all right to feel that he is an honest man—

A religion that makes a man realize that by driving too hard a bargain with his servant, his employe or his merchant, he can be just as much a robber as the seller or purchaser who swindles by false weight, false packing or false claims—

A religion that will teach church members who fail to contribute to the extent of their ability to the support of religion that they are robbing God and man alike, and compels them to recognize that if they are paying their pastor less than a living salary they also are robbing God and man alike—

A religion that makes the minister of the Gospel realize that he has not been called by Heaven to preach on economic questions about which he knows very little, but to preach in all its fullness "Christ and Him Crucified," or else the blood of the lost will be upon him—

A religion that will make labor men who by threats or by actual violence endanger the lives of other laboring men or the property of others realize that at heart they are murderers for they are seeking to murder the liberty of their fellow-men, and are murdering their own best individuality and character—

A religion that will make the politician who yields principle to his party politics, who worships at the feet of any class to secure votes and sells his soul for preferment, not only know that he is a coward and a poltroon and unworthy of the respect of any decent man, but also will make him see that he is helping to murder human liberty—

A religion that makes every newspaper worker feel the tremendous responsibility of the press to help mold and shape for good the people of this land in this day of wild turmoil in thinking and acting that he may appreciate his high calling, or prove recreant to God and humanity—

A religion that will make every man who pretends to be a Christian realize that if he violates the laws of the land, whether it be the prohibition laws or others, merely to gratify his own views or desires, he is to the extent of his influence breaking down all law, and has no right to expect that his family and his friends will not violate any law, moral or statute, which does not suit their convenience—

A religion that is active, not passive—

A religion that gives a man backbone to stand for the truth, however great may be the dangers that he may have to face in upholding the right as God gives him the power to see the right—

A religion that will make men realize that the most stupendous event beyond all human comprehension is that the Creator of the vast universe, the study of which staggers the human mind, so loved mankind in all its waywardness that He "gave His only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." No finite mind can possibly grasp the full meaning of his love, nor of the death upon the Cross which followed for the salvation of the world—

A religion that literally burns itself into the brain and the heart and the soul of every man who professes to be a Christian, and makes him realize that the one supreme thing in his life and in the life of those with whom he comes in contact is by his life to uplift the Cross, that men may be drawn unto Him who, upon that Cross, gave his life for sinners—

In short, we need a revival of that soul-searching religion which will make men and women strive in every act of life to do that which on the great Judgment Day they will wish they had done, as with soul uncovered they stand before the Judgment Seat of the Eternal.

Until the people of this nation accept and live this religion, there will be strife where there should be harmony; there will be strikes and lockouts and murder where there should be co-operation and peace; there will be law violation where there should be law obedience; there will be hatred where there should be friendship and love.

With the Golden Rule followed in the fullness of the spirit of this kind of religion, there would be found a solution for every business trouble. There would be created friendship between employer and employe. Capital and labor would work in harmony and with efficiency—efficiency of the capital and efficiency of the labor, with profit to both.

Religion of this kind is not measured by the hope of Heaven hereafter nor the fear of Hell, but by the full fruition now of "peace on earth to men of good will." It is not merely the chanting of hymns or the offering of Pharisaical prayers, but it is in the recognition and full application by rich and poor, by learned and unlearned, that each one is indeed his "Brother's Keeper," that we can bring this country and the world back to safety. A nation-wide acceptation of this, in heart and in life, would bring peace and world peace, where there is now turmoil, and men would then cease to seek to gain their ends by lawless acts of immorality, but would, in spirit and in deed, follow the Divine command:

"All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Wehn professional baseball appointed a "supreme arbiter" some years ago it set an example that has been followed by many lines in "big business." The latest of groups in business which have placed themselves as a unit under the guidance of a director is the four-billion-dollar dairy industry of the United States. The man selected for this position by the National airy council is Dr. C. W. Larsen, now chief of the dairy bureau, United States Department of Agriculture. Dr. Larsen is a graduate of the Iowa College of Agriculture. YOUR HEALTH

GOITER.

By Charles Calvin Tiffin, M. D., Seattle, Wash. Member Gorgas Memorial.

All too often we fail to grasp the real vital truth in many subjects commanding our interest. This is particularly true where we interest ourselves in the problem having to do with the economics of good health.

Take for instance the subject of goiter. Most of us, upon hearing or reading of this subject, immediately think of a large neck or something we have read regarding iodine or possibly of an "inside" goiter so-called, or an "outside" goiter so-called, which is visible. As a matter of fact all goiters are inside the neck either wholly or partly so.

The large irregularly shaped goiters, which we see in grown people, probably were there when the individual was born, but probably did not begin to grow large enough to be noticed until puberty, that is, about the time the child was 13 or 14 years of age. This kind of goiter cannot be cured by medicine but can be prevented by the proper use of iodine if the iodine is taken by the mother before the child is born and if carefully used by the family physician while the child is growing. Women and men who have these large irregularly shaped goiters cannot take iodine safely and should consult their family physician.

The exopthalmic goiter does not show much in the neck. It usually comes in people averaging 35 years of age who have never had goiter before. It begins to make the person nervous and in a short time much weight has been lost. With this nervousness comes shortness of breath, sweating, increased appetite, rapid and pounding heart, weakness in the legs, and loss of strength, loss of sleep, tendency toward crying, etc., etc.

There is still another kind of goiter where the neck is smooth and round, soft and large, which is the so-called colloid goiter occurring in children and some adults. It can be cured with the careful use of iodine or thyroid tablets.

No goiter, however, should be treated by yourself. Go to your family physician. He will know what kind you have and what should be done to get rid of it.

Stories That Recall Others

The Kind She Lived

Little Margaret was visiting her grandparents in the country. One day she heard her grandfather say he was going to plant potatoes that day. She said:

"Oh, grandpa! Please plant them all mashed potatoes so grandma will have them every time I come to see her."

Chickens Without Rubbers

Safety first in the home requires children to wear rubber overshoes in rainy weather. That fact had been impressed upon four year old Henry who one day looked out of the window and exclaimed, "Oh, look, mom, there's one of Mrs. Adams' chickens out there in the yard with no rubbers on. What do you think of that?"

Sunday Morning Talk

FOLLOWING THE STAR.

"For we have seen his star in the east, and have come to worship him," Matthew, 2:2. When they heard the ring they departed, and lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy." Those men of old followed the star that was the goal to find the child Jesus. Now we need at the present time to keep our eye fixed on the star, but the Christ is with us and the star will lead us upward, onward through the troubled mazes of life if we do not lose sight of the star.

If they had been careless or forgotten the star it would not have led them to the Child Jesus.

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary, his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him, and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts: gold and frankincense and myrrh. They gave of their best. So we must also give of our best. The very best gift we can give is not gold or gems. No, it is our love and our lives is all we need, and when we have given what He most desires we shall gladly follow that star which guided those travelers so many years ago. If the people as a whole were truly following that star now, what a wonderful world it might be. The master's love would fill their hearts and they would be striving to live as should be pleasing to Him.

Let us give of our heart to Him who gave His life a ransom. And like Paul, say "This one thing I do." Blessed night when first that plain Echoed with the joyful strain: "Peace has come to earth again."

Little Whitefoot Is Caught.

A moment's carelessness, ah, me!
How great so small a thing may be!
—Old Mother Nature.

Little Whitefoot the Wood Mouse had felt the spirit of peace which had stolen all through the Green Forest when it was known that Terror the Goshawk was a prisoner over at Farmer Brown's. You wou dn't have thought that Whitefoot would have felt any spirit of peace, considering all the enemies he had, now would you? But he did. And it was an unlucky thing for him that he did. You see, it made him careless, just a wee bit careless for a moment.

Now, moments are very small things, but they may become very great things. It all depends on what happens in a moment. One may be perfectly safe one moment and in the very next may lose his life, just because of a little carelessness. So it doesn't pay to be careless even for one little moment.

White foot was sitting up on the end of a mossy old log, washing his face and hands, for Whitefoot is very neat. He has to wash those little hands of his often because, you know, they are white. To keep them white means taking a lot of care of them. It was in the daytime and Whitefoot knew that Hooty the Owl was not likely to be around. Reddy Fox had hunted all through there during the night. So had Old Man Coyote. They were not likely to return so soon. So, for the time being, Whitefoot was less watchful than usual, knowing as he did that Terror the Goshawk was no longer to be feared.

Now there was one person whom Whitefoot had forgotten. The one person was Black Pussy the Cat, who occasionally came down from Farmer Brown's to hunt in the Green Forest just for the fun of hunting. It happened that this was one of the days Black Pussy had chosen to go hunting. She had been stealing along through the Green Forest, making no sound with those padded feet of hers. Her fierce yellow eyes were constantly looking from side to side for some little movement that might mean the presence of a mouse. Suddenly she stopped. Yes, sir, that stop was really very sudden. From the corner of one eye she had caught just the least little bit of movement. Now she glared eagerly in that direction. What she saw was a pretty little fawn-colored mouse with a white waistcoat and white feet and a long tail busily washing his face and hands. Of course it was Whitefoot.

Inch by inch Black Pussy stole forward.

Inch by inch Black Pussy stole forward, all the time crouching very close to the earth. The tip of her tail twitched with eagerness. Nearer and nearer she crept to Whitefoot. There wasn't a sound. No one was there to give Whitefoot warning. Nearer stole Black Pussy—and nearer. The look in her yellow eyes grew fiercer. Her tail twitched with greater eagerness. Just a foot of two more and she would be within jumping distance.

Now if Whitefoot had not felt that peaceful spirit he would have been constantly looking around for danger. But he did feel that peaceful spirit and just for that little moment he was careless. Black Pussy was drawing her feet together under her. Suddenly she launched herself with a long, hard spring, straight at little Whitefoot. Her black paws with their cruel looking claws pinned him down. There was just a faint little squeak and then Black Pussy had Whitefoot in her mouth. She carried him by the skin of his neck, as a mother cat carries a kitten. She didn't bite him. You see she hadn't hunted him because she was hungry, but because she wanted to hunt.

Poor little Whitefoot! Holding her head up, Black Pussy proudly trotted up to Farmer Brown's house. She was very proud of her catch. What's that? Was Whitefoot dead? No, Whitefoot wasn't dead.

Christmas exercises at the Greeneville school were held in the different class rooms Friday afternoon. This procedure has been necessary for the past two years owing to the fact that the assembly hall in which the Christmas exercises of previous years were held is now occupied by class rooms in order to accommodate the increased number of pupils. The kindergarteners who have always had a Christmas tree and exercises of their own, followed the usual custom. Their class room was decorated with decorations symbolic of the season, these being made by the children. In addition to this many articles of a simple, yet practical nature were made by the children as presents for the folks at home. These articles occupied a prominent place on a gaily decorated tree and were distributed after the exercises. Games, recitations, songs and marches were given to the delight of many parents who attended the exercises, which were under the supervision of Miss Louise Hovey and Miss Madeline Sullivan.

MAJOR LEAGUES WILL TAKE UP DRAFT CLAUSE AT SPECIAL SESSION

CHICAGO, Dec. 29—(AP)—The minor league club owners were summoned today by President Mike Sexton of Rock Island to an extra session at French Lick Springs, Ind., on January 9, to take up again the major-minor draft problem, since the major leagues refused to accept the minors' Dallas pronouncement.

In their regular winter meeting at Dallas, the minors voted to forbid the five big minors from continuing under the modified draft, a system which permitted the majors to draft only those players from the five big minors that had originally come from the major league teams. This left the five big minors free to sell the players they had developed themselves, at fancy prices. The smaller minors complained, however, that the majors sought to evade this restriction by first signing up all the college and sand lot players in sight, leaving no recruits for the bush leaguers.

The five big minors at Dallas took this order in silence, but when the major leaguers assembled in New York they told the minors that the action did not suit them at all, and if the minors persisted the whole major-minor agreement was off.

The wording of the summons to his league presidents and club owners, President Mike Sexton of the minors said, in issuing the call, is broad enough to bring up the whole major-minor question again.

In addition to the blunt notice from the major leagues that their Dallas revision of the draft status quo was not acceptable, the smaller minors face a threat of revolt from the five big minors who have found the modified draft satisfactory, these five, the American association, the International, Western, Three Eye and Pacific Coast leagues, have talked of forming an organization of their own, if the smaller leagues persist in their stand.

Rumblings of dissatisfaction with the Dallas decision have been heard from all of these five circuits, which receive the majority of the major league discards and youngsters, and likewise, sell most of the high priced players to the two big leagues.

HAHN NOT TO RUN FOR ANOTHER MONTH

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Lloyd Hahn will not run his first mile of the indoor season for another month, but beginning with the Columbus council, Knights of Columbus games in New York on January 7, America's crack middle distance star faces a program that will see him in competition at least once and some times twice a week for practically the balance of the winter months.

Hahn today stepped off 600 yards against Jack Ryder's watch in one minute 16 4-5 seconds on the Boston college outdoor track in his first real speed test since he started training two weeks ago. The time was 1 4-5 seconds over the best mark he has ever turned in on that track and Ryder was highly satisfied with the performance. The thermometer stood at about 30 degrees, a stinging northwest wind was blowing and the runner wore a sweatshirt and a pair of mittens that would have done credit to a lumberjack.

"Hahn's time today was good for about 1:12 4-5 indoors," Ryder explained. "A time of 1:15 flat is 100 per cent for him on this track and he's got another two weeks before his first race on January 7. The speed is there all right."

Ryder indicated that he would not call on his star to run too many mile races this winter and for that reason the Boston athletic association coach will keep Hahn down to the 880 and 1,000 yard distances durin gthe early racing season. His first appearance will be in the 880 at the New York Knights of Columbus games on January 7. He will run another half at the Fordham university games the following Saturday and plans to enter the 1,000 in the Brooklyn college games on January 21.

The first mile will come on January 27 at the William C. Prout memorial games here when Hahn goes after his third leg and permanent possession of the James M. Curley trophy. Five days later he will run at the Millrose games in New York and two days after that in the annual Boston athletic association games here. The Millrose and B. A. A. distances presumably will be the mile unless persistent rumors that prominent French and German stars are going to compete come through. In that case two match races with an international flavor over the 1,000 yard or 1,000 meter distance seem probable.

HEAVY FINES ADVOCATED FOR BOXING FOULS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Stringent legislation imposing heavier penalties for fouling offenses by boxers was adopted by unanimous consent today by the New York state athletic commision whereby a fourth offender will be banned forever in contests in this state.

Instead of the customary 30-days suspension given a boxer on his first foul, the period has been extended to 60 days. Second offense in the future will draw 90 days, third offense six months and fourth, the revocation of a boxer's license.

Izzy Grove, Brooklyn boxer, was the first to be subjected to the new rule of the commission. He was suspended for sixty days for fouling Pal Silvers at the New Broadway Arena last Monday night.

The commission made known that its action today in no way was brought about by the Joe Glick-Tod Morgan junior lightweight championship bout a week ago when Glick lost on a foul in the 14th round.

As a matter of fact, the commissioners expressed sympathy for Glick and ordered Harold Barnes, one of the judges of the Glick fight to appear next Tuesday and explain his actions in distracting the attention of Referee Eddie Forbes.

According to the commission, Barnes gesticulated wildly, jumped up and down in his seat and shouted to Forbes during the progress of that championship tilt, trying to impress the referee that a foul had been committed.

ALL-EAST TEAM HAS WORKOUT AT STANFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23—(AP)—While their eastern rivals visited Stanford university today, the football team carrying the hopes of the west went through a stiff round of practice for the East-West charity game here December 26th.

Coach Orin E. Hollinbery of the West's aggregation, turned his immediate attention to fitting three new stars into places. They are Pat Wilson, fullback, Wright, guard, and Schuh, end, all of Washington, who arrived yesterday to complete the 31-man squad.

Coach Andy Kerr took his Eastern players to Stanford where the big Red team is preparing for its contest with Pittsburgh, January 2, at Pasadena. The East eleven's practice has been confined mostly to running through signals and passing and kicking.

Throughout the week, Coach Kerr has featured a backfield consisting of Ames, Washington and Jefferson, quarterback; Caldwell, ala, and Presnell, Nebraska, halfbacks; and Joesting, Minnesota, fullback.

The two Yale ends, Fishwick and Scott, have seen most service; Douds, Washington and Jefferson, and Randella, Nebraska, tackles; Baer, Michigan, and Hanson, Minnesota, guards; and Reitsch, Illinois, center. This combination is expected to start, because of the late arrival of some of his players. Coach Hollingbery's team has not taken such definite form as the Eastern eleven.

CRESCENTS TO PLAY ALL-MANCHESTER MONDAY

The Taftville Crescents open the home season Monday afternoon at Parish hall, tackling the speedy All-Manchester five. This club, composed of the majority of last year's South Manchester high school team, has been running up quite a name for itself during the past six or seven weeks, campaigning in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

They hae Ty Holland, last yvear's captain at the high school and one of the leading forwards of the state and with him there is Farr, another of Manchester high's most illustrious athletes.

It will be remembered that these two boys raised havoc with the Academy last year, beating them badly in the Silk town. In the all tournament several of the boys who are now playing with All-Manchester cavorted in brilliant fashion and drew much praise from folowers of the scholastic end of the game.

Against this club Taftville who will be playing only her second game will have to travel at top speed to win. Manager Red Burrelle will rely on his regulars that performed so well in the second half against Danielson Thursday.

A large crowd is being prepared for as it looks like a real basketball game all the way.

JOHNSON APPEARS GREATLY IMPROVED IN HEALTH

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 23—(AP)—Byron Bancroft Johnson, for twenty-seven years president of the American league and now in retirement, left for Chicago today with his eyesight greatly improved after nearly a month's treatment in a St. Louis hompital. He will return next week for further treatment.

Johnson's general health appeared good and he said his eyes were rapidly regaining strength.

"I asked leave of absence to go to Chicago Saturday and Sunday," he said. "I have business that requires attention. I have not turned a hand since I closed up the American league's office many weeks ago."

De clearing he is "just an observer." Johnson refused to discuss baseball for publication except to say:

"I see no reason to believe that baseball will not continue to be as prosperous in the future as the past, if the shepherds of the game will watch the fold vigilantly. The gambling wolves may be silenced for the time, but they are a constant and secret threat."

Johnson has had many distinguished callers while at the hospital. He frequently has taken strolls or automobile rides. His principal indoor entertainment is the radio, over which he receives news, market and other reports.

DIXIE TEAM TO FACE A 200-POUND LINE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 23—(AP)—The pride of Dixie, All-South football team, will face a forward wall averaging 200 pounds to the man, from tackle to tackle, when gridiron hostilities are opened against the Pacific coast All-West squad at Coliseum here Monday afternoon.

The starting lineup for the westerners announced today by Coaches Howard Jones of Southern California, and Enoch Bagshaw of Washington, indicated that five of the first line coasters would scale around a tenth of a ton on the hoof, each.

Coaches McDugin, Wade and Alexander likewise posted their selection today for the opening lineup. Bill Spears of Vanderbilt, who is still high in the air on his spring to football fame, has been picked to start at quarter for the invading southerners.

Estes of Georgia and Brown of Alabama, halfbacks, will flank Spears to port and starboard. Dodson of Tennesee will work the fullback post. The southern line named to block the beef of the western wall is: Crowley of Georgia Tech., and Creson of Vanderbilt, ends; Pickard of Alabama, and Hood of Georgia Tech, tackles: Bowdoin of Alabama, and Barnhill of Tennesee, guards, and Sharpe, of Vanderbilt, center.

Clear weather, not too cold and not to hot, has been indicated for Monday.

FRENCH PLAYERS ARE BEATEN AT PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The French tennis trio, composed of Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus, met the first defeat of their world tour when they were beaten in three matches by Philadelphia players on the indoor court of the Penn Athletic club here today.

Borotra, renewing his rivalry with William T. Tilden, 2d, former national champion, was beaten in straight sets, 7-5 6-4.

Brugnon was more valiant but no more successful against Manuel Alonso, losing 12-10, 3-6, 6-1.

Borotra teamed with Boussus, the 17-year-old left handed Gallic star, in a doubles match and they were beaten by Tilden and R. N. Williams in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4.

New Shoes for Langford

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—A pair of number 18 shoes will make up a part of a Christmas box to be given "Old Sammy" Langford, former "Boston Tar Baby" of the prize ring, who, almost blind, has been an inmate of the County Alms house here for the past year.

A local civic club found the shoes to fit Sam after an extended round of shops, but failed to locate a shirt, collar size 21, for the one time pugilist.

Roberti and Gagnon Matched

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)— Roberto Roberto, Italian heavyweight of New York, and Jack Gagnon, of New Bedford, have been matched in the feature bout of an all-heavyweight Argonne A. A. show here next Friday to pick an opponent for Paulino Uzcudun when the Spanish woodchopper reaches Boston on his barnstorming tour. The card will include 40 rounds of boxing in seven bouts.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TOURNEY TO BE ABANDONED

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 23.—(AP)—The national high school invitation basketball tournament held annually at the University of Chicago by Athletic Director A. A. Stagg, may be abandoned in 1929, E. R. Townsend, secretary of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, said today.

Mr. Townsend said a majority of the states represented at a council meeting of the National Federation of High School Athletic associations at Chicago this month favored abandonment of the tourney and that the council would carry its recommendation before the federation convention in Boston Feb. 27.

The strain on the participating teams and the expense of competing were the reasons ascribed for dropping the traditional tournament.

TATE TO SUCCEED WENDELL AT LEHIGH

The new Lehigh mentor started his coaching career at Bethlehem high in 1922, where he had unusual success for four seasons. He resigned there at the close of the 1926 season to accept the post of freshman coach at Lehigh, and in his first season, just closed, the Lehigh freshmen went through their season without a defeat.

In his college days Tate also starred also in lacrosse and baseball

Aces Want Games.

The Chapman Aces of Willimantic are in the field for games and would like to hear from the Plainfield Buddies, Baltic Independents or any team of such calibre. Address all communications to Chapman Aces A. C., 47 Chapman street, Willimantic.

A Challenge.

The Y Emps challenge any boys' club team in the state averaging 17 years and any junior five in the city. Arrangements may be made by communicating with Mr Conklin at the Y. M. C. A.

American Roller Hockey League.

At Meriden: Meriden 9, Wallingford 5.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

There will be no game at the Y tonight.

The All-Hellers of Willimantic play Springfield Y. M. H. A. a week from tonight.

Stonington won its opener Thursday from the Alumni, 28 to 20.

Some nice basketball games ought to come about in these parts over the week end, or, in more general terms over the holidays. There are Battery E C. F. C., Plainfield-Boston Whirlwinds, Danielson, Emmet Guards of Worcester, Y. Emps-Phantom A. C., Taftville-Manchester.

The play in the New London City league has been somewhat curtailed because of the S-4 disaster. The government detachments in the loop have suspended play until after New Year's.

Randy Whaples has been named a member of the staff of officials in the New London loop.

Jimmy Burr, former Windham high and Trinity athlete, is coaching Kingswood Prep. He held an assistant coach job there last year but this season he has full charge of the quintet of this lively preparatory school in West Hartford.

Plainfield Pros now seem to be in full stride and it will take a good club to stop them while they remain in that mood.

Taftville and Danielson had quite a merry battle. If the Crescents had started their attack a bit sooner things might have been different but as it was the Danielson team played well.

SID TERRIS GETS VERDICT OVER M'GRAW IN SLASHING FIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—(AP)—Sid Terris, the East Side dancing master, whipped Phil McGraw, sturdy Detroit Greek, tonight in a slashing ten-round battle that featured an all-lightweight card in Madison Square Garden. Terris gained the judge's decision in spite of McGraw's strong finish.

Terris boxed rings around McGraw in the first six rounds, stunning Phil with well-directed shots to the jaw, but the New orker tired in the last four sessions. McGraw, one of the most rugged and persistent lightweights in the ring, absorbed all the wallops Terris had to offer and kept boring in. He was the aggressor, even when a trifle groggy, and was considerably stronger at the end than the shifty New Yorker.

Terris won five of the ten rounds, in the opinion of most ringside critics who gave McGraw two, the fifth and tenth, and deemed three as even. Terris did his best work in the second, fourth and sixth, rocking McGraw in each of these rounds with sharp hooks to the chin.

It was the third clash between these rivals within four months and gave Terris the edge. They had split two previous verdicts.

A crowd of more than 15,000 paid $54,916 to witness the scrap. Terris weighed 134 and McGraw 133.

The Preliminaries

Bruce Flowers of New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro lightweight, gained the judges' decision over Lou Paluso of Salt Lake City in a slashing eight-round semi-final bout. Flowers packed the stiffer punch but Paluso was the aggressor. The crowd booed the verdict for several minutes, apparently in the belief that Paluso's stronger finish had netted him to at least a draw. Flowers weighed 135 1-2, Paluso, 134 1-2.

In two close and hard fought eight-round preliminaries, Bobby Burns, 133 1-2, of New York, won the decision over Frankie Fink, 133 of Texas, while Jack Duffy, 133 1-2, of Toledo, carried off the verdict over Matty Mario, 135, of Staten Island.

The Norwich Bargain House

"ALWAYS MORE FOR LESS"

3-7 Water Street, Corner Washington Square Norwich, Conn.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The telephone was introduced into the city this week by the Norwich and Worcester railroad company, which has had several telephones installed in their various buildings. Other interesting extracts taken from the files of the Norwich Bulletin of 1877 are in part as follows:

Monday, Dec. 17, 1877—Speaking of porkers, Hanover trots out some yearlings that are hard to beat. E. W. Bingham has slaughtered one pig that weighed 540 pounds, T. F. Standish another weighing 515, and Henry Waters a third that balanced at 475.

John J. Cauley of this city has just been appointed valedictorian of the law class in Bishop's college, Montreal.

The first iron bridge that has ever been opened in Lebanon was opened for travel Wednesday, on the Norwich and Colchester turnpike. It is of fifty feet span. Friday it was subjected to a rolling load of 31,000 pounds, but without showing any appreciable deflection.

Tuesday, Dec. 18, 1877—Another heavy grunter less than 15 months old, fattened by Mr. H. G. Briggs of the West Side, has lately been slaughtered and weighed dressed 565 pounds. A city bred porker only a year old, kicked the bucket last week and then kicked the beam at 455 pounds.

The Rev. G. M. Bosworth of Ohio has accepted a call to the Colchester Congregational church.

The dry goods stores will keep open every evening this week instead of closing at 6 p. m., on Tuesday and Thursday, according to their usual custom.

The Academy closes for the term tomorrow.

Wednesday, Dec. 19, 1877—The hearing in the case of Bennett against the Norwich and Worcester railroad, which was left by the superior court to be heard by ex-Judge Seymour, was begun at the court yesterday. It is a demand for payment for the construction of the railroad tunnel on Laurel Hill. The arch portion of the tunnel, it is claimed by the company, was not done in a way to satisfy the contract, and hence only partial payment for the work was made. The company has since had repairs made on the masonry at their own expense. The hearing is likely to occupy several days.

The Central church, Worcester, has called the Rev. Daniel Merriman of Boston, formerly pastor of the Broadway church in this city, to its pastorate.

A buttercup which was picked Sunday was brought to the Bulletin office. It came from the premises of Amos E. Cobb of Norwich Town.

Thursday, Dec. 20, 1877—Those who witnessed the exhibition of the telephone at Breed hall a few weeks since, doubtless hardly thought it would soon be introduced into the city as a practical reality. Such bewing is the case, as the Norwich and Worcester railroad company are making use of it as a more ready means of communication between their several buildings.

Workmen were engaged yesterday in connecting the lines of the Atlantic and Pacific company with the Western Union Telegraph office.

The poultry dealers were selling fowls this week at the price of one shilling per pound.

Friday, Dec. 21, 1877—At the annual communication of Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., held Wednesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Robert A. France, W. M.; Arthur M. Brewer, S. W.; William P. Potter, Jr., J. W.; J. W. Gilbert, treasurer; Charles E. Whittaker, secretary; F. B. Durfey, S. D.; Henry Barlow, J. D.; George A. Rogers, S. S.; Howard L. Stanton, J. S.; H. C. Albro, tyler; John A. Bowen, marshal. They were installed by P. M. Edson E. Bishop, assisted by P. M. J. B. Marshon as grand marshal.

Work on Franklin street brook will now go forward again. If improvements on this brook are allowed to go a little further the courts will have less business then for a few years past.

Harry Bloodgood's minstrels will play Tuesday evening, Christmas, at Breed hall. Bloodgood is one of the best comedians of the day; his wittiness suggests the days of Bryant's and Sharpley's minstrels.

Saturday, Dec. 22, 1877—At the annual meeting of the Norwich Caledonian society held on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Chief or president, Allen McPherson; first chieftain or vice president, James Cherry; second chieftain or treasurer, Hector McConnell; third chieftain or recording secretary, Thomas Bisket; fourth chieftain or corresponding secretary, David Anderson; property committee, James Ireland, Robert Burmistown, and William McConnell; trustees, James Murray, William McKenzie and Thomas Balfour.

The special assembly of Columbian Commandery, No. 4, K. T., held at Masonic hall last evening, for the exemplication of the work of the temple, was attended by a large number of visiting sir knights from other cities. The Right Eminent Grand Commander the Hon. H. Wales Lines of Meriden, and Deputy Grand Commander Fred H. Parmelee of New London were present and paid Columbian Commandery the high compliment of being one of the best in the state.

The warm weather is having a bad effect on many shrubs and trees, as the winter buds have been unseasonably started since the falling of the leaves, and this is sure to produce injurious results when colder weather comes.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

Barnett chairman of the auditing committee with Companion E. Smith, as assistant. An invitation from the Foresters to attend their Ladies night was accepted.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

The senior regent appointed Past Regent Teresa Watters chairman of the installation supper to be held at the home, January 12th.

Guile Marie LaValle was appointed by the senior regent as chairman of the auditing committee, with Legionaires Mrs. A. Stockdale and Miss Irene Stockdale.

After the business meeting a social time was held with Dictator Wunderlich and other members of Norwich lodge, L. O. O. M. present as guests. There was a Christmas tree donated by Robert Sterry, and beautifully decorated by the women. Vocal solos were nicely rendered by Legionaires Mary Edwards and Anna Stockdale with Legionaires Florence Beresford accompanying on the piano. A feature programme was a whistling solo by Mrs. Herbert Rich, which was warmly applauded.

The entertainment closed with the singing of Christmas carols.

NORWICH TOWN

The pupils in several grades at the West Town street school have been rehearsing Christmas carols, under the direction of the singing instructor Miss Mary E. Rogers. Except for the fifth grade and a part of the fourth, which pupils are taught in another building, the remainder of the grades assembled in the principal's room at 1.30 Friday afternoon to sing carols, recite Christmas poems, etc.

Several of the rooms had Christmas trees and the teachers were presented gifts by the pupils, of whom 197 were enrolled for December. The total enrollment for the fall term was 204.

All the pupils received candy, those in the senior room having made special containers for theirs. The school closed Friday to open Tuesday, January 8, 1928.

The annual Christmas entertainment and festival of the First Congregational Sunday school, brought together a large assemblage of parents and friends of the children, Friday evening, at 7.30, in the chapel.

For some time the members of the primary department have been rehearsing, under the direction of Miss Louise P. Bailey, and all were well prepared.

The children are always very enthusiastic at this joyous time and the older ones are equally interested in the entertaining program of recitations and songs.

The principal feature, especially pleasing to the children, was the visit of Santa Claus, impersonated by Crosby Peck, who distributed the gifts from a decorated tree on the platform. The numbers were announced by Supt. Dwight W. Avery. Others on the committee were Misses Grace Wheeler and Ruth Sterry, also Reginald Avery, Robert Stott and Henry Counterman.

The program included: Welcome, Supt. D. W. Avery; hymn, Joy to the World, All; scripture reading, Matt. 2 1-12; prayer by the pastor, Rev. G. F Bailey; violin solo, Miss Ruth Sterry; reading, Trusty's Christmas, Miss Grace Wheeler; primary department exercises, Miss Louise Bailey, teacher; offering for the children of the near east; distribution of gifts from the tree by Santa Claus; doxology, all.

POETRY

Christmas Presents

The Christmas spirit—it is love,
God's love revealed at Bethlehem,
Love that illumined heaven above,
Sent down its rays to enlighten man;
Enwrapped within the manger lay
The Babe whose love wide earth shall fill,
Cleansing vile selfishness away,
Ennobling all Men of Good Will.

Through love, gifts from hand to hand,
Love given, more blest than love received,
Fragrance of love scents all the land,
In every home its sweets perceived;
"What shall to friend, our present be?"
Simply what best one's love may show,
Love's eyes will love's true value see,
Through trifles friends your love may know.

Though hushed be angel songs, love sings
More sweet, more strong, from year to year,
Christmas returning, freshly brings
Love's greetings, souls most gladly hear
But love the greatest, love beyond
All human loves, is Love Divine,
The Babe—by Mary tended, fond—
God's Christmas Gift was—be it thine!

Snow in the Suburbs

Every branch big with it,
Bent every twig with it;
Every fork like a white web-foot;
Every street and pavement mute:
Some flakes have lost their way, and grope back upward, when Meeting those meandering down they turn and descend again.
The palings are glued together like a wall,
And there is no waft of wind with the fleecy fall.
A sparrow enters the tree,
Whereon immediately
A snow-lump thrice his own slight size
Descends on him and showers his head and eyes,
And overturns him,
And near inurns him,
And lights on a nether twig, when its brush
Starts off a volley of other lodged lumps with a rush.

The stops are a blanched slope,
Up which, with feeble hope,
A black cat comes, wide-eyed and thin,
And we take him in.
—Thomas Hardy in "Human Shows, Far Phantasies."

—By Rev. George G. Phipps.

First Carpenter—Joe, how do you make a Venetian blind?

Another Carp.—Ay, that's easy, stick your finger in his eye.—Detroit News.

"How are you on speed?"

"Well, the last girl we graduated married her employer in three weeks."—American Shorthand Teacher.

"Why didn't you read your lesson over to yourself, as I told you to?" asked Mary's teacher.

"But I did, teacher," said Mary.

"Then why don't you know it better?"

"I suppose I wasn't listening to myself."—Weekly Scotsman.

Pugilist (as they started for the ring)—"What's that sign you're bringing along?"

Ole—"He gave me five days for hitting the boatswain's mate with a tomato.

Gus—"I don't see the joke."

Ole—"Ha! Ha! I didn't throw the tomato."—Maryland Captapult.

"Spike, dear," the burglar's wife remarked from behind an evening newspaper, "here's a picture of a movie actress who's got her legs insured for a million dollars. Do you think it's on the level?"

"Naw," was the disgusted response. "Who ever heard of anyone stealin' legs?"—Vancouver Provinece.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Women taxpayers are hard hit in Neustadt, Thuringia. Not content with levying a tax on shingled heads, the municipality has decided to impose taxes on silg stockings, patent leather shoes and on the carrying of canes by women.

Raymond Flynn parked his automobile in a municipal lot at New Bedford, Mass. For eight days the machine remained there while the police tried in vain to find the owner. Finally Flynn appeared and claimed the car, saying that he had forgotten where he had parked it and had had to walk to and from work each day.

More courtesy is shown women lawyers in European courts than they receive in the United States, says Miss Grace H. Brown, Detroit lawyer, who pleaded a case for an exiled Armenian, involving $500,000 before the reparations commission. She also handled a case in the London court. Women lawyers in Europe, Miss Brown finds, are not subjected to the petty annoyances which they occasionally undergo in courts of the United States. They enter upon their pactice before the bar in Europe, she says, on an equal footing with their male colleague.

Parisian traffic has brought about a big increase in certain maladies, says a French physician, who has just set up shop as a specialist in "automobile diseases." Women, especially, have been affected. Strabismus, caused by constant strain upon and shifting of the eyes, and nervous troubles due to fear are particularly prevalent among them. Hard-working clutches varicose veins, he asserts; women and brakes have caused many cases of varicose veins, he asserts. Traffic accidents have become so numerous in France that the departmental council of L'Indre has urged the government to limit the power of automobile motors so that no car used in road work can attain a speed of more than about fifty miles an hour.

Some of the more popular French authors have discovered that they can make as much money signing their names or rewriting a few pages of their books as by spending laborious days producing new works. A boom in autographs and manuscripts in England has added immensely to their incomes. A number of French authors who have attained popularity across the channel accept regular orders from collectors to copy out whole pages of their better-known books and sign them—for cash. Some even copy a whole novel by hand, add their signatures—and, collect. "It is easier than writing a new one, and sometimes just as profitable," one of the better-known French modern recently remarked.

STOCK MARKET WAS IRREGULAR, DUE TO HEAVY PRE-HOLIDAY PROFIT-TAKING

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Wall street witnessed an old fashioned "Christmas market" today in U. S. Steel common which ran up 4 1-4 points to 164 3-4, in a wild outburst of buying in the last hour of trading. The rest of the market was rather mixed, due to heavy pre-holiday profit taking, but the average of 20 leading industrial issues set a new high record for the sixth consecutive session. Trading showed a further contraction in volume, the day's total falling below 2 1-4 million shares.

Talk of another stock split-up and a more liberal dividend policy accompanied the rise in steel common. In banking circles it was learned that a successor to the late Elbert H. Gary as chairman of the board already had been decided upon, and that the official announcement would be made following the director's meeting next Tuesday. Wall street was still guessing as to who would be the new head of the corporation, with a belief in some quarters that the successful nominee would be a "dark horse." It is generally believed that President James A. Farrell will continue as operating head of the organization.

The general market displayed a strong undertone in the face of an $56,000,000 increase in federal reserve brokers' loans to a new high record, and the marketing up of the call money rate from 4 1-2 to 5 per cent. The higher call money rate was the natural sequence of the heavy withdrawals of holiday currency, and was not accompanied by any widespread calling of loans. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Resumption of dividends by the Amoskeag Company after a long suspension of payments, and a brisk rally in cotton prices, contributed to the day's cheerful sentiment.

The violence of the advance in many issues, and the collapse in some of the insurance shares led to considerable reduction of commitments by conservative traders. Several commission houses also urged caution on the theory that the technical position of the market had been weakened and that a corrective reaction was likely, pools nevertheless conducted their operations with confidence, lifting more than a score issues to record high prices.

Coppers were again in the forefront of the advance. Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Chile, Kennecott, Magma and Utah all pushed forward to new high levels. Independent steels were slow in following the lead of U. S. Steel common. Motors were mixed, although Chrysler mounted to a new peak on a large volume of trading.

Contiental Insurance (old), which touched a record high of 341 earlier in the week, broke 19 points to 305 and rallied 1. Fidelity Phenix dropped 15 and rallied nearly 5. Reesla dropped 5 1-2 but recovered all but 1 1-2 points of its loss. National Surety slumped 9 points. American Machine and Foundry also dropped more than 5 points.

Among the many new highs were National Distillers, Corn Products, preferred, Montgomery-Ward, and Davison Chemical. Quiet absorption was noted in Ajax Rubber in expectation of increased earnings as a result of the recent change in management.

Rails were quiet but firm.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling Cables held steady around $4.83 11-32. Japanese yen broke 10 points to 46.28 cents.

Mixed price movements also developed in the commodity markets. Cotton futures closed 75 cents to $1.25 a bale higher, in sympathy with the higher prices in foreign market. Grain, coffee and sugar futures were slightly reactionary.

STOLEN NEW LONDON CAR FOUND AFTER A DAY IN OAKDALE WOODS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—A Chevrolet automobile, owned by Frank Delap, 8 Orchard street, stolen Wednesday night, has been recovered. The car was parked on Union street, near the corner of Church street by Delap, who absented himself an hour or more. In the meantime a thief entered the machine and drove away. When Delap discovered the theft he reported it to at police headquarters and the police of surrounding cities and towns were asked to be on the lookout for the car. No trace of it was found until last night when Elmer J. Tefft, of Oakdale, notified the police that an automobile carrying Connecticut markers, 1565, had been in the woods near his home the entire day. It was found that the auto was Delap's. He was notified of the location of the machine and went there and took charge of it.

William Holloway, colored, 27, residing at 25 Tilley street, was in the police court today charged with breach of the peace by his wife, Mamie. There was no doubt as to Holloway's guilt and a sentence of 10 days in jail was imposed, but Judge Victor Prince suspended the execution of the sentence. Holloway went to his home Wednesday night and there engaged in a quarrel with his wife. Holloway lost his temper and struck his wife and the latter retaliated by using her fingernails on her husband's face. Both were bruised as a result of the combat, which ended only as Holloway pulled a .38 calibre revolver and threatened to shoot. The next day Mrs Holloway made complaint to the police and Holloway was arrested.

CENTER GROTON PATIENTS ESCAPE FROM STATE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—Leroy Buddington, 26, of Center Groton, escaped twice this week from Norwich state hospital. When he was captured yesterday it was only after he had given the state police a hard tussle to subdue him. Buddington was committed to the hospital about two weeks ago after he had terrorized the residents of Center Groton by threatening them with harm. Last Monday he escaped, but was captured. Yesterday he escaped again and made his wey to the Spicer ice house at Center Groton. There he used the telephone to call up numerous residents, whom he also threatened to harm. The Groton barracks of the state police department was requested to put a stop to the annoyance. Lieut. E. V. Streaman and Officers Arthur Whitmarsh and Bernard Anderson went to the ice house and on arriving there found that Buddington had left. The officers then went to Buddington's house where they waited and in a position where observation of the entrance was easy. The officers were finally rewarded by seeing Buddington enter the house, but when they endeavored to enter they found that the doors had been barricaded. Entrance was finally obtained by force and the officers then encountered additional difficulty, for all of the doors were fastened from the inside. These were all battered down in an attempt to capture Buddington. When a door of a bathroom was forced it was found that Buddington had climbed through a door in the ceiling and had gone to the attic and there he refused to give himself up. He was taken from the building by force and returned to the hospital where an attempt will be made to keep him there.

Joseph G. Cavarly, 85, formerly residing at 197 Broad street, died last night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks. Mr. Cavadly is survived only by nieces and nephews, among whom are Mrs. John A. Woods, of Hartford, and John J. Tiffany, of Lyme. Mr. Cavarly was a sea captain for many years, but he retired about 25 years ago.

Thomas McGowan, of Blackhall; Miss Marian Howe, Wyoming, R. I., and Mrs. Ray Stone, 19 Garfield avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital were discharged today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Oskar Hanson, United States Coast Guard destroyed Fanning, and Daniel McQueen, 43 Jay street. McQueen was arrested recently charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, but was prosecuted and fined on a charge of reckless driving. Commissioner Stoeckel also denied the right to drive to Katherine Bache, 4 West Pleasant street.

An automobile driven by Gavin Marshall, of Quaker Hill, and a car driven by Harold Thomas, 33 Twelfth street, collided last night on Williams street, near Connecticut College for Women. Both automobiles were damaged. Neither driver would prefer charges of reckless driving against the other for Marshall and Thomas reacher an agreement whereby the damages would be settled satisfactory to each.

The New London police have been requested by the state police of Groton barracks, to be on the lookout for a Nash automobile carrying Connecticut markers, V-4490. The car was used last night by thieves who robbed a store at Greenwich and stole novelties valued at $700. The automobile is registered in the name of Frank Adams of Waterbury.

Traffic on State street was tied up for over thirty minutes tonight, when a car going west suddenly backfired and stalled in the midst of heavy travel going in each direction. Before the jammed cars could be got going it was necessary to shoot traffic up all adjacent side streets.

Christmas shoppers came out in crowds today. The cold wave in the morning seemed to bring with it a spirit of Yuletide that inspired mortals to buy.

According to rumor Christmas spirits around New London are going to be scarce this year. Recent raids on Volstead-defying joints, rooms and alleys has somewhat depleted the supply.

Of course it is claimed that there are at least one or two dispenseries still operating, and asking prices that are prohibitive. Consequently it is anticipated that there will be many dry whistles here during the holidays.

Is Christmas supplanting Thanksgiving in leadership of the famous New England squash pie? One baker stated this morning that he was forced to prepare four times the number of these pies yesterday than he sold all during the Thanksgiving holidays—and there is still a day to go!

The post office is buried under mail matter. Christmas cards and parcel post mail has completely swamped the office. With Christmas coming Sunday, the entire force will not be employed that day but the entire force will be employed Monday, when the holiday is celebrated. The accumulation of mail matter is so enormous that in order to handle it every available clerk and floor man will be necessary.

James Dignowidy, of Pequot avenue employed in New York, arrived here this evening and will spend the holiday with his family.

Tonight, practically all trains arriving at the Union station from New York and Boston were crowded with New Englanders on their way to spend the holiday with members of their families or relatives. Between 4 o'clock and midnight hundreds of home-comers arrived in the city. Taxicabs were not busy through the night for most of the arrivals used that method of transportation to carry them to their destinations.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 23.—Mrs. Helen Patteson Kellas, owner of the building, 76 State street, today mortgaged the building in the sum of $22,220 to the Edlan company, Norwich. The mortgage was made for the purpose of paying obligations of the Crystal Candy kitchen of which Mrs. Kellas has been the proprietress since her husband, Gus Kellas deserted her several months ago. Kellas' whereabouts have remained a mystery since the automobile he drove from the city was found wrecked at Saybrook. Immediately after the filing o fthe mortgage deed at the office of the city clerk five releases of attachment were made. The released attachments were those of the National Product company, Maurice Grubner, Barnet Gordon, et al., R. C. Williams company and Cox Confectionary company.

Retrenchment will go into effect at the submarine base Jan 1 when about 35 men will be laid off. All of the men are employed by the public works department and the lay-off is the result of lack of appropriations. There has been about 100 men employed there for a long time, but when an appropriation was not received to take care of their pay, it became necessary to curtail expenses for three months. Most of the men who will be laid off are laborers and have been engaged on general repair and road work.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Cook, of Colver Heights, are in Stockford, Me., there they will spend Christmas with Mr. Cook's parents.

Miss Mae Sokarl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sokarl, 109 Montauk avenue, and employed as teacher in the Maine School for the Deaf at Portland, Me., is spending the holiday with her parents.

Breed Theatre.

Marion Davies, surrounded by one thousand college students and some of the most famous college athletes in America, comes to the Breed theatre Sunday in "The Fair Co-ed," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's fascinating comedy of college life from a co-ed's point of view.

Sam Wood, director of Red Grange in "One Minute to Play," and many of the Wally Reid athletic comedies, directed this production, which promises to be one of the most hilarious college farces ever brought to the screen.

The story opens with Marion deciding she will not go to school at Bingham because the dean has issued a ban against student automobiles, but when Johnny Mack Brown appears at her door peddling books to defray his school expenses, Marion has a decided change of mind. When she arrives at college the fun and adventure begin. After a thrilling term which almost wrecks the school, Marion wins the heart of the boy and learns the value of loyalty to her alma mater.

Miss Davies has an excellent supporting cast, which includes Mr. Brown in his first role as leading man.

In addition to the above, a reel will be shown, vividly picturing the wonderful work of "Resuscitation," which will be of interest to all, and especially to those interested in Red Cross work.

To this interesting service, the public, 14 and over is invited, and children as young as 11 may attend if they are accompanied by their parents.

40,000 Answers to Eastern Dairies Contest.

Owing to the tremendous number of suggestions for a name received by Eastern Daries, Inc., in response to its "New Name Contest," the judges will probably be unable to announce their decision for several weeks. Over 40,000 answers were received and these must all be given very careful consideration before any selection can be made.

So many people have asked us when the announcement of the winners was to be made, and have also written direct to Eastern Daries, Inc., that we have been requested to make this announcement in fairness to the company and to our readers.

If you can imagine what a pile 40,000 slips of paper makes, you can posibly realize how much of a problem faces the judges, who have been selected as follows:

Professor Bellatty, Boston university; Professor Nillson, Yale university; Mr. Booth, Worcester Telegram Gazette; Mr. Cornell, New Haven Register; Mrs. Elizabeth MacDonald, Boston university.

The awards will be made just as soon as it is humanly possible, and probably soon after the holiday season.

We hope you will all watch the columns of this paper in which the announcements will be made, and in the meantime Eastern Dairies gratefully wishes us to extend to you all greetings and best wishes for a joyful holiday season.

Strand Theatre.

Modern Daughters is a yarn of life as the young generation lives it. The story tells of a flapper who led a man into tragedy unknowingly to the extent that he faced not only a ruined career, but death in the electric chair. She saved him, however, and in so doing, came to the realization for her own folly. In the cast are Edna Murphy, playing the feminine lead, Ernest Hilliard, the heavy, Virginia Lyons as a sophisticated woman of the world of politics, John Wells as district attorney, Ruth Lansing as a lovely flapper and Hazel Flint as a modern girl, with the ever popular Bryant Washburn in the leading male role.

Western Trails is an exciting western thriller featuring Bill Patton with his Wonder Horse. This clever horseman holds your interest with his daring feats of riding and with the assistance of his horse furnishes some breath taking thrills. This is Patton's latest and best picture and if you like a real thrilling western photoplay, be sure to see this one at the Strand on Sunday night.

Palace Theatre.

Showing for the last times today is the all-girl vaudeville show, that has made such a decided hit at the Palace theatre the last three days of the week. Continuous performances are to be given today of the vaudeville, the feature picture, "A Girl from Rio" and the "Our Gang Comedy" short feature.

Tomorrow's program consists of two sterling feature pictures, when Jack Holt and Dorothy Revier appear in their latest starring vehicle, "The Tigress." It is a story of life and love in a Gypsy camp and should prove to be most excellent entertainment for Sunday night theatregoers. The other feature is one starring the popular canine actor, Silver Streak and Johnny Walker in "Where Trails Begin," a very dramatic story of a dog's unswerving devotion for the master whom he loves.

Commencing Monday for a three-days' run, the management offers as the feature screen attraction, W. C. Fields and Chester Conklin, in one of the funniest comedies ever produced by any film company. In this comedy both Fields and Conklin portray the characters of two old birds well past middle age who it appears, become invoked with the spirit of second childhood. Fields is seen as the owner of a one-ring circus that becomes stranded in a small western town. Conklin is seen as the sheriff of the town who takes a personal and violent dislike to Fields after finding him courting the "girl" whom the former intends to marry. The situations in the picture are excrutiatingly funny and should evoke much hearty laughter.

Featured on stage are five acts of unusual merit with the Basil-Lewis Revue headlining. This act is based along different lines from the usual vaudeville revue. Sharing honors on the bill is a delightful comedy skit, "Going Straight," the plot concerning two reformed crooks with a desire to go straight and the temptation to remain thieves. Earl and Mathews offer a farce comedy skit abundant in laughs. Beth Marsh, a singing comedienne and Paul and Pauline, in an aerial sensation, conclude the vaudeville program.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cadorette are moving to the house at 17 North B street.

The members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B society held a Christmas party in their rooms which were attractively decorated for the occasion Tuesday evening. Miss Mary Ward, the president, distributed gifts to each member from a large and gaily decorated Christmas tree, after which delicious refreshments were served by the committee, Miss Mary Ward, chairman; Miss Alice Legare, Miss Mary Murphy, Miss Julia Chappell, Miss Mary Hanlon and Miss Mary Nolan.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Horoszko of South Third avenue expect soon their son Stanislaw Horoszko to arrive in this country to make his home. Mr. Horoszko was a resident of Galicia, that part of the former empire of Austria-Hungary, which was awarded to Poland by the treaty of Versailles. It is expected that he will reach here early next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mathieu and family have taken a house on North A street.

Miss Yvonne Benac, a student at the Academy of the Holy Family in Baltic is spending the Christmas recess at the home of her father, Joseph E. Benac and family of Pratte avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and daughter Lois of Saylesville, R. I., are to be holiday guests of Mrs. Pingree's father, Axel L. Aberg and her sister, Miss Helen C. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kupky of Bliss ville road are to have as a guest over the holidays, their daughter, Mrs. Thomas Connell of New York.

A meeting of the members of Court Wequonnoc No. 88, Foresters of America, was held Thursday evening at the court rooms in the Parish hall building on Merchants avenue. Chief Ranger Joseph E. Benac presided, and one of the important questions which came up for discussion was the adjustment of the benefit schedule.

A number of the local hunters have organized a foxhunt for the coming Monday and there is a great deal of interest in the way in which several new often heard among the sportsmen, is whether or not a thoroughbred foxdogs will work. One of the discussions found will work any better than a mongrel, some claiming that the pure bred dog has too keen a scent and will pick up a trail many days old, which the mongrel dog cannot do, as he only follows the "warm" trails, to the greater satisfaction of the hunter. Most all the dog owners are in favor of the thoroughbred dog, however, and it is believed that the encouragement that they are giving the breeding of good sporting dogs will result in the ownership of some god hunters next season.

The regular meeting of the basketry class was omitted this week because of the holidays.

COMMUNITY TREE EXERCISES AT NORWICH TOWN SUNDAY NIGHT

The programme for the Community Christmas tree celebration, Sunday evening, at 6:30, on the Norwich Town Green is practically completed. It is expected that the community singing of familiar Christmas carols will consume a half hour, or a little over. The event which this year is to take place Christmas night, is being looked forward to with enthusiasm on the part of those who are to participate. This will include men, women and children, as any one present will be privileged to unite in the singing. The committees in charge, anticipate a large assemblage from the entire town of Norwich and near-by places.

Although the carols are much the same as in previous years it is always a joy to sing praises to the King of Kings,and no better selection could be made than the original outline of songs. Frederic H. Wyant in charge of the music, is to act as song leader.

The tree has been wired and the 200 or more bulbs were turned on for the first time on Friday evening, furnishing a gorgeous illumination of electricity. This will be repeated for a number of evening's until after the holidays. Under the arrangement of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, chairman on lighting, the tree has been elaborately decked out with red, white and blue bulbs. At the top of the posts, which are placed alternately with the six smaller evergreen trees, are white globes through which a white light is shown. Long streamers of bulbs extend from the main tree to the posts, thus providing sufficient light for the chorus. At the extreme top of the main tree there is a large star bearing 20 white lights, same as on former occasions. The tree alone is a brilliant sight and can be observed for some distance in many directions.

This year marks the fifth celebration of its kind under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association. The interests of this association in providing out-door gatherings for the benefit of this and other communities, have been unlimited, as each year in mid-summer for a greater number of years, there has been a most enjoyable community picnic, held also in historic Old Norwich Town, under the efficient management of the associations officers, with the assistance of its several committees.

LOCAL WOMEN ACT TO PRESERVE "THE PINES"

Several members of the Woman's City club and other Norwich women interested in the preservation of the pine trees near the Norwich State hospital conferred with State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald at Hartford Thursday. It was found that at the present time the commissioner's plans calls for the removal of about a dozen trees. This comes as the result of plans to eliminate the curve near the church, below the state hospital. This procedure is endorsed by the women.

In straightening the road farther down in "The Pines" according to present plans, it would be necessary to destroy about 40 trees. The women are not in accord to this plan and went to Hartford for the express purpose of di discussing with the highway commissioner plans for saving or re-planting these trees.

Attending the hearing Thursday from Norwich were Mrs. C. B. Gilbert, chairman of the civic committe of the club, Miss Marion Bishop, Miss Nancy Lucas, and Miss Amy Cogswell, all members of the Woman's City club and Mrs. Albert Comstock, Mrs. William H. Dawley, Mrs. Daniel Webster, Mrs. Roy D. Judd and Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, members of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

WARNING AGAINST FIRES FROM CHRISTMAS TREES

In a warning issued by Chief Howard L. Stanton of the fire department he advises that particular precaution be taken in the illumination of Christmas trees by candles. This form of decorating trees is dangerous, especially where imitation snow and other inflammable material is used. A tree located near a window where curtains are hung is also dangerous.

Strings of electric lights on Christmas trees has been the usual form of decoration in the past years, but in a few cases the candles have been used. In previous years the department has responded to a large number of fires caused by the use of candles on Christmas trees ,last year being an exception. Where candles are used especial care should be taken.

BRIDGE GUARD RAILS RAISED EIGHT INCHES

First Selectman William S. Murray had a group of carpenters at work on Preston bridge Friday morning for the purpose of raising the guard rails to 16 inches, a difference of eight inches from the old rails. This action was taken as a result of an accident a short time ago, when the Broadway Fish Market truck came near going over the bridge into the river.

BANK SENDS $50 CHECK FOR POLICE PENSION FUND

Butts and accompanying the check, stated that the $50 was given "as an evidence of the appreciation of this society of the protection and uniform courtesy which it and its customers have received from members of the police force of our city."

Firemen Adopt Black Bear

A black bear, adopted as a pet by Engine Co. No. 6, Thamesville cestion, and the property of Jack Lynch, fireman at the station, was the cause for considerable commotion in the Thamesville section of the city Thursday evening. For a time it was thought that the bear, which was being pulled around by Mr. Lynch by a chain, was alive, but it was finally discovered that it wa sonly stuffed and had been used a number of years by a Norwich furrier. The bear had been mounted on wheels and was easily pulled about by Mr. Lynch, affording the audience quite a scare until it was discovered that it was but a joke.

MAURICE E. WALLEN SCORES A SUCCESS IN ORATORIO

When the Hartford Oratorio society, inaugurating its seventh season, gave "Elijah" early in the week, with a chorus of 172 directed by Edward F. Laubin, the Times said of a singer whose wife is a former Norwich Town girl:

In reality honors among the soloists of the afternoon should be awarded, without question to Maurice E. Wallen, tenor, Hartford singer, who was making his first formal appearance as an oratorio soloist. Singing as he has never sung before, Mr. Wallen was enthusiastically received, and his rendition of the familiar "If With All Your Hearts," was one of the musical climaxes of the afternoon. His interpretation of "Then Shall the Righteous" was also marked for its intelligence and its musical comprehension. Mr. Wallen sang with ease and fluency.

EMBROIDERY CLASS HAS HOLIDAY SOCIAL GATHERING

The Wanasleep embroidery class enjoyed a delightful Christmas party when it met Thursday evening with Mrs. W. R. Denison of 41 Happy street.

The Season's Greetings.

The editor of Norwich Free Academy paper Red and White, Cassidy Driscoll has the following in the Dec. 22nd issue:

Now we come to that season of the year when our pocketbooks mysteriously fail us—that time when we ponder and ask ourselves if we really could give our friends burnt matches for presents. But that gloom does not last long. There's something about Christmas-time which makes even the most destitute of us philosophical in the face of our troubles. Somehow or other we always find a way out.

Christmas joy pervades the hearts of all of us and makes us kin. Animosities are forgotten, friendships are kindled, hardship is alleviated and good cheer is rampant—all under the benign influence of jolly old Christmas-time.

The staff of the Red and White joins itself to the host of well-wishers all over the world in concurrently extending to Mr. Tirrell, the faculty and the school at large, including those almost completely cut off from the main body students, their sincere and hearty good wishes for a really Merry Christmas and a pleasant New Year.

STORRS PULLETS RALLY IN SEVENTH WEEK

After three weeks of declining production, the 1,400 pullets in the Storrs laying contest rallied during the seventh week of the competition and boosted their rate of lay by almost 2 points. The contest management hopes this upward trend will be marked to a greater degree in the coming weeks, and that the flock entered in the present trial continues to gain on the record set up during the 1926-27 contest. Although the present competition is only 7 weeks old, a gain of 3,626 eggs over last year's trial for the same period of time has already been registered. During the seventh week, the contest birds shelled out 4,191 eggs for a lay of 42.8 per cent. This is 156 eggs more than the score for last week and 534 eggs more than the total for the corresponding week a year ago. Up to last Sunday night a grand total of 29,802 eggs had been produced. This gives an average of 212 eggs for each of the 140 competing pens or an individual average of slightly over 21 eggs per bird.

For the fourth consecutive week a pen of White Leghorns owned by Broadview Poultry farm from Winsted, Conn., headed the honor rolls, this time with a production of 62 eggs. This figure brings the total production of the Broadview birds for 7 weeks to 428 eggs, the best record among the 140 pens in the contest. This gives the Connecticut entry a lead of 49 eggs over the second high pen, White Rocks owned by E. A. Hirt from South Weymouth, Mass., with a 7-week production of 379 eggs.

Rhode Island Reds owned by Charlescote farm of Sherborn, Mass., placed second for the wek with a lay of 58 eggs. Another pen of the same breed owned by the Massachusetts Agricultural college and an entry of White Leghorns owned by George Lowry from West Willington, Conn., tied for third place with a score of 57 eggs each. Barred Rocks entered by R. W. Davis and Sons from Rockland, Me., placed fourth with a production of 56 eggs. This week's honor roll was an "All-New England" proposition with Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maine represented.

Three changes took place among the leading pens during the week. In the White Wyandotte division, the entry of Tom Barron from Catforth, near Preston, England moved into second position, displacing the entry of Winlay White Wyandottes from Collinsville, Conn. This is the second pen of Tom Barron's to work up among the leaders, as his White Leghorn entry stands sixth in that division. In the Rhode Island Red class, the entry of Charlescote farm moved into first position, displacing the pen owned by Homestead farm from Newtown, Conn. In the White Leghorn classification the entry of George Lowry from West Willington, Conn., climbed into fifth position, displacing the entry of Henry Rapp Jr., from Farmingdale, N. J.

After the leading pen of Broadview White Leghorns, four more entries, including White Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, and White Leghorns are bunched quite closely together with only 8 eggs difference in their scores. E. A. Hirt's White Rocks have a score of 379 eggs, and then the Charlescote Farm Reds follow closely behind in third place with a total of 377 eggs. In fourth place are George Lowry's White Leghorns with 374 eggs to their credit, and in fifth position is the Red entry owned by Homestead farm with a 371 egg total. This is competition of the keenest sort, the kind that makes an egg laying race interesting.

"Pep and Pedigree" will be the subject of the dialogue to be broadcast from WCAC next Wednesday beginning at 7:15 p. m. This talk will be given by Prof. William F. Kirkpatrick and Prof. David E. Warner Jr.

Town of Brooklyn, Brooklyn-Danielson road, Charles A. Hagarty of Webster, Mass., $116,597.

SALESMAN GIVEN $1200 COMPENSATION AWARD

A compensation award of $1200 has been given Valentine G. Feix of New York and Norwich by a decision filed Friday with the clerk of the superior court by Compensation commissioner Albert J. Bailey. Mr. Feix' claim was against the United Metal Mfg. Co., et al. On Nov. 22nd, claimant, employed as a salesman for the local concern fell and fractured his right femur, while calling on a customer in New York city As a result he spent 74 days at the Bellevue hospital, New York city.

The insurance company contested a claim for compensation and hospital bills made by Feix. They contended that there existed at the time of the injury no contract of employment in the state of Connecticut at or prior to the time that the claimant, Feix, sustained his injury and that Feix did not file a written notice of claim for compensation within the time required by the statute.

In view of the technical and legal questions raised as to whether or not the commissioner had jurisdiction and also in view of the fact that it is to the best interests o fthe parties that further litigation should be avoided with the doubts and uncertainties as to the results if fully prosecuted, it has been agreed by Feix and the employer-respondent, acting by James E. McCormick of Norwich and the insurer respondent, acting by P. J. O'Neil, its representative, that while their respective claims are made in good faith, the claim is a disputed one, and for these reasons a compromise agreement has been reached by the parties at interest, Commissioner Bailey says.

JURY AWARDS $2800 TO THREE WOMEN

At 12.07 o'clock Friday afternoon the jury in the Taber-Conklin damage suit returned verdicts in favor of all three plaintiffs in the superior court. The case was given the jury at 11 o'clock. By the verdict Mrs. Jennie Taber of Mystic, received $1,500 in her $10,000 suit; her daughter Alice, also of Mystic, received $1,000 in her $3,000 action; while another daughter, Mrs. Blanch Barrows of New Haven, was given $300 damages in her action for $2,000 damages.

The three cases were tried jointly in the superior court here before Judge John R. Booth. Mrs. Taber and her two daughters sued Floyd Conklin of Mystic for injuries received and damage to their car as the result of an automobile accident on July 11, last, with an auto owned by Conklin and operated by Charles Carson of Mystic. The accident occurred near the intersection of Grove and Starr streets, Mystic.

People who delayed in mailing Christmas packages have the comfort of reflecting that they may reach their destination on the post—Christmas day, Monday.

DEMON HICKMAN MADE TWO ATTEMPTS TO END HIS LIFE

Made an Effort to Strangle Himself With a Handkerchief—Then Tried to Dive Head First From His Bunk to Dash His Head on the Concrete Floor—The Youth Had Lost His Boastfulness—Went Into a Siege of Hysteria—He is Being Taken Back to Los Angeles.

PENDLETON, Ore., Dec. 25.—(AP)—William Edward Hickman, charged with kidnaping and killing Marian Parker in Los Angeles made two attempts to end his life just before being taken from the jail here today.

First he attempted to strangle himself with a handkerchief, then he tried to dive head first from his bunk to dash his head against the concrete floor.

Arousing from the lethargy that had gripped him for hours, Hickman threw an orange to the top of his cell, then took his bible, tore the leaves from it and scattered them on the floor. He asked for a handkerchief which was handed to him by a guard. Hickman quickly knotted it about his throat, pulling the ends tightly, the guard, Doug Gurdane, rushed to the cell door and before he could unlock it, Hickman was strangling.

No sooner had he composed himself than he climbed to an upper bunk and tried to dive on his head. He was caught around the waist by Gurdane.

When Hickman was placed on a special coach for his trip back to Los Angeles a crowd of 1500 persons had gathered to see him. He was a bedraggled figure. His long hair streamed about his forehead, his eyes were heavy and a deadly pallor was on his face.

As he walked from the bus to the coach he was supported by two officers, Dick Lucas and Harry Raymond, detective lieutenants of Los Angeles, to whom he was handcuffed.

Gurdane and City Attorney Randall assembled the effects taken from Hickman when arrested and which had been carefully guarded in the jail vault. Guns, clothing, a suitcase and personal effects were turned over to the Los Angeles officers and $1,400 of the original $1,500 in the bill tale $20 certificates which Hickman received from Perry M. Parker, father of the slain girl, also $65.40 in other money that Hickman had.

With drunken Indians fighting in his cell throughout the night, Hickman received a simple test as to whether the hysteria he showed last night was feigned or natural.

Alarmed over the visit of Los Angeles police detectives who arrived to take him into custody, the youth lost all of his poise and boastfulness and was heard in pleas for mercy.

The detectives who had seen the mutilated body of the little girl were in no mood to temporize when they entered his cell last night, at the county jail and bolted the door behind them.

In a few minutes he was lying on his side on the floor crying "oh God—oh, oh."

The detectives said they asked Hickman to "sit up and talk like a man," when they entered the cell but Hickman made no response. He was on his back on the floor with his knees raised and refused to talk, they said.

The youth then went into a siege of hysteria that carried him until after midnight when one of the jailers adopted an elemental formula used by the officers of the undeveloped frontier country of the west. Two drunken Indians were placed in the cell to learn whether the glassy eyes of Hickman, in a death-like stare for three hours, were indicative of his true condition. The jailer soon found otherwise. For Hickman's eyes followed the fighting, drunken Indians who were placed in the cell, indicating his condition was more faked than actual.

When detectives arrived to claim Hickman this morning and start him on his journey back to the scene of his crime, a handkerchief was found in his cell suspended in a way which gave rise to the belief in some quarters that the youth may have attempted to hang himself during the night. This report, however, lacked official confirmation.

The approach of the detectives and the knowledge that he soon must face a court and announce his defense, if any, led to pessimistic statements from the youth regarding his chances for escaping the noose.

"Any good attorney won't defend me, since the public feels the way it does" Hickman said. He also expressed the belief that lawyers appointed by the court "won't be any good."

Recalling how the public defender in Los Angeles had obtained his liberty in the forgery case which first brought him before the courts, Hickman said: "That young public defender is a mighty fine fellow. If I could get him to defend me, I certainly wouldn't be sorry."

For the first time Hickman revealed last night that little Marian wrote the "dear daddy and mother" appeal on the first night she was in his clutches. One, Hickman said was written before he took the child to a motion picture show at the Rialto theater at Alhambra, and the other was written in his apartment after the show.

Los Angeles officers were amazed at the small guard placed about Hickman here, asserting that the temper of the populace justified greater precaution. In this connection it was pointed out that residents of Pendleton were as highly incensed over the crime as those of California cities. Their restraint was attributed to a statement issued by Governor C. C. Young of California, that the reward offered by California would not be paid in the event that the youth was the victim of violence before he had been convicted in the regular manner.

There was no indication from the Los Angeles officers that Hickman had changed his story as the result of their questioning last night.

The southern officials adopted a policy of making no statements to the public soon after their arrival here in contrast to the open handed method employed by the Pendleton officials.

"If they want my blood, I suppose they will get it," Hickman said before his departure.

The departure of Hickman from Pendleton last night as expected was delayed a waiver of extradition. As a sign a waiver of extradition. As a consequence the officers refused to attempt his removal before extradition papers, signed at Salem, Ore., yesterday arrived here this morning.

Hickman continued today in his insistence that Marian Parker was killed by Andrew Cramer, for whom police of Los Angeles have been searching, although a man of the same name has been found in the Los Angeles county jail, where he has been confined for several weeks serving a sentence for bootlegging. The Cramer in jail says he knows Hickman.

Asked if "there isn't something more you can tell us about Cramer that would make it easier to identify him," Hickman said: "No, I can't think of anything. And anyway, they want to get me. They don't care about finding Cramer."

Assured that officials were continuing their search for Cramer, Hickman repeated his previous assertions that Cramer was not "a clean looking man at all."

"I don't like to brag," Hickman continued, "but I have lived a clean life and Cramer was much more apt to do that thing than I would. I don't smoke—but very little—and I don't run around."

PLANS FOR PROTECTION OF HICKMAN IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Police department plans for protecting William E. Hickman, kidnaper and accused murderer of Marian Parker, from possible mob violence when he arrives here tomorrow or Tuesday were being formulated today.

Although no word has been received from Chief of Police Davis, who is in Oregon with other officers bringing the youth back, as to the time or manner of arrival here, the police department started the selection of a special guard to meet the kidnaper and his custodians, and to be thrown about the jail. The police said they expect Hickman to be taken from the train at some suburban point and secretly speeded to the guarded cell which awaits him.

Other cordons of officers will be detailed to control the expected crowds of the curious and to guard against any violent outbreak of public anger which has buzzed through the ranks and file during the ten days since the girl's abduction.

An offer by local banks to supply an armored money car in which to transport Hickman from the train to the jail was taken under consideration.

FIVE LIVES LOST IN HOTEL FIRE AT HOPEWELL, VA.

HOPEWELL, Va., Dec. 25—(AP)—Five persons are believed to have lost their lives and several others were injured here today in a fire of undetermined origin which destroyed the Grand Central hotel, a three story brick building.

The hotel register was consumed by the flames, thus hindering police and firemen in their efforts to make a definite check of the missing. The clerk said there were probably fifty names on names on the register, but many of the guests had left the city to spend Christmas at home.

Those accounted for tonight were: Charles Cocke and Luther Hammond of Hopewell, Mr. and Mrs. Maude of South Carolina and a Virginia man named Ridenbush.

Search for the bodies was begun in the afternoon, but tonight none of the missing had ben found in the debris, which piled up when the front of the building and one of the side walls caved.

Fire Chief Cuddihy said it probably would take two days to complete the search.

Firemen rescued many guests from the third floor of the building, while persons on the second floor escaped down stairways. Owners valued the hotel at $60,000. A furniture concern, which occupied most of the first floor estimated its losses at $150,000.

CHURCHES IN LONDON WERE FILLED YESTERDAY

LONDON, Dec. 25.—The weather prophet who promised England a snow white Christmas of the Dickens type was the most unpopular fellow in the empire today, for it rained nearly all day.

Christmas is a quiet, indoor holiday for most of the people of England, but as it fell on Sunday this year, great crowds turned out and filled the cathedrals and churches to overflowing to hear the Christmas sermons.

Tomorrow is "box day," known as such because the dustman, postman, newsboy and many others carry collection boxes from door to door to get their annual reward for having rendered faithful service.

So rainsoaked was the atmosphere in London today that it brought loud grumbles from competitors in the Serpentine Swimming club's annual Christmas race for the Peter Pan cup.

Twenty-nine members plunged into the water which registered 38 degrees Fahrenheit, for the 100 yard dash. H. J. Edwards won the trophy which was given by Sir J. M. Barrie.

C. W. GRAY WAS KILLED WHEN HE FELL FROM HORSE

CHICAGO, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Charles W. Gray, 55, president of the Yellow Cab company, was killed today when he fell from his horse, striking his head on the hard roadway.

Mr. Gray had dropped several hundred feet behind Alton M. Huttell, treasurer of the company, and Robert Berg, a brother-in-law, with whom he was riding. Missing Mr. Gray, Mr. Huttell galloped back around a bend and found the executive lying beside his animal.

An examination at the hospital showed that Mr. Gray had been killed almost instantly. It is thought that either the horse stumbled or reared suddenly, throwing Gray to the ground.

Gray advanced to the president of the Yellow Cab company from the position of a taxicab driver, becoming associated with the company, when it was formed by John Hertz, now chairman of the board of directors.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

ROME, Dec. 25—(AP)—Pope Pius received Christmas greeting from all over the world, the most numerous being from the United States.

BERLIN, Dec. 25—(AP)—Gertrude, 7, and Helga, 5 years old, daughters of Oscar von Hindenburg, only son of the German president, were the only ones of his eight grandchildren to celebrate Christmas with grandpa.

LONDON, Dec. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Laura Gould, former wife of George Jay Gould Jr., and Roy Royston, English actor, were married yesterday at the Chelsea registrar's office. A number of theatrical celebrities attended the ceremony.

CHRISTMAS DAY WAS QUIET IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—"Merry Christmas" rang out over the land today and the national capital, along with all the rest of the nation, settled down to a two-day celebration of the annual festival.

Having presided last evening at a community celebration in the park south of the treasury where a towering spruce stands bedecked in hundreds of colored lights, President Coolidge and his family spent Christmas day quietly at the white house while other high government officials observed the day at their homes, either in Washington or elsewhere.

Soon after break of day, the President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, were up to gather around the grove of Christmas trees in the spacious east room where the gifts sent them from all parts of the country were opened. Then they attended services at the remodeled First Congregational church.

Christmas dinner was served this evening in the private dining room of the white house, the only guest being Attorney General Sargent, a personal friend of the Colidges.

In all Washington's churches special Christmas programs had been arranged. One of the most novel of these was the eventide singing of Christmas carols in German, Spanish, Russian and English at Washington cathedral where Woodrow Wilson is entombed. The singing was broadcast and was participated in by members of the diplomatic corps.

A special message to the American people in the handing of President Coolidge was published today in which Mr. Coolidge declared that the holiday is "not a time or season but a state of mind."

"To be plenteous in mercy," the message added, "is to have the real Christmas spirit. If we think on these things there will be born in us a saviour and over us will shine a star, sending its gleam of hope to the world."

1927 GOOD YEAR FOR AVERAGE EUROPEAN BUSINESS MAN

LONDON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—In checking up profits and losses as the year 1927 flickers away, the average European business man finds the year has been a good one.

Reports of a slow, but always upward trend in economic life come from France, Germany, Italy and other continental countries, while Great Britain reports a similar situation, leaving Soviet Russia the one great economic uncertainty of Europe. Nobody doubts the soviet government's political control over the country, but the opinion of many experts is that the future of Russia depends upon the government's success in attracting foreign capital, without which a new crisis is foreseen.

During 1927 the war scares in the Balkans and Baltic affected conditions in the smaller countries, but the war mongers were doomed to disappointment for no hostilities occurred. Of course, Mr. Average European has not yet paid all the bills for his fun or folly of 1914-18, and until the great war has been paid for the cry of "hard times" is going to continue to be heard.

HOT TURKEY GRAVY WAS CAUSE OF AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW BRITAIN, Dec. 25—(AP)—Hot "fixins" for a Christmas dinner were responsible for what nearly turned out to be a fatal tragedy today.

Piping hot turkey gravy showered over Eric A. Johnson, as he was driving his wife and child home from a visit to their son, caused him to lose control of his automobile as he crossed at the intersection of Main and East Main streets. The car hit a truck; dashed up over the sidewalk; ripped away 25 feet of guard rail; and stopped with its front wheels hanging over a stone wall with a 20 foot drop below. Timely stop of the machine in its wild flight fortunately prevented injury to occupants.

21 PERSONS KILLED BY MOTOR VEHICLES IN MASS. LAST WEEK

BOSTON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Twenty-one persons were killed by motor vehicles in Massachusetts last week, Registrar Frank A. Goodwin reported tonight. This was ten more than in both the week before and in the same period last year.

Registrar Goodwin called attention to the fact that none of those killed were children.

During the week 75 persons were convicted for operating cars while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and 398 licenses and registrations were taken away for violations of the motor laws or insurance cancellations.

COMMITTED SUICIDE WHILE AWAITING TRIAL FOR MURDER

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—(AP)—A man awaiting trial for the murder of his wife and step-daughter committed suicide by stabbing himself in the throat with a kitchen knife in a Brooklyn jail today. John Hansen, 61, had been in jail since last October when he was arrested after reporting to police that he had found the bodies of Mrs. Hansen and her daughter with their skulls fractured. He denied killing them.

The knife with which he killed himself had been taken from the matron's quarters in the jail.

Record Business at New York Postoffice

Millions of Pieces Were Handled at the General Postoffice—2,000 Extra Helpers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25—(AP)—There was no Christmas presents or Christmas cards tonight in New York's 55 postal sub stations.

Belated cards and [illegible] ages may straggle in for [illegible] before the carriers went [illegible] had delivered all the m[illegible] pieces of Christmas mail [illegible]ched the general postof[illegible] for delivery to the sub[illegible] the Metropolitan Area. [illegible]on why the greatest mail [illegible] the United States could make su[illegible] a record, Postmaster John J. Kiley said, was that this year the public responded more generally than ever to the plea to "mail early."

The peak in the Christmas work of the New York Postoffice usually comes December 23. This year it came December 21. No record is kept of incoming mail distributed, but the cancelling machines record the number of pieces of outgoing matter.

On Wednesday, the biggest day of the season, 12,323,000 outgoing letters, Christmas cards and packages were handled. Between December 15 and December 21 outgoing mail received at their general postoffice numbered 52,000,000 pieces—nearly four millions and a quarter more than in the corresponding period last year. The number of pieces handled on December 21 exceeded by a million that of December 21, 1926.

The biggest Christmas business in the history of the New York Postoffice marked the virtual close of what it was estimated will be the biggest year, judging from receipts.

Indications now point to receipts of $75,500,000 for 1927, officials say. Three decades ago, the receipts of the entire postal system of the United States were only $75,050,000. Besides New York's mail, the office here handles more than three-quarters of all mail passing between the United States and Europe.

The speed with which this mail is handled was demonstrated when the liner Majestic pulled into quarantine last Tuesday evening with 18,000 sack of mail, including 3,000,000 letters—the largest single incoming shipment in the memory of officials. Wednesday morning the mail was at the general postoffice, and before evening 1,000,000 letters had been distributed and 2,000,000 sorted and started for destinations all over the continent.

Th 20,000 men and women employed during Christmas season included about 2,000 extra helpers.

FIVE OFFICIALS WERE KILLED IN GUN BATTLE

SOUTH PITTSBURGH, Tenn., Dec. 25—(AP)—Five officers were killed and one probably fatally wounded during a gun battle on the main street here tonight.

The battle was declared to have been the culmination of bad feeling between county officers of Marion county and police officers of South Pittsburgh. The actual shooting lasted less than five minutes, witnesses declared.

The dead are Wash Coppinger, sheriff of Marion county, Tennessee; L. A. Hennessey, a deputy sheriff, Ben Parker, former sheriff and marshal of South Pittsburgh, Ewing Smith, city marshal of South Pittsburgh, and O. H. Larrowe, a special policeman.

CHRISTMAS CELEBRATIONS WERE MARRED BY FIRE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25—(AP)—Christmas celebrations in sixteen families were marred today by a fire that destroyed the Hughes apartments in Lansdowne, a suburb, causing damage estimated at $75,000.

A six year old girl was taken unconscious from the building and a fireman was nearly drowned in the cellar where tons of water had been thrown by 14 fire companies. Several other firemen were overcome by smoke.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 25,—(AP)—"Santa Clause is scratching matches," cried a five year old boy in a tenement house last night as he heard the crackle of flames and saw tongues of fire spurt upward.

This exclamation gave warning of a fire which destroyed a huge five-story warehouse in the congested district of Glasgow and killed four firemen under under falling walls. In bitter Christmas eve cold, 50 families were forced by the flames to abandon their homes.

NEW HAVEN GIRL RUN DOWN BY MOTOR CAR

Still Working in Attempt to Raise S-4

PROVINCETOWN, Dec. 26 —(AP)—Christmas day with the salvage fleet engaged in the attempt to raise the sunken S-4 and her crew of dead from the depths of Massachusetts Bay was marked by a continuance of operations under the better weather conditions than have existed for several days.

Furtherance of the salvage work was in accord with a decision by Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur against discontinuance of the task until spring after he had made a Christmas eve visit here with Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of the Bureau of Operations.

The personnel of the mine-sweeper Falcon and the tug Sagamore proceeded with preparations for permanent moorings above the ill-fated submarine. Naval officers in charge of the work planned six moorings as a precaution against severe weather. To protect against loss of the resting place of the S-4 in the event of bad weather the superintendent of lighthouses at Boston has been instructed to place gas and whistling buoys above the submarine.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, commander of the control forces today took up quarters aboard the U. S. S. Bushnell, mother ship of the submarine fleet. Living conditions aboard the Falcon which had served as Admiral Brumby's flagship ships his arrival here necessitated the shift.

Though none of the many divers here went down to the ocean floor today for further work around the sunken submarine, which went to the bottom in a crash with the Coast Guard destroyer Paulding, they were not idle. These men who have flirted with death in an effort to rescue six of the submarine's crew which were known to have survived the crash with the destroyer only to give up their lives when efforts to get air and food to them in their steel prison 00 feet under water failed, today studied the construction of the S-6, a sister ship of the S-4.

Anticipating a move to raise the S-4 as soon as possible the divers endeavored to familiarize themselves with her construction, piping and other essential details by study of the S-6.

Absence from their homes and loved ones coupled with the depressing thoughts of the men who died in the S-4 did much to lessen the spirit of Christmas among the men aboard the vessels here. The only departure from every day routine was in the dinner served aboard ship. The regular Navy Christmas dinner, which included turkey, was served.

BANK IN BUENOS AIRES WAS WRECKED BY BOMB

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 25—(AP)—Thousands of persons spent part of their Christmas holiday viewing the wrecked National City bank, today, while police were busy learning new details of Saturday's bombing and taking precautions against repetition.

Further investigation added little to information on the slight damage to the Buenos Aires branch of the First National bank, of Boston, but new theories multiplied with additional information as to the damage of the branch of the New York bank.

One theory is that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers took the bomb into the National City bank disguised as a Christmas package; another is that the bomb was planted before the Christmas crowd of six hundred depositors present when the bomb exploded had gathered; a third theory is that the bomb was thrown through the skylight of the four story bank building from the roof of an adjoining structure.

IMBECILE SON HELD FOR DEATH OF FATHER

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Dec. 25—(AP)—A 25-year-old imbecile son was held in jail here tonight following the discovery of his father, Dave Sams, 69, mountain farmer, dead in his home, and the house partly destroyed by fire last Friday night.

Neighbors discovered the house on fire, and the aged man beaten to death. A bloody hammer lay by the side of the body and an empty oil can was nearby. On a bed in the same room, the son, George Sams, lay apparently asleep.

Zeb Hensley, a former boarder in the Sams home, was taken into custody but was released today after being questioned.

Several hundred dollars the aged man was believed to have had in the house also was missing, officers who investigated the slaying said.

Sheriff Buckner of Unico county, said that he had attempted to question the youth, but could obtain no information from him.

MRS. GRAYSON AND THREE COMPANIONS STILL MISSING

The Amphibian Plane, The Dawn, Was Last Sighted Friday Night Over Cape Cod—A Curtis Airplane Made a Search of the New England Coast to Cape Cod—No Trace of the Missing Flyers Was Found—Civic Guards Are Watching Off the Western Coast of Ireland and the Southern Coast of England.

SABLE ISLAND STATION REPORTED COMMUNICATION WITH MISSING AIRPLANE

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 26—Monday (AP)—The Canadian government wireless station at Sable Island reported early today that it was in communication with Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's missing plane, the Dawn.

At 1:15 a. m. C. H. Harvey, marine and fisheries agent gave out the following message received from the government wireless station at Sable Island:

"At 9.45 p. m. eastern standard time, heard airship Dawn saying that something had gone wrong, but could not get her owing to storm interference."

At 10.45 p. m. nothing heard from her, the message continued. "Particulars of signals, interrupted continuous wave, 625 meter wave length, call sign WMU."

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances W. Grayson and her three companions in the Amphibian plane the dawn were still unreported tonight, more than 50 hours after the twin motors were last heard over Cape Cod. Rescue efforts had produced no encouragement.

Friends of Mrs. Grayson and Goldsborough tonight were awaiting receipt of $5,000 for which they had cabled to Mrs. Aage Ancker, of Denmark, financial backer of the dawn's flight, to carry out the search in case the plane sent out today finds no trace of the missing flyers.

It was planned to charter two boats, one to start out from Long Island Sound and the other to depart from the neighborhood of Nantucket.

The searching boats would be sent out with instructions to cruise along the supposed course of the Grayson plane and out to sea as far as 200 miles. The offshore search would be made on the theory that if the plane had been forced down in the water, the strong west wind that has prevailed would have caused it to drift out to sea.

Mrs. Goldsborough tonight said that having spent the $500 Christmas check which her husband left her to charter the searching plane sent out today, she found herself virtually at the end of her personal resources to continue the search and in a helpless condition in view of the fact that no outside aid has been offered either by individuals of agencies competent to search for the missing plane.

An effort was being made tonight to enlist the assistance of the Coast Guard to have patrol boats search along the coast. Cooperation of the Canadian government also was being sought to have craft sent out in a search along the coast of Nova Scotia and across the water jump from Nova Scotia to New foundland.

Search Was Fruitless

CURTISS FIELD, New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The plane sent out to search for Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson and her crew of three missing in the Sikorsky Amphibian plane dawn which hopped off Friday for Harbor Grace, returned here tonight after flying beyond Cape Cod, Mass., along the supposed course of the Grayson plane and reported that no trace of the missing flyers have been found.

William Winston, pilot and Steven Parkinson, observer in the searching plane said that at one time their hopes were raised, when off Cape Cod they saw a cluster of fishing boats about what from a distance appeared to be a yellow airplane wing. Closer inspection, however, revealed that a fishing boat had fouled its net and the other craft had gathered to its assistance.

The flyers reported good visibility for their search but said they suffered the cold.

BOSTON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Observers along the New England coast today reported no trace of the amphian airplane, the Dawn, in which Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson and three companions took off from Roosevelt field, L.
